Last week, while browsing some Karate books, I found a really interesting book. It is in English, and on the front page it says (with big bold letters): "The Deadliest Karate Moves". I won't do a review though. It's seriously not necessary, and you will understand why in a second. But.

It is in English, and on the front page it says with big bold letters: Dude! I just had to read a little! But let me quote a little. If you are a sensitive person, you might want to skip this. I have not made anything up. This is straight from the book: Side Kick to Jaw Damage: Side Kick to Heart Damage: Side Kick to Back of Head Damage: Roundhouse to Temple toes directly contact temple Damage: Knee Drop to Heart Damage: Stomp to Heart Damage: Stomp to Throat Damage: Okay, now you get the idea. Well, the book has loads of those! I quote this is exactly what the book says: You are standing by your car ready to get in when an attacker with a crowbar tries to kill you. You have several courses of action. You are getting into your car with your wife when two thugs attack you with a crowbar, trying to kill you. A woman is walking down the street when a would-be rapist grabs her. You are at the cash wash when two men jump you and manage to grab you. One gets you into a bear hug. Are you feeling sick? Or are you rolling around the floor laughing? I was, when I read this the first time. By the way, very important fact as stated in the book: This is not Karate. Sure, the techniques might be similar to Karate techniques. The Japanese terminology used here and there shuto etc. But the rest is just! Killing. To me, Karate is nothing but pure self-defense. Just run the heck away?! If you really must attack people violently from behind, why not just kick them between the legs? Or simply trip them over? Or bend their arm the wrong way? Or sweep their legs away? All of those, combined! And yo! do we even have to mention the rest of the techniques? The opposite of Karate. Yet! I must admit something. I have seen those exact moves in demonstrations here in Okinawa, the birthplace of Karate. No, I am not kidding. There is ONE certain big organization no names mentioned that always finishes their Karate self-defense, remember? Because after the fight, you can be friends. Personally, I think that is a great philosophy. And that, to me, is what Karate should be all about.

I have lost a good friend, and the arts have lost a great teacher and fighter. We will all miss you, very much. Ted Gambordella, 5th Dan www. The techniques found in this book were not devised by me, and most are common knowledge to the average student. What I have attempted to do is to compile moves in such a manner that one can study the kicks and blows and then can see the exact technique and target area, with the resulting damage to the attacker. I am assuming that the reader will have an adequate martial arts background so that he knows the basic stances and strikes. Therefore, I am showing only the strike or kick to the target area, without reference to body stances or other basics. All blows and kicks must be delivered with the utmost speed and power in order to be effective. In a final chapter I show examples of street applications of some of the techniques. This is meant as a training section in order to get the student or teacher to begin to think of how the strikes and blows might be applied in a life-or-death situation. The Deadliest Karate Moves by Dr. Snap the kick out directly in front of the body to the target area, keep the other leg slightly bent for balance, and be sure to thrust with the hips for speed and power. The kicking technique is the same. However, you thrust more directly forward with this kick, and be sure to lock the leg for the full power to the heel. The Front Snap-High This kick requires a lot of flexibility and balance if any power is to be produced. It is extremely effective for areas of the face, throat, and chin. The heel, or side of the heel, is the striking area. Keep the arm above the leg, down the side of your body to protect your ribs. This is probably the most devastating kick and the hardest to stop when done correctly. Look behind over your shoulder to the target area. Thrust directly back with speed and power, snapping the hips for more power, and strike the heel of the foot into the desired area. Raise the knee directly up with power and speed to the striking area. You get more power by thrusting or snapping up with the hips on this kick. We are shown demonstrating the vital points and the best kick attack for each one. Beneath the illustration, you will find the damage and the results that you can expect from using each kick against a would-be attacker. Front Snap to the Shin Damage: Front Heel Kick to Shin Damage: Front snap to tailbone Damage: Front Snap to Lower Back Damage: Front Snap with Heel to Chin Damage: Front Snap to Solar Plexus Damage: Kick to Knee Damage: Side Snap Kick to Ribs Damage: Side Kick to Jaw Damage: Side Kick to Chin Damage: Side Kick to Back of Head Damage: Roundhouse to Side of Head Damage: Roundhouse to Side of Neck Damage: Roundhouse to Solar Plexus Damage: Roundhouse to Knee Damage: Roundhouse to Groin Damage: Knee to Groin Damage: Knee to Throat Damage: Knee to Coccyx Damage: Knee to Kidney and Lower Back Damage: Knee Drop to Heart Damage: Stomp to Heart Damage: Stomp to Throat Damage: Stomp to Back of Head Damage: Heel Kick to Temple Damage: Heel Kick to Throat Damage: Heel Kick to Face Damage: The vital points and appropriate attacks to each area are illustrated, with a notation on the damage and results of each hand attack. Shuto to the Throat Damage: Shuto to Teeth Damage: Shuto to Top of Skull Damage: Shuto to Solar Plexus Damage: Shuto to Collarbone Damage: Shuto to side of neck Damage: Shuto to Jaw, Side of Face Damage: Shuto to Groin Damage: Shuto to Temple Damage: Palm Heel to Face Damage: Palm Heel to Throat Damage: Palm Heel to Temple Damage: Palm Heel to Back of Head Damage: Palm Heel to Kidneys Damage: Elbow to Face Damage: Elbow to point of chin Damage: Elbow to Heart-Solar Plexus Damage: Elbow to Ribs Damage: Elbow to Groin Damage: Ridge Hand to Solar Plexus Damage: Ridge Hand to Kidneys Note: This can be done with the regular ridge hand, or with the bottom fist as shown here, which gives more power, for the ridge hand can be damaging to the thumb if the hand is not trained well. Ridge Hand to Back of Head Damage: Ridge Hand to Side of Neck Damage: Ridge Hand to Bridge of Nose Damage: Punch to Groin Damage: Punch to Throat Damage: Punch to Ribs Damage: Punch to Back of Neck Damage: One-Finger Eye Strike Damage: Tiger Claw to Throat Damage: Head Butt to the Bridge of Nose Damage: Forefinger Strike to Throat Damage: I am not showing all of the techniques you have just learned, but rather I am going to illustrate practical applications of some
