This included news and variety shows, of course, but also early dramas and comedy series. Even recorded shows have not been safe. Film recordings were disposed of, to clear storage space or make way for new equipment. Video "useful, but expensive" was frequently erased and re-used. Nobody back in the s was thinking of DVD sales. While many of the TV greats are still safe for an eternity of reruns, these 11 are either partly or completely missing. Mary Kay and Johnny Image credit: So why is it so obscure? Kinescopes were made of later episodes, to be broadcast on the west coast, but even most of these were destroyed. The Paley Center for Media owns one full episode from , but only a few fragments of later episodes remain. John Stearns went on to produce comedy variety shows. His wife, Mary Kay Stearns, did very little else on television " though to the best of our knowledge she is still alive, aged Rodale, head of a multimillion-dollar publishing empire and one of the very first promoters of organic food, appeared on the popular late-night show at the height of his fame, having just appeared on the cover of The New York Times Magazine. Such is its reputation that they believe that they were there to witness history. The Avengers The first season of this classic British spy series now seems like an oddity. David Keel, who teamed up with Steed to solve crimes. Of the 26 episodes produced that first season, only two still exist " including one that only features Keel, with no sign of Steed. Some of the other episodes were broadcast live in the UK but never committed to film. A for Andromeda The British Broadcasting Corporation produced countless hours of television in the s and s " and wiped over most of it to save space. Recently, thanks to a public appeal, they have been filling gaps in their archives. One show that is still largely missing is the science-fiction serial A for Andromeda, which made a star of Julie Christie. Only one episode is known to survive, returned to BBC by a private collector in The guest list was no less impressive: Walter Cronkite reads the CBS News You have probably seen the footage of Walter Cronkite momentarily unable to hide his sadness at the news that President Kennedy had been killed. A clip was featured in the film JFK. You might have even seen the footage of Cronkite the previous year, informing the nation of the Cuban Missile Crisis especially if you saw X-Men: Until , those two stories were the only clips deemed worthy of saving. No video footage survives. Doctor Who Probably the most sought-after missing episodes of any TV show. Although several have been retrieved, episodes are still missing. Fortunately, audio recordings exist of every episode, thanks to some fans. Media piracy is no new concept. Using these recordings, many audio adventures have been released by BBC Audio, with digitally enhanced soundtracks, and some of the original actors filling in the gaps with their narration. Search for Tomorrow This daytime soap lasted for an amazing 35 years, finally giving everyone a happy ending in Yet little survives of the most fondly remembered and highest-rated first 16 years, when it aired as a minute serial alongside its sister series, Guiding Light, before becoming a half-hour show. At the time, it was broadcast live, but from , it was pre-recorded. Live episodes were a thing of the past " until , when all copies of an episode were lost, and the cast were forced to perform it live for the first time in 16 years. Fortunately, unlike Tootsie, nobody veered too far from the script, but the episode was still something of a disaster. Other classic soap operas fared better on kinescope: This show, produced commercially, introduced the influential Cambridge Footlights comedy stars to television. Despite its significance and popularity, it lasted only 13 episodes, a mere five of which still exist in full. The Magnificent Marble Machine Only two complete episodes now exist of this celebrity game show. Marble Machine was hosted by Art James, and a shining example of 70s kitsch. In the 70s, this was all right. A significant number of Jeopardy! Do you remember any of these shows?

By Alex Flanagan December 19, 9. Whether it is overcoming adversity and beating the odds, to breaking down racial and cultural barriers or sticking together and standing up for what you believe in. Considered by many as the greatest kids movie ever. A classic film the whole family will like about the challenge and adventures of a young boy who moves into a new neighborhood and is trying to fit in by playing baseball with the other kids. Lots of laughs and life lessons about determination, drive and friendship. Many call this the best sports movie ever made. Must watch film about an underdog coach and a team that defy the odds and go to the Indiana State finals. Great movie that also teaches some baseball history. Arguably one of the best baseball movies ever made. Nominated for four Academy Awards. Make sure you have enough time for this one. It is long, running 2 hours and 18 minutes. Undersized Rudy overcomes the odds to play football for Notre Dame. This movie is timeless, a family favorite and a fun way to see Notre Dame Stadium. One of my all time favorites. Rams after he accidentally gets taken to heaven too soon by an over eager angel. Will Ferrell is hilarious in this comedy that has become a classic in our home. Fun for all members of the family. A self absorbed sports agent goes to India hoping to transform Indian cricket players into Major league baseball pitchers. Also give the kids a little bit of an education on Indian culture. Big budget Disney film based on the true story of Jim White, a down on his luck coach played by Kevin Costner, who lands a job in the poor and predominately latino city of McFarland, CA. The story of a bartender and substitute teacher in Philadelphia who despite never having played football goes to the Eagles open try outs and makes the team. A true story based on the life of Bethany Hamilton. A successful teenage surfer who loses an arm in a shark attack and refuses to quit the sport she loves. A young man struggling with the death of his Dad finds reprieve in his pet dog, Bud. An inspirational film packed with football. Starring, Laurence Fishburne and Ben Kingsley. Bobby is forced to deal with the stress and pressures of being one of the top chess players in the world, but he refuses to adapt the same approach as real life legend Bobby Fisher. We love the original one starring Ralph Macchio. The classic tale of the underdog overcoming adversity. A self absorbed Lawyer has to coach a rag tag youth hockey team as his community service. The bad news bears of pee wee football. A sweet movie for both boys and girls about believing in yourself. Sylvester Stallone stars in one of the best known sports films of all time about a small-time boxer from working-class Philadelphia. Rocky Balboa is chosen to take on the reigning world heavyweight champion. Michael Jordan plays basketball with bugs bunny, Daffy Duck and the rest of the looney toons. Kind of a silly, mindless movie that will entertain the kids. Academy Award Best Picture. The true story of two British Track stars journey to winning a gold medal in the paris Olympics. A beautiful and patriotic film. A group of misfit kids in a small town in Texas are coached soccer by a teacher from England. Long before their was American Pharaoh, their was Secretariat, still arguably the best race horse ever. Based on the true story of the triple crown winner and the family who owned him. Based on the true life events. Disney movie starring Danny Glover and Tony Danza star in this a young boys prayers are answered by 2 angels that come out of the sky and not only lead a baseball team to wins, but a life lesson about hope and courage and loyalty. Fun movie about a group of Jamaican bobsledders who dream of competing in the Winter Olympics, even though they have never seen snow. John Candy stars as the former disgraced champion tasked with coaching them. Loosely based on a true story. An unlikely horse becomes a champion and a symbol of hope for Americans during the great depression. One note, the N-word is used throughout the film to authentically represent how Robinson was spoken to. For me it was an opportunity to discuss with my children the history of the word and what it represents today. The story of a football-obsessed small town in Texas. Struggles, challenges and life lesson unfold through a story about football. The film handles subjects like alcoholism, accepting your parents, dealing with failure and taking charge of your own destiny. Academy Award winner for best documentary feature. Tells the story of the struggles of a high school football team in Memphis trying to win after many losing seasons. The film earned high critical acclaim by many. A feel good movie. We should all watch this one as a reminder that school is more important than sports. Based on a true story of a basketball coach played by Samuel L. Jackson who shuts down his teams championship season when their grades slip. A film about how sports can bring people together. The most epic and legendary surf film ever.
