To abolish war, racism, hate and poverty, rockers have created anthems that have moved people to contribute money, take to the streets or just live in harmony. Songs that targeted the Vietnam War have been updated to address new conflicts; music that tackled hunger and discrimination are still relevant. Here is our list of the Top 11 Songs for a Better World. Originally recorded by the Temptations, Motown never intended to release War as a single. Well, that was a touchy time, and that song had some implications. It was a message record, an opinion record, and stepped beyond being sheer entertainment. It could become a smash record, and that was fine, but if it went the other way, it could kill the career of whoever the artist was. We rehearsed for a while, and then it was: We did it "one take. And you see dead bodies lying side by side with the live ones. We ran the song down once. The next thing you knew they ran the tape back and it was goosebump time. It was an amazing experience. By , Marvin Gaye had tired of performing his signature love songs. The Life of Marvin Gaye. My attitude had to be firm. When would the war stop? Brown told Songfacts that the idea for the tune came while traveling in Japan. But you pick them up and take them over and drop them in a country, like India or Pakistan, guess what? British-born folk-rocker Cat Stevens wrote Peace Train, a song he hoped would motivate people to live in harmony: It ended every show that I did and was quite a showstopper. It was a very important song for me because it stated one of the big goals of my life, which was heading straight for that peace. As a member of humanity and as a Muslim, this is my contribution to the call for a peaceful solution.

Here are 21 songs of hope for humanity, songs for a better world, and inspiration to make the world a better place.

I wanted to find some inspiration about the world and making it a better place. I wanted to hear some musical positivity. However, we each have a responsibility to this planet and we each have the ability to make the world a better place. Music can empower, strengthen, and inspire us. It can help us deal with difficult and distressing emotions and allow us to feel and connect at great depth. We can use it to celebrate some of our greatest moments or to motivate us to make stuff happen and get things done. Not only can we use music to get things done in our own lives, but we can also use it to get things done on a greater scale. Music is often used solely for entertainment purposes but some artists have chosen to use their musical platforms to highlight the issues in the world, the need for action and change, and the possibility and importance of making the world a better place. Here are songs that are not only good in quality, but also good and strong in their messages. Songs of hope for humanity, songs for a better world, and inspiration to make the world a better place. Could this song be a shout-out to you too? It is powerful, empowering, beautiful, candid, spiritual, and filled with purpose. It speaks to me on such a profound level and I love its message. I could listen to it all day. Bob Marley and his message of "One Love? The collaboration of so many artists coming together for Haiti was wonderful and the song has a great message and reminds us that "we are the world. In this song, Franti reminds us the importance of not giving up despite the difficult realities on this planet and tugs at the change that is possible if we do not give up. This song recognizes the divisions that exist between us based on religions and wars, and the humanity inherent in us all. And this planet could use not only love and recognition of our humanity, but also love in spite of and because of our humanity. The song asks a good question, "how do you measure a year in the life? His music is full of purpose and filled with messages to make the world a better place. He has many songs I like, but this one is one of my favorites from him.
