But when he sees that the girl has taken to h he offers her a job as a companion to the girl who has apparently scared away several companions so far. She still hopes for a comeback to the ballet. Vulcan says some harsh truths, that she will never bee able to dance the big roles anymore. She still refuses, but then she overhears her friend and ballet instructor say much the same thing. So she starts as a companion and a sort of physiotherapist to the little girl. After a month Vulcan, all of a sudden, asks her out to dinner and dancing. The night takes on a magical glow and when he proposes she says yes. So fare so sweet. The next morning she tells he little girl, who is delighted that Birdie will be staying forever. Enter the evil housekeeper, who tells the h that Vulcan only married her for the little girls sake and what not. Birdie first gets worried but lets it slide, convinced of the H love. At breakfast he still acts affectionate and the h ask if he truly loves her. But the answer makes her heart plummet. He says that he needs a hostess and a mother for the girl, oh, and some heirs while their at it. So they get married. The wedding night is fade to black, she seemed to enjoy it though, judging by the afterthoughts. Some time later the H takes the h to meet the Romanies. There, to her surprise, they have a Romaine wedding ceremony. Vulcan takes her to a flower decorated caravan and they make fade to black love. The h is ashamed to have given in so easily and she avoids the H after that. Then, at a fiesta like event, Vulcan says he will set her free. She still loves him and, after agonizing for the whole fiestaesk party, she decides to be brave and tell him: The only thing that putt me off a bit was the heroes name, Vulcan.
