Criney is a book you will read to your children over and over again. It is destined to become a favorite book for all children. I have read the book to each of my grand children and witnessed the captivating Criney take them from the whiney times to the best times.

Her godmother was Darlene Love [5] and her honorary aunt was Aretha Franklin , [6] [7] whom she met at age 8 or 9 when her mother took her to a recording studio. After the Newark riots , the family moved to a middle-class area in East Orange , New Jersey, when she was four. She appeared in Seventeen [18] and became one of the first women of color to grace the cover of the magazine. Davis was impressed and immediately offered a worldwide recording contract which Houston signed. Some producers had to pass on the project because of prior commitments. Rolling Stone magazine praised Houston, calling her "one of the most exciting new voices in years" while The New York Times called the album "an impressive, musically conservative showcase for an exceptional vocal talent". In the UK, the dance-funk "Someone for Me", which failed to chart in the country, was the first single while " All at Once " was in such European countries as the Netherlands and Belgium , where the song reached the top 5 on the singles charts, respectively. She also began performing on late-night television talk shows, which were not usually accessible to unestablished black acts. She was then an opening act for singer Jeffrey Osborne on his nationwide tour. At the time, MTV had received harsh criticism for not playing enough videos by black, Latino, and other racial minorities while favoring white acts. Many critics complained that the material was too similar to her previous album. Rolling Stone said, "the narrow channel through which this talent has been directed is frustrating". Houston became the first woman in music history to debut at number one on the Billboard albums chart, and the first artist to enter the albums chart at number one in both the US and UK, while also hitting number one or top ten in dozens of other countries around the world. During her modeling days, she refused to work with agencies who did business with the then-apartheid South Africa. The show was a benefit concert that raised a quarter of a million dollars for the United Negro College Fund. She had a private audience with President George H. Bush in the Oval Office to discuss the associated challenges. Dan Klores, a spokesman for Houston, explained: She sang live, but the microphone was turned off. It was a technical decision, partially based on the noise factor. This is standard procedure at these events. As a result, she was named to the Red Cross Board of Governors. Unforgettable", and the performance ranked No. VH1 listed the performance as one of the greatest moments that rocked TV. HBO descrambled the concert so that it was free for everyone to watch. After a three-year courtship, the two were married on July 18, Brown would go on to have several run-ins with the law, including some jail time. Houston played Rachel Marron, a star who is stalked by a crazed fan and hires a bodyguard to protect her. USA Today listed it as one of the 25 most memorable movie moments of the last 25 years in The Washington Post said Houston was "doing nothing more than playing Houston," but added that she came out "largely unscathed if that is possible in so cockamamie an undertaking". Rolling Stone said it is "nothing more than pleasant, tasteful and urbane". Her concerts, movie, and recording grosses made her the third highest-earning female entertainer of 1994, just behind Oprah Winfrey and Barbra Streisand according to Forbes magazine. Houston played the lead character Savannah Jackson, a TV producer in love with a married man. She chose the role because she saw the film as "a breakthrough for the image of black women because it presents them both as professionals and as caring mothers". The New York Times said: Original Soundtrack Album , was written and produced by Babyface. Though he originally wanted Houston to record the entire album, she declined. The album debuted at No. She plays a gospel-singing wife of a pastor Courtney B. The San Francisco Chronicle said Houston "is rather angelic herself, displaying a divine talent for being virtuous and flirtatious at the same time", and she

"exudes gentle yet spirited warmth, especially when praising the Lord in her gorgeous singing voice". Houston also duetted with gospel legend Shirley Caesar. The album sold six million copies worldwide and scored hit singles with " I Believe in You and Me " and " Step by Step ", becoming the largest selling gospel album of all time. Some critics, such as that of USA Today, noted the presence of her emotional depth, [] while The Times said, "To hear Houston going at full throttle with the 35 piece Georgia Mass Choir struggling to keep up is to realise what her phenomenal voice was made for". Their goal was "to show aspects of the lives of African-Americans that have not been brought to the screen before" while improving how African-Americans are portrayed in film and television. Houston was initially offered the role of Cinderella in , but other projects intervened. Houston wanted the story told with dignity and honor. Live from Washington, D. Though originally slated to be a greatest hits album with a handful of new songs, recording sessions were so fruitful that a new full-length studio album was released. The album debuted at number thirteen, its peak position, on the Billboard chart. Blige , Tina Turner , and Cher. The Greatest Hits was released worldwide. The double disc set peaked at number five in the United States, reaching number one in the United Kingdom. Included on the album were four new songs: Just Whitney and personal struggles Though Houston was seen as a "good girl" with a perfect image in the s and early s, her behavior had changed by and She was often hours late for interviews, photo shoots and rehearsals, she canceled concerts and talk-show appearances, and there were reports of erratic behavior. Charges were later dropped against them, [] but rumors of drug usage by Houston and Brown would continue to surface. Her publicist cited throat problems as the reason for the cancellation. In his book The Big Show: Although the company was started by her father to manage her career, it was actually run by company president Kevin Skinner. Although Skinner tried to claim otherwise, John Houston never appeared in court.

Because you know what? It so totally just is. Because I love mine. It completes me in a way that nothing else has in the past. But, you know, of my things, this is really truly my all time most favoritest not counting my cell phone which as a human, I really just could not live with out. There are just so many things to love about the iPad. Most importantly, autocorrect recognizes the words crap and douche. My cell phone constantly changes those definitive members of the English language to clap and touch making my response to BFFs recent man troubles read, "clap he is such a touch, eff him". Makes me sound like a clap head touch myself. When I arrived, cell phone was deader than a door nail thanks to texting and tweeting in the airport , but happy little iPad? And they make you smarter and more popular and prettier and more fragrant too. All three of them enjoy it equally and it certainly comes in handy educationally. But he gets bored with the flash cards, and some days he and I both want to toss those never ending things in the fireplace. So this mixes it up a little. Same with 2 and his sight words. But our most favorite thing to do with the iPad is downloading books. So our second favorite thing, right behind playing Angry Birds and Fruit Ninja, is downloading books. Recently, Patuto Press the make apps and stuff contacted me to review one of their iPad book apps for kids. There really are tons of options! So, expect more app reviews soon.

Review of the Essential Drucker Drucker, one of the most eminent management thinkers of our times, needs no introduction. His works apparently do need introduction. As he himself notes in the preface to this work, "my editors and I have been asked again and again- where do I start to read Drucker? Which of his writings are essential? Management as a function sprung up out of Second World War, underwent rapid strides and has transformed the very structure of society. I would not like to go into details of this sharp transformation, much of which is widely known anyway. Drucker has witnessed this change as it unfolded and assumed its present shape. His views do not just reflect the ideas of time, but have actively helped shape many of these. Most of these ideas have been widely disseminated and accepted. As a result, a reader is just as likely to come across views that he may find commonplace, as is he likely to find views that are profound. I reckon that is a risk one assumes when attempting to present an overview of work spanning six decades, during which the ideas that first appeared incisive, if not radical, get accepted and become routine. Therefore, the reader must account for the context in which an idea was originally expressed, or else risk to be occasionally disappointed. The book has three separate, but inter-related segments dealing with function of organizational management per se, individual in a society of organizations and society in general. What do we mean by management? What are its dimensions? What is the rationale for the existence of a business organization? What are the trends in the growth and evolution of business organizations? What has been the impact of growth of non-profit organizations on business and what lessons do they hold for it? What are new paradigms in management? What do we mean by MBO? Is the concept of management different from entrepreneurship? What does it take to set up and manage a new venture? These are some of the issues that author raises in the first section. Drucker defines management in terms of certain "essential principles". According to him, management is about human beings. Its task is to make people capable of joint performance, to make their strengths effective and their weaknesses irrelevant. Without such commitment there is no enterprise, only a mob. The ever-raging conflict between different generations or between common people and fundamentalist organizations, et al is sufficient to substantiate my view. While the research conducted so far has put forward some models like nurturant-task leadership, mother leadership, etc, it has not made any significant impact. In my personal opinion, we need to focus on creating ambient atmosphere for competition and growth and leave it to the organizations to come up with models appropriate for them, rather than lose sleep over cultural integration. According to Drucker, management has only two basic functions- marketing and innovation. Drucker laments that till now we have witnessed only marketing rhetoric and not its practice. In my view, a major reason why it has not materialized is that it organizations, like the biological species that govern them, tend to perpetuate themselves. Therefore, the first attempt is to somehow manage with a minimum change. This, of course, is soon expected to be a thing of past since organizational environ is changing at mind-boggling pace. Not unexpectedly, therefore, he is at his best when explaining how to establish and use objectives. Firstly, objectives must be derived from "what our business is, what it will be and what it should be. Without action commitment, they are meaningless. Secondly, objectives must be operational i. Thirdly, they must make it possible to concentrate resources and efforts. Finally, there must be multiple objectives rather than a single objective. Search for one right objective is harmful. Objectives are needed in all areas on which the survival of an organization depends. Without schedule, no airline can operate. It will be all chaos. Yet, whenever there is a need for change, it has to be made. In the chapter on social responsibilities of business, Drucker mentions that first responsibility for an organization is to perform the specific function for which it has been created, and for the business, it translates I to earning profits. However, he also mentions that "the fact of increasing income equality is quite clear. Yet the popular impression is one of rapidly increasing inequality. This is a dangerous illusion". He does not adduce any evidence in substantiation of his claim, which is quite in contrast to the evidence available. Perhaps, it is an indirect hint to Corporates on where to focus their propaganda in their own interest! As regards, investment in human resource development, Drucker believes that firms must "waste as little effort as possible on improving incompetent. Most organizations try to concentrate on making an incompetent person into a low mediocrity. The energy and resources and time should instead go in to making a competent person into a star performer. The book has an uninhibited bias towards free capitalism and against all the remnants of socialism. Drucker believes that there is absolutely no role for planning in an economy. It appears strange especially since a proponent of MBO makes this recommendation. What is good for a corporate is bad for a government! Further, Drucker opines that modern governments everywhere, especially since WW-II, have become huge welfare bureaucracies. And yet, in every developed country, society is becoming sicker than healthier". Lets contrast this with the view of Noam Chomsky "Take it from the needy and give it to the greedy", Class Warfare , who demonstrates that USA has always had quite low social expenditures and has been reducing them very sharply since The disparity between the views of two stalwarts, one a champion of free capitalism and another of anarchism "true democracy" , is too large to be bridgeable. Therefore, it is best resolved by everyone on the basis of his or her own leanings. However, I will like to make a refrain that all that has been the result of socialism is not necessarily evil. To quote Chomsky again- "Now they feel that they can rollback the entire social contract which developed through large-scale popular struggle over a century and a half, which did sort of soften the edges of predatory private tyranny. If Corporates believes that they marginalize people to any extent for example- war on Iraq despite widespread protest by masses world over without inviting backlash somewhere down the line, their trust is misplaced. It might end up triggering the same revolution that Drucker cautions against. It results from senile decay, from bankruptcy of ideas and institutions, from failure of self-renewal. But, the trigger here is placed in the hands of new powers, the real governments, the corporations and it is them that need to be sensitized. It is different from his other works in the sense that he provides only his ideas and not the thought process, reasoning or evidence that have shaped those ideas. Perhaps, the author felt the constraint of book size. Those readers who are interested in going into details may either use this book as a handbook- a sort of key to his works or straight way lay their hands on his other works. Selections from management works of Drucker".

For the last couple of months, Google AdSense has dominated forums, discussions and newsletters all over the Internet. Already, there are tales of fabulous riches to be made and millions made by those who are just working from home. It seems that Google AdSense have already dominated the internet marketing business and is now considered the easiest way to making money online. The key to success with AdSense is the placing of ads on pages that are receiving high traffic for high demand keywords. The higher the cost-per-click to the advertiser, the more you will receive per click from your site. Obviously, it does not pay to target low cost-per-click keywords and place them on pages that do not receive hits. With all the people getting online and clicking away everyday, it is no wonder why Google AdSense has become an instant hit. But then, when they get the idea that they are actually earning more money that way, all doubts and skepticism is laid to rest. There are two major, and clever, factors that some successful webmaster and publishers are learning to blend together in order to make money easier using AdSense. Targeting high traffic pages on your website. If you check on your logs, you will discover that many of your visitors are taking advantage of the free affiliate marketing resources and ebooks that you are offering on your site. In simple words, your ads are working effectively and are generating more clicks. It also means more money for you. Placing AdSense links on pages that are producing little, or better yet, no profit. By placing AdSense on a free resources page, you will reduce the amount of potential customers being lost to other sites. Tricky, but effective nonetheless. When learned to work effectively, these two factors are actually a good source of producing a minimal amount of revenue from a high traffic page. Many people are using this strategy to pick up some extra and cash with AdSense. This is also especially rewarding to informational sites that focus their efforts on delivering powerful affiliate link free content to their visitors. Now they can gain a monetary return on their services. With the many techniques that people are now learning on how to make the easiest money by their AdSense, it is not surprising that Google is trying everything to update and polish their AdSense in order to maintain their good image. The possibility of adding is 2nd tier in AdSense is not impossible. With all the people spending more time in their AdSense now and still more getting into this line of marketing, there is no doubt about the many new improvements yet to be made. Imagine the smiles on the faces of the webmasters and publishers all around the world if ever they sign up for sub-affiliates and double or even triple the amount that they are already earning. The one particularly handy money-making feature that is available with AdSense now is the ability to filter out up to urls. These gives webmasters the option to block out low value offers from their pages as well as competitors to their websites. With Google AdSense, the possibilities are limitless. Yet there is also the possibility of someone taking advantage of the easy money process that this internet marketing is doing. If you think more about it, these negative factors may force Google to break down and thrash AdSense in the process. If that happens, people would have to go back to the old ways of internet marketing that does not make money online as easy as AdSense. For now, however, Google AdSense is here to stay. As long as there are people wanting to earn some easy cash online just using their talents, the future ahead is looking good. Besides with all the strict guidelines that Google is enforcing over AdSense, it will take awhile for the AdSense privileges to be spammed and even terminated.

Why Marry a Russian or Ukrainian Woman? Many men in the US and other countries venture into the unknown world of Russia, the Ukraine and other East Block countries to find their Russian bride or Ukrainian wife. Many of these women still hold the traditional notion of success for them to be defined by having a family and a loving husband. Over the years this has become harder and harder to find in the West, as woman in the West has taken on their corporate roles and deviated from the traditional values that so many men It does not only stop there. Women from the East love to take care of themselves, their children and their family. I can say this from personal experience that I see in my wife, how she puts hours of effort into taking care of herself, just as she does for taking care of our child. But most importantly, she loves doing it! There is a beautiful union when East meets West in a marriage. Men from the West knows how to provide of a family and they love playing the role that a man can play in the traditional sense of a husband Another reason many men seek out to marry a women from the Ukraine, Russia, Belarus, Latvia or other East Block countries, are the level of commitment men get from these women. Once you meet a Russian lady and you have mutually confirmed your love for each other, you will have zero doubt about weather she is "with you" or not. There is an undeniable level of commitment that you WILL experience with them, something so unique. Just as regular long distance relationships, International Relationships lend themselves to similar challenges initially, but because you two will find a very deep and exotic love in each other, you will commit to do whatever it takes to "be together". This creates a very intimate commitment that expands love to a new level. Because you will have to go through an immigration process in order to get her a visa prior to her coming over to your country, this will make things extra difficult Prior to the internet men all over the world have corresponded by postal mail with their Russian darlings abroad. Now the internet has made this so much easier. As you will go through the process of finding your Ukrainian or Russian wife abroad, you will surf the net and be inundated with thousands of women and hundreds of different services. I suggest to all my clients to stay clear from these "romance traps". These services usually will introduce you to hundreds of women in a night club setting and you can forget about any personal attention to what "you" want to see in your wife. In addition most of these services will introduce you to women in "large cities", which from my experience is not the best choice, but we will discuss this in the next section. There is no way around it. Meeting your Russian wife or Ukrainian Bride will probably materialize by using a dating agency, or as they are known in the Russian world, "Marriage Agency". These companies will offer translations services for your email to your girl and they will translate her reply for you from Russian to English again. Although this is a very valuable service, I have to reiterate that the "big" introduction agencies overcharge for this service. Be very aware of this. Most of my clients are very happy with my proposal to use smaller agencies in smaller cities, since they will tailor services towards what you need, thus only paying for what you use Another aspect I encourage my clients to consider it weather they want a wife with small town traditional values or a wife from a big city. I always emphasize to seriously consider small town ladies before big city women. Just as any place in the world, small town women tend to have more traditional values. They tend to have closer knit families as well as much more knowledgeable of how to get by when money is tight. This character aspect can be very beautiful to see, especially since their Western sisters seem to have lost much of this ability over the years. There is one small drawback to small town or smaller city women. It is the flights! Yes, you will find there are much fewer flights to the smaller cities than there is to the major ones. Having said this, by using smaller agencies in smaller cities will be a huge cost saving to you over the durations that you correspond to your future Ukrainian or Russian wife. The visa process could take between months, so these correspondence fees and telephone bills can add up. When do you want a "big city" wife? One of my clients values the intellectual mind of his wife very much. Since his whole family has been in the medical profession and he is also, this simply was very important to him. He wanted a wife that had a Masters Degree in something concrete. So, he ended up marrying a lady from a "big city" with 2 Masters Degrees. The former USSR states has been divided into 15 independent countries. Of these I really suggest only two countries to my clients: The Ukraine and Latvia. Of course this should not stop you from looking at others countries if you so choose, but both the Ukraine and Latvia has made great progress in their democratic development as well as their vision to join the European Union. My favorite is the Ukraine, maybe because my wife is from there, but also because it is possible to walk into the Ukraine with your blue American passport without a visa. You will also see that there is a huge single female population in the Ukraine In addition, Russia has some talks about revoking the Russian Citizenship of Russian women who marry foreigners. Russia has picked up on their crem-del-a-crem marrying men from abroad and seem to want to take a stand against this. But then again, this might not be important to you. Immigration As I mentioned earlier, you will experience a new level of commitment from the women you meet in the East - there is no doubt about this! If you have a "long distance relationship" with someone in your same country, it is difficult, but it is extra difficult for those who have to go through the process of immigration before they can be together. Your love will grow so much stronger over the months, but there will always be a small part of you that will wonder: You will be expected to provide copies of your letters, phone records, your bank accounts, etc The immigration process is not for the fainthearted, but it will pay back in a life long adventurous journey with your Ukrainian or Russian love. Out there in the world there exist a stigma about marrying a Russian women. A stigma about the all so well known phrase "mail order bride". The fact of the matter is that the concept of "mail order bride" does not exist. Once you go through the immigration process you will learn how this is NOT "anything mail order". For starters immigration requires that you have at least physically met once before applying for your visa. There is nothing instant about this kind of love. Often my clients are faced resistance from their friends and family because their friends and family simply does not understand the courage it takes to go and find your love abroad. In addition it is honest ignorance from their family and friends who does not understand what it takes to marry a foreign national. There is no way around this. To all my clients I emphasize this over and over and over. It must "feel" right". Some men make the mistake to believe that the "love will grow". If you are not in love when you meet, it is very unlikely it will grow in the future. There are some aspects of finding your love abroad that is exactly the same as dating a local woman and being in love is imperative. In Closing Finding your soul mate in the same city as you is difficult. Finding your love abroad, can make certain things much easier, but it introduces other aspects of challenge to the game. Having said that, the happiness can me blissful and ecstatic. A happiness we all deserve.

What Color Is Your Parachute? Whether you are a fresh graduate, never finished a degree, or are searching for your deeper calling after many years of work, this is the book for you. You may need a temporary job, but the book strongly suggests a major life-changing one! There are two types of job searches: The former requires the usual resume-matched-to-the-employer-formula. The latter begins with a weekend of honest soul-searching and really deep thought. The actual life-changing job hunt may take much longer. You must have adequate reserves of energy and determination to go on this hunt. But the result of the long search is well worth it. Because the search for the "job of your dreams" is really the search for your true happiness? What are you looking for? You may choose to embark on a life-changing job hunt for the following reasons: The best reason, though, is when you are searching for your mission in life. The advantage of doing the life-changing job hunt is obvious: It requires time, effort and a lot of deep thought. Looking for a Job 1. Write your resume well. There are several resume-writing resources enumerated in the book for your easy reference. You may also ask your friends who are known for writing excellent resumes for assistance. Your resume should be a summary of relevant work accomplishments, citing what tasks you were responsible for, what obstacle you had to overcome and what you did to solve the problem and what the results of your actions translated into in terms of profits, etc. Go where the employers go: There are other ways to find a job than on the Internet. Study the phone book, or look around your neighborhood. It is still always best to be referred to an employer by a good friend or colleague. Find their job ad on the Internet or on their web site. E-mail your resume immediately. Make a follow-up phone call within the week to see if both copies were received, and to inquire about an appointment for an interview. If you do get interviewed, send a thank-you note immediately after the interview. No one owes you a job. You have to go out and look for it. Your success is directly proportionate to your effort. Be willing to change your strategy. Ask successful job hunters what they did. Treat your job-hunt as a full time job. Remember that the shortest job hunt still lasts between two and eighteen weeks. Persistence is the name of the game. You will not find the same exact job you had before, so redefine yourself. Forget what is "available" and go for the job you really want. Tell everyone to keep a lookout for that type of job opening. If you own an answering machine, tailor your opening message to communicate your ongoing job hunt. Go after several organizations at once. Go after any place that interests you regardless of whether there are vacancies or not. Concentrate on organizations that employ 20 people or less. Go see 4 potential employers a day. If you are using the telephone, call up 40 a day. Use the phone and the Yellow Pages to call up places of interest and ask if they are hiring. Go to places where you would like to work and knock on their doors. Look for full-time, part-time, contract jobs or temporary jobs and other types of jobs. Forget about your handicap, whether real or imagined. Treat everyone you meet with courtesy. Write a thank-you note to those who gave you their time that day. Finding Your Dream Job How do you identify your dream job? What are my transferable skills? What are my fields of fascination? Draw a picture or in this case, The Flower diagram we use in Parachute, to have a picture of your new career. Give it a name. Go find a person who is already doing it. Interview that person for information, to find out what the job is really like. Research organizations in your area. Network and seek out the persons who have the power to hire you. Use your contacts to get to this person and show him how you stand out among others. Take no short cuts, if you need to re-train or go back to school to get your dream job, do it. Do not put all your eggs in one basket. The 10 Commandments for Job Interviews 1. Go after small organizations, those with employees. Ask everyone you know to keep a look out for your specific job opening. Do your homework on the organization before going there. Identify the person with the power to hire you and use your contacts to see this person. Ask for only 20 minutes of their time and keep to your word. Go to the interview to see if this organization suits your values, your agenda and your life. When answering questions keep your answers down to 20 seconds or two minutes, max. Approach them as a resource person who can offer a service rather than a job beggar. Always send a thank-you note the very next day after an interview. Little things may turn them off such as personal hygiene and lack of self-confidence. The Seven Secrets of Salary Negotiation 1. Never discuss salary until the end of the interviewing process, when they have definitely said they will hire you. The purpose of salary negotiation is to find out the most that an employer is willing to pay to get you. Never be the first to mention a salary figure. Do your homework on how much you will need per month. Do careful research on salaries in your field or in that organization. Define a range the employer may have in mind, and a range for yourself. Bring the salary negotiation to a close. Request a letter of agreement or an employment contract. Get it in writing. The Final Word Part of the search for happiness and a deeper meaning in our lives goes hand in hand with recognizing our relationship with God.
