*SUSPIRIA. WHEN Life weeps solemn tears o'er Love's vain wrack When Faith the soul hath i-,ed the corse of Form
When all our wing 'd desires are beaten back Like wearied birds that buffet with the storm.*

Press pack Education The Armagh Rhymers have been working in both English and Irish language schools throughout Ireland for over 40 years. It is our philosophy that every young person has a right to experience live music, drama and the arts as part of their education. We encourage a high level of participation from the students in drama, music and storytelling. A major focus of our work is to promote tolerance and understanding through education. We can also tailor projects to cover specific topics. Our projects on the Irish Famine and the Viking period in Ireland also received critical acclaim. Our performances help the students develop music appreciation, confidence through performance and important social skills. Most importantly our shows are fun as well as educational. We also work extensively in special needs education. Here our performances encourage students of every ability to express themselves and participate in activities. We put a great emphasis on social engagement, identity and working within a group. All my children were eager participants. Thank you, please come again. Children were enthused and engaged! Great that it was interactive and there were lots of opportunities for children to participate. Rhymers had a lovely way with the young children. Thanks for a great morning! Teachers were impressed with the range of activities, the maximum participation and the content for learning. Rhymers had wonderful rapport with the children. A day they will remember for a long time. Rhymers had excellent awareness of disabilities and working caringly and sympathetically with the young people to get the very best from them. The Enormous Turnip K. A very polished piece of storytelling and totally hilarious. Children will love to retell and illustrate the story. Brian Boru and the Vikings K. Great for cultural heritage as we probably all have a little Viking in us! The Giants Garden K. A beautiful theme with lots of opportunities for follow-up work in literacy and art. The Old Mummies Show K. Amazing characters, masks and costumes. A great musical sing-along and a real chance for the children to join in. Very inspiring for artistic follow-up. Myth and Mask K. Younger Children love this action packed presentation full of opportunities for participation, music and movement. The Navan Dragon K. Lovely storytelling featuring King Connor of Navan Fort, his jewels and the quest for a solution to a very tricky problem. Very stimulating for follow-up in a wide range of subjects " geography, the Celts, mythology, art and literacy. Great opportunities for children to participate and an inspiring story for follow-up in Mythology and literacy.
