If you are a serious collector of silver plated items your opinion may vary, so I encourage you to examine the photos carefully. Nothing major to report on this Spoon in the way of scratches, dent and scuffs. The back of this spoon is inscribed "U. Photos Please view all of the photos made available here as most of your questions can be answered by simply examining these photos for yourself. The photos are of the item that you are bidding on, they are not stock photos derived from some other source. Any relevant defects will be visible in the photos, so please examine them in large size. On occasion we will use tripods, clamps, rulers, rods and other props during the photographing of an item, none of these "props" are included in the sale, they are intended to show scale and give the best presentation of the item for your viewing. Shipping All items are packed and will be shipped on our next shipping day. We typically ship every day except holidays. All others will be invoiced for appropriate shipping and handling charges. We are glad to combine shipping whenever possible. Please feel free to request combined shipping or simply pay for your items and we will refund an appropriate amount for excess shipping charges. Batteries Unless the listing specifically says that batteries are included, you should not expect to receive batteries with any item listed. If batteries are included the shipping price will increase dramatically to allow for proper shipping of these items. It is also worth mentioning that batteries are heavy and therefore drive up the cost of shipping anyway. Electronics Virtually everything runs on, or contains some sort of electronics today. Please understand that I do my best to test electronic devices whenever I can. Electronics will quit working whenever they quit working. Every time you apply power to any electronic device it could fail. If the description says that it is working, that means that it was in fact working when I powered it up and I will disclose in the description every test that has been run, or whatever history I know about the device. That is as far as I can go, I am not an expert in the field and can not certify that anything will work for any given length of time. Vintage Items Vintage items are old and you should not expect them to function as they did when they were new. Every effort is made to test these items, but we are not experts with each and every item. If the listing does not explicitly state that any part of the item works, you should assume that it does not. In many cases Vintage items are intended for use as display pieces only. Expecting them to function as new is not a realistic expectation. Everything that has been inspected will be discussed in the listing, and every effort will be made to ensure complete inspections. Tarnish is one of the tricks people will use to conceal damage from view when trying to sell an item. I would rather show you exactly what you are getting so you will not be disappointed when you receive the item. You should be able to see that these are color additions and not a part of the piece. If you see some bright spot or dark spot in the item it is likely to be that type of reflection. If there is pitting, scratching, or spotting of any kind I try to photograph it so you can inspect it while reviewing the photos. In every case I research the patterns and try to identify them for you. That is not always possible and I would rather leave that information off than misinform you by calling something the wrong pattern. Absolutely NO other payment methods are accepted, so please do not ask. Questions If you have questions about any item, ask before you bid. After a sale is complete it becomes a big hassle for everyone involved if the item was not what you thought it was. Although I do my best to describe everything honestly and accurately, you may know more about the item than I do, and it is certainly easier to get things cleared up before the completion of the sale. International Buyers Shipping is now available to many countries as listed and provided by the Global Shipping Program. It is your responsibility as a buyer to provide a complete, accurate and deliverable address. You must also understand that shipping times will vary based upon customs holds and delays, you must wait for your delivery to clear customs. Returns are accepted, but you will be responsible for shipping the item to and from your location, as well as any associated fees, taxes and penalties assessed by any governmental or controlling entity involved in the shipment and delivery of the item being returned. Please be certain that you understand and accept responsibility for any and all Value Added Taxes and any and all other taxes, fees, and penalties levied by your government. Under no circumstances will your order be marked as a gift, so please do not request this.

Thanks to the "date letter" any piece of British sterling silver can be exactly dated. Old Sheffield Plate and Electroplated silver are not subject to this practice and the regulation issued by the authorities had the main objective of preventing possible frauds by unscrupulous sellers of plated ware. The best-known initiative is the prohibition effective from c. 1830. Elkington was forced to change its mark in of stamping plated wares with the "crown", to avoid misunderstanding with the symbol identifying the Sheffield Assay Office. The absence of an official dating system makes it difficult to date silver plated wares. An approximate date can be determined by examining: Elkington deleted the "crown" from its mark in 1830. In this case, being known the date letters of Elkington, we can date exactly the two marks. That in the left with the crown is 1830. That on the right without the crown is 1831. The "LD" indicates that the piece was made after that date. The "LTD" indicates that the piece was made after that date. In this case the date is July 26, 1830. This is not the date of manufacture of the piece popular model continued to be manufactured for many years but signifies that it was made after this date. In this case the number was registered in 1830. Much of its production was exported, especially to the United States. The piece can reasonably be dated c. 1830. These numbers were stamped on each piece usually on the bottom. Having a catalog this number can be useful to date a piece. They identify the metal alloy used as base metal for electro-deposition of silver. Oddly I never found a "B" for Birmingham. The same number was printed in the illustrated catalogues so that retailers could reorder the item without any confusion. Never assume these numbers as date of production of the piece. The workers of the plate industry were often paid on a pro rata basis. The foreman counted their output so that they could be fairly rewarded at the end of the week.

It possibly has you hunting for home remedies so you can avoid all those awful, toxic chemicals. The good news is you can make a homemade remedy from common household ingredients to get all your silver clean and shiny. Gather the Ingredients Start by laying out an old towel or cloth on a flat work surface, such as the kitchen or dining table or kitchen countertop. Have a tablespoon handy for measuring the salt and baking soda. The Prep Work Boil the cup of water in a pan on the stove. If you have a microwave, you can heat it there for 1 minute on high, but use caution to avoid getting it too hot, as you can seriously burn yourself. Cut a sheet of tinfoil to line the bottom of the bowl, shiny side up. Add one tablespoon of baking soda and 1 tablespoon of white salt to the bottom of the bowl atop the foil. When the vinegar mixes with the baking soda, it begins to fizz. Thoroughly mix the vinegar and the dry ingredients until they dissolve. The Waiting Stage Add the hot water to the mixture in the bowl. The only thing you have to do is turn them over with tongs to get full exposure, as the chemistry and makeup of the different ingredients combined with the tinfoil do all the hard work for you. Let the spoons sit in the mixture from 2 minutes to an hour, depending on how tarnished they are. Then remove one spoon at a time, dry and buff it with the polishing cloth, which should remove any remaining tarnish. You can also add the spoons to a pan of boiling water on the stove, after adding 3 tablespoons baking soda and a crumpled ball of aluminum foil. Remove when the tarnish dissipates. White Toothpaste Another method for cleaning silver starts with a tube of white toothpaste. All you need to do is coat the spoons, rubbing as you work, with a bit of toothpaste. Let the toothpaste dry, and then wash the spoons in warm soapy water. Buff and polish dry. You can also use the toothbrush with the warm soapy water to remove the toothpaste before drying.

Silver Plated Spoons will normally sell from $1 to $ Very few will exceed $ Very few will exceed $ If a spoon is NOT marked sterling or if it does not have legitimate European silver marks, it is MOST likely silver plated.

Since most of the inquiries I have received have to do with " What is my spoon worth? Cartoon character spoons, advertising spoons, presidents Roger Bros. There is not a large market for modern spoons. The date is when the company was founded. These spoons are silverplated, usually of poor quality and are very very common. Prices in antique stores Ebay will vary greatly. Most general line antique dealers are not familiar with souvenir spoons and some will often price them at unreasonable levels. Simply because you see a spoon at a certain price, that does NOT mean that it will sell at that price. I have seen spoons sit in antique shops for years, without being sold. Generally speaking, if the spoon is from a well known site which attracted lots of tourists , the chances are that there will be a lot of those spoons, thus the price will be lower. Spoons that have a state name on them ie. California, New York, Utah etc. Spoons with City Names like, Chicago, New York, Los Angeles were also designed to appeal to a wide audience, thus will tend to be less rare. Of course design, rarity and the type of sales venue also enter into the equation. Spoons that have lots of little pictures on the handles , front and back, were designed to appeal to a very large tourist audience. Most likely they achieved their objective and many were produced. These are nice pieces and make interesting displays, but they are NOT rare. As with all antiques, price is determined by many factors, the most important being supply and demand. Your personal attachment or the fact that your grandfather owned the spoon will not influence its price. The most valuable souvenir spoons are those that show an important historic event, person, subject etc. Spoons with elaborate silversmithing are of greater value, but you must learn to distinguish that from spoons that are elaborate but the product of a machine. Spoons that are extremely pretty but very rare tend to be pricey. Very old spoons from before are also more valuable especially if they are made by a famous maker. But in most cases, if they do not have legitimate English Hallmarks or famous American Silvermarks, they are of relatively little value there are forgeries of some of these marks. There are NO American souvenir spoons from before and only a few English or European souvenir spoons from before that date. Dates on souvenir spoons are usually pretty accurate, but sometimes they reflect an anniversary of a previous event wedding, etc. A date on an older spoon is NOT necessarily a good indicator of its age especially if it is before It was quite common to engrave silver with dates of previous events. Also a very old date may indicate a forgery it is easier to sell forgeries when they have dates on them. If you have a piece that you think is of greater value, please tell me about it, but please read these guidelines first. If you think that you have a very old piece , please see the pages about Victorian Era Reproductions and Large European Servers. These pages contain valuable information on Victorian era reproductions and numerous examples of pieces which are commonly thought to be centuries old.
