3: Advanced Spanish Grammar: A Self-Teaching Guide by Marcial Prado

Do you know when to use the "personal a" in Spanish? Can you correctly use augmentative and diminutive terminations? Is it more better to use active voice or passive voice?

You are expected to actively participate in class activities. It is recognized that there are many different kinds of personalities represented among students in a class, and that some are more outgoing than others. People who normally speak a lot find it easy to participate in these activities, while more quiet personalities sometimes hesitate to join in. This is quite natural and you are not expected to try to change your particular comportment. Nevertheless, it is necessary to make every effort to join in the activities, and you will find that the more you do so, the easier it becomes to speak Spanish, and as Spanish begins to become easier to speak, the more you will want to join in. The topics will change each week, and will be related to our class discussion topics. This can be a fun way to get to know the other members of the class and to understand various issues we will be discussing. You may be asked to attend some Cultural Activities during the semester. You may propose actividades that have a connection with Hispanic culture or language, and we will post them on the Actividades Culturales webpage. To receive credit, you will turn in a summary in Spanish of each Cultural Activity you attend about a page within one week of attending the activity. Summaries submitted after that will not be accepted. This portion of your grade is based primarily on assignments which you do outside of class. To achieve a satisfactory grade in any college-level class, one should expect to spend at least two hours outside of class for every hour spent in class. Therefore, you should expect to dedicate six hours per week outside of class in homework and other activities. For some assignments, you will use the exercises and activities in your textbook, and on the Supersite. Here are the Registration Instructions for Students. You will write several essays based upon real-life contexts during the semester; you will receive detailed instructions and in some cases will be able to make revisions before receiving the grade for the assignment. You will receive grading rubrics for each essay. For all of your writing assignments, you must use Microsoft Word in Spanish [with spell-check and thesaurus in Spanish], which is available in the Language Lab and on your own computer. Pick up a copy of the keyboard layout in the language lab if you misplace the one you receive in class; on the back of the keyboard layout you will find the instructions for installing it on your own computer. Ask for help if you need it. There will be many short minute grammar quizzes. None of these are "pop" quizzes; they will all be announced. There are no "make-ups" for missed quizzes. We will drop one quiz grade at the end of the semester. The final exam will contain a communicative grammar test and an essay component. If you are keeping up with homework, activities, and participation, you should not need to "study" for the final. We are building skills, not accumulating knowledge, so it is important to keep pace with your assignments. We will review before the final exam. The attendance policy for this course is the same as the University policy in the Longwood University Catalog and the Student Handbook. To clarify some of the points in the policy, please note: There are 28 class meetings. If a student misses 2. Please note what constitutes "excused absences" as defined in the University policy. I will require, in most cases, written documentation to excuse an absence. Never ask if you missed anything--if we had class, you missed a lot! Get the assignment and come prepared. Missing a class does not mean you can show up unprepared--you will take whatever quiz is planned and will turn in whatever assignment is due, or you will receive a zero for the assignment or for a missed quiz--there are no "make-up" quizzes. Remember, however, that we drop the lowest quiz grade. Students are expected to live by the Longwood University Honor Code. All work done for this class must be pledged: If you have a disability and require accommodations, please meet with me early in the semester to discuss your learning needs. If you wish to request reasonable accommodations note taking support, extended time for tests, etc. The office will require appropriate documentation of the disability. All information will be kept confidential. I will often communicate very important information with you by e-mail. Please check your e-mail often to see if I have sent you an assignment or a correction to an assignment. If Longwood closes for inclement weather or for other reasons, check your e-mail for assignments. You will be responsible for completing them for the next class. So please check e-mail every day!
