1: ECE Conference - ACAMIS

A special strength is the range of languages: although English is the most widely learnt language, chapters focus on various target languages: Croatian, French, English, German, Italian, Spanish and Ukrainian and the contexts include China, Croatia, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Norway, Poland, the Ukraine, and the United Kingdom.

Karen Fidler International School of Beijing As a fiercely child centered teacher of small children for many years, my pedagogy focuses on learning through inquiry-based play. I collaborate with others to use technology to facilitate new forms of inviting play in the classroom. Mountains to the Sea: Indoor Adventure Wanting to bring the energy and benefits of outdoor play indoors, this workshop explores the journey of transforming ordinary outdoor bikes into globetrotting indoor adventure vehicles. The partnership of tech, design and school services enabled the children to pedal through varied locations around the world, which brings engaging opportunities for high energy gross motor play. Come and find out the detailed process we went through to bring this adventure about and the wonderings that came afterwards. Outdoor equipment can be brought inside to invigorate play through a sense of discovery just by purposefully adapting the learning environment. She has been teaching in early years settings for 8 years in Asia. Margaret is from Toronto, Canada. She has been teaching for 8 years in various educational settings. Beyond the Storybook In this workshop, we will take you through the journey of how we went beyond the storybook to create a meaningful and engaging learning experience for young learners. We will share our experience of how we took the ideas of our students and transformed our classroom into a living storybook. This led to the students creating their own stories in various formats and showcasing it to the peers and parents. There will be discussions on how teachers can transform their classrooms and reflect on how to embrace student ideas by empowering them to create their own learning environment. We will also address the challenges that we may face as educators and explore ways for you to adapt our idea into your classrooms. Join us as we use the power of stories to foster the love of reading and writing through imaginative and creative play. Early Childhood Education, primarily 5 year olds, are my passion and I have worked towards a deeper understanding of the educational development of this specific group of young people. I am married and have 2 children. Our son recently graduated from NYU Abu Dhabi and will begin his international school career, while our daughter is attending college working towards her degree in education. I love to travel and explore new places and cultures, and an avid reader and lover of literature. Julie Currently in my 15th year working overseas for QSI, I taught high school and middle school English literature classes and was an IB Coordinator before moving to my current position in Admissions. My husband and I are originally from California and are raising our 3 sons ages 5, 8, and 10 , two of whom came to our family through adoption. Supporting Cognitive and Emotional Development in Young Learners Video footage of free choice time in an early childhood classroom that demonstrates students getting their needs met love and belonging, power, freedom, fun, security. Anyone who works with young children will learn theory and practical approaches to better understand the importance of play and free choice. Better understand how play can help students get there needs met Choice Theory 2. Will be able to explain with confidence to parents and others the importance of play and choice Leah Rawlings The International School of Macao I am an elementary music specialist at the International School of Macao. I have a passion for literature and for incorporating literature into all areas of my teaching. Bridging Literacy and Music In this session, we will explore ways in which music and picture books can be combined to engage students in literacy. Come prepared to sing and play. Classroom teachers are also welcome. Ria employs service based learning opportunities for children of all ages. She believe in empowering young children in finding a voice to create positive change in the world. Service learning is possible at all ages, even the youngest learners. They may be small but they are Mighty! In this session, participants will explore the process of taking classroom curriculum a step further through Project Based Learning PBL to integrate service learning with core objectives. With examples with studnets from years old, this workshop will provide concrete examples of how
