Every Sunday or thereabouts, we will go over seven stories or noteworthy items from the Ontario Hockey League. What does this say about the two teams if anything? Given that the Firebirds were coming off a loss to the Kitchener Rangers the night before, we expected fatigue to set in and the rest of the game would just cruise along. Little did we know what was about to happen. The Otters came out in the third and hung eight goals on the Firebirds. After it got to , things just got silly. It was the first game of the season and the Otters took advantage of the situation. The Otters will be a fun team to watch grow. They are very young in spots. But they play fast and have a decent lineup. Some publications predicted the Otters would finish last in the OHL. Many see the youth and experience. Fewer see the overall potential. Can they reach it will be the thing to watch. Wonderful catch by Jeremy Crowe. How does this happen? Optimism was present going into the season. But now after an road trip that saw them get outscored , they have some serious questions. That said, circumstances certainly did not help the Firebirds. The Firebirds played with just 5D in their first two games as a result. After the game, the coaches held a lengthy meeting. He helped pace the Otters by recording a hat trick. His numbers have been steady whether he was surrounded with talent or not. Another goal season is easily within reach for him. At least for one night, Gera Poddubnyi did just that. He was a force along the wall. Good teams can send solid lines out who can score. Their performance will have a lot to say in the final outcome of the season for the Otters. A season of goals is within reason for Poddubnyi. He recorded two assists including a beauty of a primary assist on the goal. But it was his defense that stood out for a rookie. He raced back from blue line to blue line, took the body and separated the player from the puck. With Quinton Byfield and Alexis Lafreniere dominating at the top, someone is going to land a premier, right-shooting, offensively minded defenseman. In other words, that draft is simply loaded. I like the honesty. The players have to look in the mirror at themselves and find their way out of this. Dellandrea saw the team was out of sorts and tried waking them up. He found himself in a fight with Hayden Fowler. He still has some things to learn especially on the defensive end. But he understands when a leader needs to try to step up and help his team. It will be interesting to watch his development this year not only from a hockey standpoint but from a leadership standpoint. He is their best offensive player and captain. How will he and the team handle the different adversities that come their way? Ty Dellandrea knows this season will have its ups and downs. Some have him ranked as a first rounder for the draft. He definitely helps give the top-six a new and dangerous look.

Cook the noodles in boiling salted water, according to package directions, until al dente. As the pasta water heats up, melt butter in a large saucepan over medium-high heat. Season the steak with salt and pepper, then place it in a single layer in the pan. Flip the steak, and once again sear it for about 3 minutes. Remove the steak from the pan and set aside. Return the pan to the heat and add the remaining 2 tablespoons of butter. Once melted, add onions and cook for about 3 minutes. Add garlic and mushrooms, stirring to mix completely. Cook the mixture for another minutes, or until the mushrooms are cooked and the onions are soft. Pour in the white wine, deglazing the pan by using the cooking spoon to scrape any browned bits off the bottom of the pan. Allow the mixture to reduce for another 3 minutes. While the mushrooms and onions are cooking, whisk together the beef broth, Worcestershire sauce, and flour until smooth. Pour the mixture into the pan, stirring to combine. Allow the sauce to simmer for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add Greek yogurt and mix well, then add the steak. Season with salt and pepper to taste, if necessary. Serve over egg noodles, garnished with parsley if desired. Perfect Pot Roast Pot roast iStock. Follow this recipe from The Pioneer Woman and prepare to surprise yourself. The great thing about pot roast is that once your prep work is done, the oven does the work for you. Generously salt and pepper your chuck roast. Heat a large pot or Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Then add 2 to 3 tablespoons of olive oil. When the oil in the pot is very hot but not smoking, add in the halved onions, browning them on one side and then the other. Remove the onions to a plate. Throw the carrots into the same very hot pan and toss them around a bit until slightly browned, about a minute or so. If needed, add a bit more olive oil to the very hot pan. Place the meat in the pan and sear it for about a minute on all sides until it is nice and brown all over. Remove the roast to a plate. With the burner still on high, use either red wine or beef broth to deglaze the pan, scraping the bottom with a whisk to get all of that wonderful flavor up. When the bottom of the pan is sufficiently deglazed, place the roast back into the pan and add enough beef stock to cover the meat halfway. Add in the onion and the carrots, as well as 3 or 4 sprigs of fresh rosemary and about 3 sprigs of fresh thyme. For a 4 to 5-pound roast, plan on 4 hours. Take a shortcut with premade Pot Pie Pastry and then grab your veggies, chicken, and heavy cream. You can never go wrong when heavy cream and carbs are involved, and this recipe that serves 6 to 8 is surprisingly forgiving.

Monday - Thursday", and "Seven Days: Friday - Sunday", because really, the two should be seen in conjunction with each other in order to get a complete viewing experience as both parts make up the whole.

STORY No spoilers Actually, I read the manga also helpfully entitled "Seven Days" on which this short 2 episode series is based on, long before I realised that they actually made a live-action version of it. I will get into the acting for this series in another section but story-wise, both episodes were amazingly faithful and accurate to the manga itself. Here is a short list of just how accurate it was: The 1st volume being the Monday to Thursday sections, and the second volume having the remaining Friday to Sunday sections. The way the series is split is exactly the same way. It was really as though the manga itself came to life - there were hardly any deviations of it in the live-action series. So, for those who read the manga and enjoyed the story, you would be surprisingly satisfied with this production. Story-wise, the synopsis is a pretty good summary so I am not sure if I have anything further to add. It really is a simple premise of what started out as a high-school tease between 2 boys to date for a week seven days , ended up creating feelings which neither were prepared for, and their various insecurities and misunderstandings arising from that. Like the sound of it? If not, then feel free to give this a pass. Another thing to note is that the pacing of this live-action short series is rather deliberately slow. I believe that the production team and the director had in mind a pace that was meant to deliberately focus and pause onto the main characters, either to emphasise a scene or an emotion, because this is done consistently throughout the show. Some people might find this draggy or boring or weird, but I personally see it as an artistic approach and directorial style, and quite enjoy the slow, deliberate pacing of the show. Most Japanese series tend to be rather snappy and excitable so a mellow, calm-almost-to-stillness show is rather interesting and refreshing as a change. Now how about the actual portrayal of the characters? Looks-wise, I think James does have that cool look befitting the character but I had hoped that he could have acted a bit more "fly-away" or ditzzy just to emphasise the dichotomy between his looks and his personality which many people around Shino keep banging on about. It would have made some of the comments from supporting characters a bit more believable and understandable. As it stood, I felt that we had to just accept what we are being told i. More tell, rather than show, in this aspect, for me. Having said that, I thought the rest of how James portrayed Shino was well done. The curiosity, the internal dialogues, the progression of feelings and its by-products of uncertainty and jealousy - I thought these were all expressed pretty well by James in his role. I also liked the way he holds his bow and arrow, and his shooting stance. It did look very cool and natural. Looks-wise, I personally found Tomoki to look too old for the junior he should be portraying - and not a little older, but quite a lot older, which was was initially rather jarring when I first started watching. Looks aside, Tomoki did not do too bad a job in bringing out the emotions and the feelings of Touji onto the screen. His acting did not come across as natural or as at ease as James playing Shino, but neither was it so bad that it was too awkward to watch, so I would consider his portrayal to be serviceable for the role. Pity because he was supposed to be rather effortlessly good at shooting and it does not really come across in this live-action adaptation. But this is a minor quibble.

MUSIC Befitting the deliberately slow pace of this show, the background music is instrumental, mellow and rather poignant in tone. I thought it matched the mood and the pacing of the series well and personally found it to be a good enhancement to the scenes in bringing out the moment or the mood. Overall, it is quite a well done series, barring my minor quibbles outlined above. I can see myself viewing it again. Was this review helpful to you?

4: Top takeaways from Sunday's Week 7 NFL action

These are also among the top takeaways for Sunday's Week 7 NFL action. Chiefs make major statement in rebound performance. The Kansas City Chiefs responded in a big way Sunday night after losing.

I, too, have too much china, but wow, that is a keeper. I adore the yorkie in sneakers. My little girl, Dixie, would wear them about 2 hot seconds and would be flipping them all over the room!! Love the ornaments holiday wrap and hope you will bring tissue and gift tags, makes it so easy! Everything I have bought from you is even better in person. Oh yes, things have gotten really carried away in our country. It is sad and the entitlement of the younger generation is seriously out of control. Respect does not exist anymore. I am trying the tuna fish today! I love anything with dill, never would have thought to pair it with tuna but sounds tasty. There are courteous ways of indicating someone is in your space. I feel it was easier to notice the louder side of the interaction at the expense of physical violation. I am 55 and would be ashamed if I felt my age, absent other infirmities, made me feel entitled to a higher level of deference from people. The home featured in the Traditional Home Magazine is just gorgeous. All the neutrals make the home seem so calm and inviting. I love the open concept floor design for the great room and kitchen. When a kitchen is that great, you want everyone to see it. Now, on to Patricia Artshul. What a pampered life she lives! I would hope that she would use her money to support any number of causes and not just spoil herself. She certainly lives in a very nice bubble. Bonnie on So excited for new ornaments! A girl can never have too much china. Lately it seems that no matter how hard we try not to be political we are forced to take one side or another. I am 73 years old and have lived long enough to remember many tough times in the history of this country but NEVER anything like this! I feel as if I am living on the Mysterious Island of Dr Moreau, you know, in an experiment that has suddenly gone very , very bad and I pray we can get a handle on it before it destroys us. Anyway, thank you for keeping civility, refinement and class alive because it too is under attack and in danger of extinction. You are a bastion of hope for so many of us!! Am looking forward to the Staffordshire ornaments and also all the gift size ornaments. Last year I missed out on getting some as you were sold out when I ordered. Will keep looking for your sale. I agree with everything you wrote about the country and political correctness. We seem to be heading for real trouble in this country. However it starts with what goes on at home and values are eroding fast Unlike Europe where traditions are largely upheld, this has almost disappeared here. We switched our 3 kids from public to private for this reason, it was a good decision. Love your line of products- the Christmas items are so beautiful. I totally agree with the writer. However, I still feel there are many young people who are very conscientious of good manners. Hopefully, they can set an example for those that are lacking. Little inconveniences like a person standing too close in line use to be handled with some restraint, or at least class and respect. Decorum is gone I am afraid. Importantly, consideration given to transgender individuals should be a right, plain and simple. I want to be an ally for equality that includes education and action. We have another generation coming of age and in some ways they are handling things better then previous generations, but in other ways they have lost some of the graciousness along the way, and we know grace goes a long way in life. The incident with the coffee shop made me also think about the bullying problem that we have today. And that is what a lot of this comes down to. Pushing someone out of the way here it was literally to your own way. What we need to do as a county is to stop the bullying! We think of schools and school children when we honk of bullying but it goes much further than that, as in this coffee shop. While we can be the example and show them that things can be handled in a kinder. With kindness, tell her that that kind of talk is not tolerable and needs to be miles from anyone. That a few minutes being uncomfortable is not a justifiable reason to lash out at someone. With kindness, let her experience her own medicine. While we need to be peacable people, we also need to stand up against bullies and stand up for humankind. When we stand by we are as bad as the bully. Just as my daughter practices in her classroom, if you laugh at someone bullied you are guilty also. She also with kindness makes the bully feel embarrassed not the bullied. Pretty soon the bullying stops because they no longer have the upper hand. I should probably stop right there, lol, but for example how trump is calling out the fake news reporters. SOON they will get tired of it and hopefully stop bullying people on their broadcasts. We seem to have lost our sense of grace. What happened to our ability to put ourselves in the shoes of those around us and attempt to see the world from their perspective. And never, never reprimand another person so publicly. If she treats an older lady that way, you can only imagine how she treats her parents and peers that she feels are not to her standard. I like my personal space but would never speak to someone in that manner. I may move a little myself, instead. What a beautiful, serene home. I love every inch of it! Whatever happened to character, Whatever happened to respect for our elders. When did it become okay to be rude. Is social media the cause because people say anything on it and now they say it to your face. Patricia Altshulâ€¦ My feeling about her Is: Second item is the one instagram about being positiveâ€¦ Agree completely.. I like that attitude. Political correctness has run amokâ€¦ I love your posts, Tina.. They make my day. Thanks so much for the Instagrams of Interest share, such an honour. That girl in the coffee shop was horrid. I have three kids, 12, 14 and 16 and am doing my very best to make sure they know that is not OK! Great post as always- love love the Christmas products that are forthcoming. You must be so excited. That house you shared is beautiful, and I too love the colors, they are so soothing. Tina, hope you had a nice Sunday. We have lost so much of our country. I owe it to radical teachers and allowing everything to be off limits. All started with taking prayer,pledge of alligance and all of our unique American traditions out of schools and public places. Also,this one world stupidity is only allowing our enemies to infiltrate and make everything worse. Adore your Christmas items, the paper, the ornaments, all kit and kaboodle. The Instagrams are always so much fun to see and I make a tuna very similar but add scallions which is really good and extremely low cal. Even got my 10 year old twins to like it! I am only 46 but think the whole thing has gone crazy and so out of control. We need to go back to how things were 20 years ago. Our country has gone mad. Even our politicians are nuts! To me, the important thing is being considerate and polite to everyone in all situations- which is just good manners. I thought it was impossible to outdo the Kardashians for crass. It is considered bad form to talk about what you have. This show is called a reality show but it is NOT reality, and I found all the people in it very tacky.

Get this from a library! Y Domingo, siete: Translation of: And Sunday makes seven. [Robert Baden; Michelle Edwards] -- Twelve witches reward Carlos for adding to their song about the days of the week, but when Carlos' greedy cousin Ricardo sings for the witches, he receives an unpleasant surprise.

In Old Russian Sunday was also called "free day" or "day with no work", but in the contemporary language this word means "week". Monday is "It-Tnejn" meaning "two". Saturday is Shabat coming from the word Sabbath or Shabbath in Hebrew, and "Kiraki" coming from the word "Kraak" meaning "fire" is Sunday, "Kraak" describing the sun by fire. However, in many European countries calendars almost always show Monday as the first day of the week, [6] which follows the ISO standard. In the Persian calendar, Sunday is the second day of the week. However, it is called "number one" as counting starts from zero; the first day - Saturday - is denoted as In paganism, the sun was a source of life, giving warmth and illumination to mankind. It was the center of a popular cult among Romans, who would stand at dawn to catch the first rays of sunshine as they prayed. One of the Church fathers, St. Jerome, would declare: Francis would sing in his famous canticle: And he is beautiful and radiant in all his splendor! Of you, Most High, he bears the likeness. Sabbath in Christianity The ancient Romans traditionally used the eight-day nundinal cycle, a market week, but in the time of Augustus in the 1st century AD, a seven-day week also came into use. Justin Martyr, in the mid 2nd century, mentions "memoirs of the apostles" as being read on "the day called that of the sun" Sunday alongside the "writings of the prophets. In the country, however, persons engaged in agriculture may freely and lawfully continue their pursuits; because it often happens that another day is not so suitable for grain-sowing or vine-planting; lest by neglecting the proper moment for such operations the bounty of heaven should be lost. It also indicates that Jews were observing the Sabbath on the Saturday. Modern practices[ edit ] Some Christian denominations, called "Sabbatarians", observe a Saturday Sabbath. The name "Sabbatarian" has also been claimed by Christians, especially Protestants, who believe Sunday must be observed with just the sort of rigorous abstinence from work associated with "Shabbat". Christians in the Seventh-day Adventist, Seventh Day Baptist, and Church of God Seventh-Day denominations, as well as many Messianic Jews, have maintained the practice of abstaining from work and gathering for worship on Saturdays sunset to sunset as did all of the followers of God in the Bible. For most Christians the custom and obligation of Sunday rest is not as strict. A minority of Christians do not regard the day they attend church as important, so long as they attend. There is considerable variation in the observance of Sabbath rituals and restrictions, but some cessation of normal weekday activities is customary. Many Christians today observe Sunday as a day of church-attendance. In Roman Catholic liturgy, Sunday begins on Saturday evening. The evening Mass on Saturday is liturgically a full Sunday Mass and fulfills the obligation of Sunday Mass attendance, and Vespers evening prayer on Saturday night is liturgically "first Vespers" of the Sunday. The same evening anticipation applies to other major solemnities and feasts, and is an echo of the Jewish practice of starting the new day at sunset. Those who work in the medical field, in law enforcement, and soldiers in a war zone are dispensed from the usual obligation to attend Church on Sunday. They are encouraged to combine their work with attending religious services if possible. During this time, the dismissal at all services begin with the words, "May Christ our True God, who rose from the dead Among Orthodox Christians, Sunday is considered to be a "Little Pascha" Easter, and because of the Paschal joy, the making of prostrations is forbidden, except in certain circumstances. Leisure activities and idleness, being secular and offensive to Christ as it is time-wasting, is prohibited[ dubious – discuss ]. Some languages lack separate words for "Saturday" and "Sabbath" e. On the other hand, English-speaking Christians often refer to the Sunday as the Sabbath other than Seventh-day Sabbatarians; a practice which, probably due to the international connections and the Latin tradition of the Roman Catholic Church, is more widespread among but not limited to Protestants. Quakers traditionally referred to Sunday as "First Day" eschewing the pagan origin of the English name, while referring to Saturday as the "Seventh day". September 09 , Comments: Well, last Sunday I was in PB and sure wish I was back now but it just makes me look that much forward to my next visit. Hope you are having a great weekend, here we go with my Seven on Sunday! I found these two videos so fascinating. I remember when I bought my first Chanel suit, it was akin to crossing something off my bucket list. I felt like a million dollars in it and I am only a few pounds away from being able to wear it again! woo hoo! They are classics that are not only so beautiful, so well made but clothing that stands the test of time. These videos will show you just how involved creating and sewing a single jacket is and a bit about the incredible history behind this iconic brand! I got these pictures in and was wowed by how my customer so beautifully mixed the two styles of sophisticated rustic with a more formal vibe in her exquisite mountain home. What a match made in mixing heaven! Just look at how she used the silver planters and mini table lamps! I shared this darling little girl, Mila with you a few months ago. She has since come out with a precious video all about my favorite season, fall. I am not a big drinker at all but seriously this could change the game all together: It is almost scary how much I like this! I have tried all the flavors and this is to me, hands down is the best. I have tried the other flavors but this one hands down wins the blue ribbon! Cannot tell you how good this is! OK lots going on here!.. Christmas ornaments and Christmas paper is in production. Stay tuned soon for a presale offering special pricing to be holiday ready. Pumpkins out of production and en route! I will have a presale on these beauties in a week or so, a must have for anyone who loves to decorate for the holidays, they came out so beautiful, I may need to leave them out year round! A new container of beautiful chinoiserie toile is soon finishing up here is a sneak peek mid production- These fabulous monogrammed trays are the ultimate gift, this is the newest batch en route for some lucky customers! I can see them now on my kitchen island displayed with mums! such an elegant way to welcome fall! The ornaments are in production. The ornaments make the best favors. OK this is for all you empty nesters out there. How is possible that seeing a sports game in play as I pass a school, namely my sons old school or see a gaggle of nervous middle schoolers on their way to school, that I almost start crying! I really really miss it: I do hope I have company otherwise maybe I need therapy lol. I really thought at this point in my life I would be celebrating this new found freedom. It could be because I am young to have all three of my boys all grown up and out of the nest or it could be that I am relegated to being an eternal hopeless sap: So if you are an empty nester or even close! do you still react this way? As always, thanks for stopping in. Hope everyone is enjoying a wonderful weekend as we slowly sashay our way into FALL! PS As of Monday morning a fabulous new flash sale has begun on these incredible tabletop new arrivals! click here to see the sale.

7: Sunday - Wikipedia

Here's what we learned from Sunday's Week 7 games, including an AFC showdown at Wembley Stadium in London. 1. Sunday's matchup featured the league's top scoring offense against the top defense.

In the states, it started with the Cleveland Browns playing their fourth overtime game this season, losing yet again in a heartbreaker. Prior to that, Titans head coach Mike Vrabel made one interesting late-game decision in a loss to the Chargers across the pond. These two plays will have wide-ranging ramifications for four teams moving forward. Chiefs make major statement in rebound performance The Kansas City Chiefs responded in a big way Sunday night after losing to the New England Patriots on a prime-time stage last week. Big plays on offense coupled with a surprisingly ball-hawking defense inspired this latest win. Kareem Hunt was absolutely absurd throughout the game, going for total yards and three touchdowns on 20 touches. Meanwhile, Mahomes went for total yards and four scores. That includes Tennessee putting up a total of 13 points during a two-game losing streak entering Week 7. For a while there, it seemed like Vrabel and Co. Having controlled the time of possession battle and dominating on the ground, Tennessee had an opportunity to force overtime late in the fourth quarter. Following a touchdown pass from Marcus Mariota to Luke Stocker to pull within one point, Vrabel decided to go for two and the win. In and of itself, that decision left a lot to be desired. Though, the call to go empty set with Mariota was the bigger issue. The pass fell incomplete, leading to a third consecutive loss. That came out in droves Sunday against Carolina. Philadelphia opened up a lead entering the fourth quarter, only to see Cam Newton run roughshod on its defense to the tune of plus passing yards and three touchdown scoring drives in the final stanza. This, despite the fact that Wentz himself completed of passes for yards with two touchdowns and zero interceptions. In what was the best game of the day, Baltimore proved itself to be a tough out. It held a high-flying Saints offense to just yards with Alvin Kamara putting up just 75 total yards on 19 touches. Offensively, Joe Flacco continued his tremendous season by tossing two touchdowns compared to zero interceptions. While the loss will hurt for some time, Baltimore proved that it will have a say in the AFC North race before all is said and done. Kirk Cousins avoided turnovers, but did nothing more than manage the game. Even then, these Vikings were able to come away with their third consecutive win after struggling to open up the season. It started and ended with the defense. Minnesota held rookie quarterback Sam Darnold to of passing for yards with one touchdown and three interceptions. All said, the Jets put up total yards of offense in a Vikings win. Jason Garrett fails his Cowboys again The Dallas Cowboys nearly mounted what could have very well been a season-defining comeback against the Washington Redskins in D. Dallas looked dead in the water after Dak Prescott lost a fumble that was returned for a touchdown by Preston Smith to give Washington a lead with less than five minutes left in the final stanza. The conservative nature of Mr. Garrett would then come back to haunt Big D. As the call was confirmed, Garrett had time to draw up a play. It was first-and with one timeout remaining. He ran up the middle with Ezekiel Elliott instead of attempting a pass in the end zone. If Washington had prepared for that, a dump off pass would have netted positive yardage. Instead, kicker Brett Maher doinked a long yard field goal following a false start. It was just a dumb play call from Garrett, and it now has Dallas at through seven games. These are the Browns we all know Heartbreak. Having seen Baker Mayfield lead the team back from a multi-score second-half deficit, and with Bucs kicker Chandler Catanzaro missing a potential game-winning field goal to end regulation, the hope was Cleveland could pull off its third win of the season. It was not to be. Getting the ball in plus territory following an overtime interception from Jameis Winston, Mayfield and Co. In fact, they lost seven yards. A few minutes later, Catanaro atoned himself by nailing a yard game-winning field goal. Of course, Bortles will be blamed for his struggles. Having been outscored in the month of October and in the midst of a two-game losing streak, the Jaguars needed a spark against Houston on Sunday. They were down at the time with absolutely nothing happening on offense. Again, Bortles deserves some of the blame. But what did the Jaguars expect when they extended him during the offseason? With the likes of Teddy Bridgewater and Kirk Cousins available during the offseason, Jacksonville failed by projecting Bortles would improve. Taking advantage of four turnovers and turning them into 24 points is great. It took the 49ers behind the woodshed in every possible way, winning by the score of to remain undefeated. Todd Gurley went for three more total touchdowns and is on pace for what would be a league-record 32 touchdowns. These Rams are a machine, and might very well be Super Bowl favorites. Is Drew Brees playing his best football? Brees continued to play what many might conclude is the best football of his career. Instead, he managed the game and avoided the turnover bug that has plagued opposing quarterbacks against the Ravens this season. Brees completed of passes for yards. He also led the Saints on three touchdown-scoring drives of plus yards, tossing two scores himself. It was a workmanlike effort for a quarterback that has thrown 13 touchdowns compared to zero interceptions while boasting a near percent completion mark. Just brilliant stuff from one of the best quarterbacks to ever play. The question against Miami was whether these Lions could take advantage of an inferior opponent. Finally getting some balance on offense, Matthew Stafford saw the likes of Kerryon Johnson and LeGarrette Blount record combined yards on 29 attempts. Meanwhile, Stafford himself played flawless football to push Detroit to on the season and right in the mix of the NFC North title race. It sure seems that Patricia and Co. Special teams come up huge for Patriots In an otherwise close game against the Bears in Chicago on Sunday, the Patriots needed other aspects of the team to step up outside of Tom Brady. New England was down at the time, and it gave the team momentum. That was pretty much the difference in a seven-point Patriots win. In a game that saw the offense not do a whole lot, the Pats were able to come away with a win. The former Pro Bowler completed of passes for a mere yards yards with four touchdowns and zero interceptions in a blowout win. That included two touchdown tosses to T. He now has 20 touchdowns through seven games and 15 over his past four outings. Unfortunately, this second-year quarterback was having none of it. Trubisky struggled something fierce, completing a grand total of eight of his 26 passes to wide receivers. He also threw two costly interceptions, the second one leading directly to a Patriots yard touchdown scoring drive to put the game away. More than anything, it was all about a swarming defense. Houston got to Jacksonville quarterbacks for four sacks, including two by Jadeveon Clowney. All said, the Texans allowed seven points and just total yards. Despite a less-than-stellar performance on offense, this enabled Houston to come out on top, Tennessee controlled the time of possession battle, only to lose the game after a questionable late-game decision from head coach Mike Vrabel. He completed of passes for yards with two touchdowns and zero picks in the win. That included this yard scoring strike to Tyrell Williams. Now at on the season, these Chargers have to be seen as real contenders in the AFC. In fact, the team is in its past 19 games. For his part, Rivers has now thrown 17 touchdowns compared to three interceptions for a ridiculous Yeah, he has to be seen as a legit MVP candidate heading into the midway point of the campaign. He completed of passes in the loss, including a pick-six to really put this one away in the third quarter. When tossing the rock to anyone not named A. Green, Dalton completed 8-of passes for 31 yards.

New Orleans Saints 24, Baltimore Ravens 23 1. The 24 points scored by the Saints represent the most the Ravens have allowed since the Cincinnati Bengals scored 34 in Week 2. The Ravens entered the day allowing just Quarterback Drew Brees led the charge, completing 22 of 30 passes for yards and two touchdowns as the Saints improved to , winning five straight games. Sunday proved historical for Brees as he entered the game with career touchdown passes. Brees, who now has career touchdown passes, became the fourth quarterback in league history to join the Club along with Peyton Manning , Hall of Famer Brett Favre and Tom Brady. With the win against the Ravens , Brees also became the third quarterback in league history to defeat all 32 teams, a feat previously accomplished by Manning and Favre. The Saints look to utilize Hill in a variety of offensive packages, including lining up as a tight end to block. All Hill does is produce, either taking snaps and running or getting down the field on special teams. Against the Ravens , Hill gained 35 yards rushing on six carries and produced two tackles while covering kicks. Hill has the full trust of Saints head coach Sean Payton. Ravens quarterback Joe Flacco put his team on his back with 2: Flacco engineered a six-play, yard drive, capped off by a yard touchdown pass to wide receiver John Brown. On the game, Flacco completed 23 of 39 passes for yards and two touchdowns. Cowboys kicker Brett Maher doinked a potential game-tying field-goal attempt off the left upright as time expired handing the Redskins the win and an NFC East division lead. The missed field goal broke a streak of straight makes by Maher after he missed his first career attempt. The failure came after Dallas was flagged for a 5-yard penalty before the snap, pushing a would-be yard attempt to a yarder. The kick appeared as though it would have been good if not for the additional five yards. It was fitting that the pivotal play came in the form of a Ryan Kerrigan strip of Dak Prescott that was scooped up by Preston Smith for a touchdown, giving the Redskins a lead late in the fourth quarter. The group hammered running back Ezekiel Elliott time after time in the backfield, holding Zeke to a meager 34 yards on 15 totes 2. Washington pestered Prescott with pressure, taking down the quarterback four times, two fumbles, and forced several big holding calls. Outside of one big play to receiver Michael Gallup yard TD , the Redskins dominated a milquetoast Cowboy offense until Prescott used his legs to get Dallas back into the game with a chance to tie. Adrian Peterson continues to be the motor of the Redskins offense. Washington rightly leaned on the year-old running back, who powered his way for 99 yards on 24 carries, for 4. Behind an offensive line that kept a good Dallas front at bay much of the contest, Peterson continued to look spry, breaking tackles and jutting to the outside for chunk gains. Rotating in early, Lee made several pivotal plays to end Redskins drives and give Dallas a shot at a comeback. Later, Lee tracked down Smith on third down and tackled the quarterback out of bounds short of the marker to set up the Cowboys potential game-tying drive. One week after their first defeat, the Kansas City Chiefs made sure not to suffer the same slow start that set them back against New England. The Chiefs found the end zone early and often against the visiting Cincinnati Bengals , scoring points on five of their first six drives en route to an assured prime-time victory. Leading the league with 22 touchdown passes, the second-year gunslinger is the youngest player in NFL history with six consecutive yard passing games. But the true star of the night was Kareem Hunt , who set the tone early and scored three touchdowns with yards on 20 touches. Cincinnati underwhelmed in every facet on Sunday evening. Cincy went three- or four-and-out on three of its first-half drives and fell down four scores before the middle of the third quarter. Making matters worse, the Bengals botched a fake punt in the first half, setting K. After going down to the wire with Pittsburgh last week, the Bengals have crumbled over their last five quarters, failing to resemble in the slightest the club that throttled Baltimore in Week 2. The AFC North remains wide open. Chris Jones and Dee Ford are each having career years and continued their strong play with sacks of Andy Dalton. Breeland Speaks bounced back from his ridiculed missed tackle of Brady by playing all 53 snaps and recording a QB hit. Down with two seconds remaining, Mitch Trubisky needed a yard Hail Mary to force overtime. It was that kind of day for Trubisky, who did more damage with his legs than his scattershot arm. Even though the Patriots defense made his scrambling ability a focal point all week, Trubisky improvised his way to 81 rushing yards, the second-most by a quarterback versus New England in the Bill Belichick era. Might the coaching staff take a chance on resting Mack with the sluggish offenses of the Jets and Bills on the horizon? Thanks to strong special teams play, the Patriots overcame a pair of lost fumbles by Cordarrelle Patterson and Sony Michel that placed them in a hole early in the second quarter. Due in large part to the special teams scores, the Patriots reached at least 21 points by halftime and 38 points total for the fourth consecutive game -- the latter figure setting a new franchise record. This is an injury-ravaged offense yet to click on all cylinders, but the team is finding ways to move the chains, generate big plays and outscore opponents on a weekly basis. Already playing without All-Pro tight end Rob Gronkowski, Tom Brady seemed destined to continue leaning heavily on the backfield tandem of James White and rookie Sony Michel, gashing the Bears defense on an eight-play, yard touchdown drive to begin the festivities. After posting three straight games of or more yards, Michel was quickly downgraded from questionable to out, a sign that he may be unavailable for the foreseeable future. Look for New England to add a power back this week, perhaps re-signing Mike Gillislee. Give Cleveland this much: Catanzaro also missed an extra point. A juicy, yard end-around touchdown by DeSean Jackson helped the Bucs build a lead, but the deep threat went plus minutes before his first grab. Winston threw for yards on the day and piled up 55 yards on the ground. He also lost the ball on a third-quarter strip by Myles Garrett and nearly lost the game with a shaky final few minutes. Here in the newsroom, colleague Gregg Rosenthal was miffed to see Tampa play for that ill-fated field goal at the end of regulation instead of trying for the touchdown with less than a minute to play. After authoring their worst half of the year on offense, the Browns played some of their best football yet down the stretch. The first-overall pick threw for just 62 first-half yards, but bounced back to lob a scoring strike to tight end David Njoku and author a seven-play, yard touchdown march to bring Cleveland within of Tampa. From there, Mayfield galvanized the team with a surging, yard scramble in the fourth quarter, but that potential game-tying drive fell to pieces when the signal-caller was stuffed on a fourth-and-goal sneak. Two embattled coaching staffs went at each other on Sunday. The Browns, meanwhile, were crushed by 14 penalties for a whopping yards. Hue Jackson also lost a key challenge in the second half. That said, this Cleveland roster is laced with tangible young talent, especially on defense. Quarterback Cam Newton shook off a sluggish start to lead the charge, ripping off his suit and donning his Superman cape to propel the Panthers for the comeback victory. In the fourth quarter alone, Newton completed 16 of 22 passes for passes and two touchdowns with a Facing a fourth-and with 2: Newton capped off the drive with a 1-yard touchdown pass to Greg Olsen, and finished the game completing 25 of 39 passes for yards and two touchdowns, adding 49 yards rushing on seven carries. But like the offense, the defense turned on the in the final period, holding the Eagles to just 22 yards of total offense and recording two sacks on Eagles quarterback Carson Wentz. The Panthers rose to the occasion in the final minute with the Eagles marching in the red zone by coming up with sack-fumble of Wentz to ice the contest. On the game, the Eagles sacked Wentz four times and recorded six quarterback hits. The winds were swirling at Lincoln Financial Field, but Wentz basically shrugged aside the elements with a seamless performance to help the Eagles run out to an early lead. The third-year quarterback was on fire from the start of the game, at one point completing 15 consecutive passes, en route to finishing the game completing 30 of 37 passes for yards and two touchdowns. The offseason plans to upgrade the ground game in Detroit came to fruition in a smashing effort in South Beach. Rookie running back Kerryon Johnson blasted through, around and over Dolphins defenders all game. The second-round pick paced the Lions with yards on the ground -- his second plus yard rushing performance of the season -- for a gaudy 8. Detroit spent the offseason upgrading the rushing attack, adding Johnson, LeGarrette Blount 50 yards, TD and first-round offensive lineman Frank Ragnow. The plan worked like a charm Sunday as the offensive line opened huge holes, and the backs made defenders miss in space and pinballed for extra yards. As a team, the Lions galloped for a whopping rushing yards. Detroit generated 24 first downs with 8. Six games into the season, this is the type of offensive balance Detroit planned entering the year. Osweiler made a gorgeous touchdown toss to Kenny Stills in the back of the end zone in the first half. He later darted a laser to Danny Amendola on the move to close the scoring gap deep into the fourth quarter. Kenyan Drake blasting off for a yard touchdown run, displayed that the Dolphins can move the ball well enough, and get a sprinkle of explosive plays, with Brock under center. Self-proclaimed YAC king Albert Wilson left the game in the first half after a yard catch-and-run with a leg injury that looked bad. The wideout was heavily in the game-plan early with two rushing attempts and three catches on the first four drives before suffering the injury. With DeVante Parker inactive, the injuries left Miami with just two healthy receivers dressed on their concluding possession. The story of this is the benching of Blake Bortles , because quarterback news -- and news related to the polarizing Bortles -- is hot in this league. But make no mistake: Jacksonville , as a football team, looks nothing like the team that took down New England a month ago. Their identity is lost. And routes run short of the sticks on third down. And most of all, turnovers. Doug Marrone railed against it in the postgame presser and rightfully so, pointing out the obvious in the process: A negative turnover differential will, in most games, produce a loss. But back to the running game. Yeldon , best suited as a change-of-pace back, has been forced to carry an incredible load and understandably struggled to do so. He dropped a pass that ended up in a Kessler interception, and gained just 28 yards on 12 attempts. Now, onto the winners. Hopkins was routinely winning one-on-one matchups with Jalen Ramsey early in the game, and though he only finished with three receptions, one of them extended a key early drive, and another one went for a touchdown. Combined with Will Fuller , Watson has at least two solid targets to throw to. Oh, and welcome back, Lamar Miller , who rushed for yards for the first time this season and scored a touchdown on 22 carries.
