

1: B Reactor 70th Anniversary Address - B Reactor Museum Association

Page - So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground; and should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how.

It certainly was not clear, from either the Environmental Impact Statement or the Tri Party Agreement, which was signed in , that any of those unique, historical facilities would be preserved. A committee was formed to consider what could be done to change the decision to dismantle the B Reactor, and also to consider options for converting it into a museum. The committee members were well aware that B Reactor held a very special place in history and had been a major contributor to world history, science, technology and engineering, and that it should be preserved. The outcome of those initial meetings in was the formation of the B Reactor Museum Association, which was incorporated in January BRMA is a non-profit, all volunteer organization. Many of our early members had worked at B or one of the other Hanford facilities, and all were interested in preserving our Hanford history. In addition to our primary objective of preserving the reactor for historical reasons, BRMA also set goals to increase public awareness, provide educational exhibits, improve highway access to the reactor from the Vantage highway, and add a boat dock on the river for tour boats. Our goal for the establishment of a National Historical Park was established later. The path to obtaining an official commitment to preserve B reactor was a long and arduous one, but our members were persistent in their determination. And then of course it was essential to save B from the wrecking ball and not be cocooned, as was planned for all the other reactors. Finally in , DOE issued an interim action statement that basically said they would consider a public use option if a capable partner was found to operate a long-term preservation mission. That was a crack in the WALL for our goal of preservation and eventual museum. Attitudes were changing and support was growing. Later, that process was taken over and completed by the National Park Service. Also, at that time the DOE announced plans for initiating regularly scheduled public tours. When a draft of the study was issued for public comments, BRMA and this community were astounded that only Los Alamos was recommended as a fully managed park site. BRMA and our community leaders insisted that without including B Reactor and other Hanford facilities, a complete story of the Manhattan Project could not be told. Thankfully enough pressure was applied to persuade the Park Service to rewrite their document to recommend a multi-site park that included all three of the major Manhattan Project sites – Oak Ridge, Hanford, and Los Alamos. The next major step was the now-pending federal legislation for the establishment of such a Historical Park. In conjunction with that pending legislation, which BRMA fully supports, I want to emphasize that in addition to recognizing the production facilities at Hanford, BRMA also supports the inclusion of those pre-Manhattan relics that remain on the Hanford Site. In order to tell a complete story of what happened at Hanford, we certainly need to consider the individuals who were so abruptly removed from their homes and land when the government took over the area in Those remaining structures that should be included in the Park legislation are the Bruggeman family warehouse, White Bluffs Bank, and Hanford High School. In separate activities, many of our BRMA members have enjoyed serving as knowledgeable tour guides at the facility; and, while working closely with the Atomic Heritage Foundation, we have been instrumental in providing the three large models now located in the reactor building. In conclusion, I know that those of us in BRMA are very pleased and grateful that a major portion of our original goals have been met and that this historic facility has been preserved, cleaned up, and is available for interpretation and enjoyment by everyone. Many thanks to everyone that helped make this happen. And finally to Congress, please take that next major step and pass legislation that will establish a Manhattan Project National Historical Park.

An anniversary speech celebrates the arrival together at this place, but it looks forward too. It might wonder and dream a little, after all if you have achieved all this, the sky could be the limit! N. Van't Hof from Queensland (Australia), said, "The speeches were most helpful and made the job of writing the speech very easy.

Do you want to know the number one key to giving a good pastor anniversary speech? The truth is, you can stutter and forget some of what you wanted to say. But people will still appreciate it. The following steps will help you give an excellent pastor anniversary speech. If you need more help, I wrote a pastor appreciation sermon and included it in my Pastor Appreciation Workbook. Plan Ahead Ask people in your congregation for stories about your pastor. Ask for both funny and serious stories. Ask them what they appreciate about him or her. Write the stories out on separate pieces of paper. Once you have your stories, choose an appropriate scripture passage for your pastor anniversary speech. Create an Outline You might use an outline similar to this: Stories that show what kind of person your pastor is. Jane Johnson reminded me of the time when Pastor Smith Greg Thompson told me that I remember when Pastor Smith Tell how your church has been positively affected by your pastor. When Pastor Smith first arrived here, we were very discouraged When Pastor Smith arrived our attendance was Read and discuss the pastor anniversary speech scripture you chose. Conclusion I know I speak for our entire congregation when I say that we are honored to be pastored by a man like Pastor Smith. Our hope and prayer is that our partnership with him will continue for years to come. Practice Practice your pastor anniversary speech out loud. Rehearse in front of your family or even your dog. Get a feel for how long the speech will last. Plan Other Parts of the Service After your speech you might want to present your pastor with a pastor appreciation gift. You might even want to include a skit either before or after your speech. No matter what else is true about your pastor anniversary speech, remember the number one rule. If you do that, everyone will appreciate your pastor anniversary speech. Comments What do you think? Have something to add?
