It considers the unique perspective of children and invests accordingly. It sends a message to parents that a church values children enough to identify and meet their specific needs in their community at a particular moment in time. Well-designed VBS programs speak to children with respect, love, and patience, offering opportunity for authentic spiritual growth, not to mention an intentional theology that is reflective of the church. Finally, custom-designed VBS programs are a way to fully include children in the mission and ministry of the church rather than confine their unique gifts. This book provides Christian educators with the tools they need to assess the needs and resources in their congregation, and to craft a creative program in response to that assessment. The Best VBS Workbook Ever offers direction and suggestions on theme, structure, logistics, program, activities, staffing and promotion. Now a digital missionary for Membership Vision, she helps people find God in the digital space. Shepherding children and young people is her passion, and she has witnessed the profound experiential learning that occurs when children are fully engaged in an immersive program. She wants to share with other educators the techniques that she used to craft learning opportunities so that they can deeply engage children in faith formation. She is also the co-founder of the Color ME Pittsburgh collaborative art installation. 2: Bod4God : the four keys to weight loss (Book,) [www.enganchecubano.com]

Presents a four-step, faith-based program designed to help people lose weight and gain control of their lives by committing their body to God's glory and learning how to develop an eating plan they will gladly follow for the rest of their lives.

Get In Shape to Honor God? Pastor Steve Reynolds created a diet and fitness weight loss system built around faith in Jesus, or as he likes to say, "based on the Bible. In addition, Reynolds shows local churches how to host "Losing to Live" weight-loss competitions and team fitness regimens. The faith-based weight loss program, where motivation comes from knowing God wants you to take care of the body he gave you, is catching on all over. And while the non-believers may want to laugh at "Bod4God," as they did on a "Saturday Night Live" skit in February, Reynolds said his congregation has lost 13, pounds together through his program. According to a recent study published in the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion, American Christians are more overweight than any other religious group, and among Baptists, nearly one of every three congregants is obese. One of them was Reynolds himself, who said he weighed pounds in the first grade. After graduating from college, he became a pastor. I got up to pounds. And so there I was with all the health issues that goes with that -- high blood pressure, high cholesterol, diabetes, digging my grave with a knife and fork and an ice cream spoon. He said he began to study different words in the Bible, starting in the Book of Genesis and working his way through. I mean how it boils down, glorifying God with what you eat and with what you drink. The fact that he can stand before his congregation and tell them he knows what they are going through, means a lot to his church members. And I tried to lose weight on my own. And I always gained it back, you know. I was never able to because I was doing it of my own will power. This time I feel like I have God on my side. She said she used God as a sort of motivational coach. I would actually write in my journal for God to give me strength and to help me," she said. It boils down to proper nutrition and exercise, and the company of other people fighting the same battle. Reynolds also has a leader who teaches the program in Spanish. So for all the people who are not on the weight loss spiritual journey, but have been looking for a sign that they need to start living healthier, Reynolds is offering them one.
