There are many reported origins of this humorous day, and all of them are equally amusing. Along with its historic beginnings, there are many famous tricks that will forever be cemented in history. Many news organizations, restaurants, and even entire cities use this day to have a little fun with the public. While not a religious holiday, this famous day dates back to , a Pope, and a calendar mistake. All those who missed the message and still celebrated on April 1 were henceforth and forever known as April fools. Another explanation of the day was published in the Associated Press in . Because of this accusation, Constantine let the jester rule for a day. While ruling the jester decreed that the day forever call for absurdity " and thus, it became an annual event. The only problem with this theory? It was entirely made up as a joke against the AP. Another possible origin is it forming from ancient festivals, one of these being Hilaria. This festival was celebrated in Rome at the end of March. The vernal equinox could also be the founder. People would say that the Mother Nature was fooling us with the first day of spring because the weather would then be unpredictable. This day would be spent sending people on a fake errands, playing pranks, and tricking people into believing things that were not true. The children of France will take cut out pictures of fish and stick them to the back of their classmates. In , the BBC presented a rather unheard of, but happy report. The segment described the unusually plentiful spaghetti crop thanks to their balmy winter and the long awaited eradication of the spaghetti weevil. They went so far as to stage footage of works picking spaghetti off the trees. Foolishly enough, people believed this! In , a German newspaper thought it would be funny to print a story about the US Treasury being robbed. The story claimed that all of the silver and gold had been stolen by greedy American millionaires in a highly coordinated heist. Unfortunately, people believed this too, and other newspapers across Europe reprinted it without thinking to check the facts. Once again, the story was believed and other papers published the article before realizing it was a prank. Another fast food chain, in , decided to get in on the fun. The first year started as a prank, but soon became a beloved tradition. A press release is put out every year advertising the parade which never occurs. In , a tsunami was reported to be heading towards a pacific island. Several people lost their lives because they believed the weather report to be a prank.

April Fools' Day (sometimes called All Fools' Day) is an annual celebration in some European and Western countries commemorated on April 1 by playing practical jokes and spreading hoaxes.

Adult Swim aired an early, unfinished version of Squidbillies, instead of Robot Chicken. Adult Swim aired old re-runs of Mr. T and Chuck Norris: Stand Alone Complex with fart noises added to the dialog. On March 31, Adult Swim aired every episode of Perfect Hair Forever in reverse order. The episodes were digitally degraded to look like several generations-old videotapes with grammatically incorrect subtitles in English. At one point, the subtitles shown on screen were actually for an Aqua Teen Hunger Force episode. On April 1, Adult Swim aired a night of unfinished sneak peeks of future upcoming shows in place of their typical programming. Adult Swim aired The Room, with sex scenes obscured with black boxes. Sex scenes remained censored, but the parental rating was raised to TV-MA. Adult Swim replaced its lineup with Toonami. Subsequently, on May 16, Adult Swim announced via Twitter and later by a press release that Toonami would return to Adult Swim on May 26, as a regular weekly Saturday night programming block. Adult Swim featured images of cats throughout much of its programming. All of the bumps contained videos and images of cats, while the episodes of the live action shows aired that night had cat faces covering up the faces of the actors. The [adult swim] logo was replaced with "[meow meow]". Adult Swim premiered an eighth episode of Perfect Hair Forever, seven years following the series finale. This was followed by an unannounced Space Ghost Coast to Coast marathon featuring creator-chosen episodes including the full version of "Fire Ant", which has rarely been shown on TV. During the marathon, bumps were included between episodes showing outtakes and commentary from the writers and staff. When midnight did occur, regular programming played, with the implication being that the prank for was that there was no prank. Alternative in Japanese, with English subtitles, followed by the film Mind Game, also in Japanese with English subtitles.
