Aries personalities are independent. Being the first of the zodiac signs, they venture out and are go-getters, often leading the way. Their upbeat and magnetic personality often entices others to follow their lead because their personalities bring excitement into others lives. If confronted, they can turn to be quite childish, will fight back with their aggressive nature and are known to have temper tantrums should they not get their way. If a business idea comes their way, they tend to plunge right in. More than willing to take a gamble and follow their dreams and goals. However, if success is not immediate, they tend to lose interest and give up easily. They are notorious for not finishing what they have begun. This is due to the low tolerance for boredom and lack of patience. If the excitement is gone from their business idea, they go off and search for it elsewhere. Independence is key, they do not like to take orders from others and enjoy getting their way. They can get childish or moody should they be given orders that they do not like and easily take offense to comments made. Aries are self-involved and can be self-centered, if they do not pay attention to the feelings of others, can easily become spoiled and resented by others. In order to get their way, they will tell a lie if it seems advantageous to do so. They are however, not very good liars and other people can usually see through them. Underneath the strong, independent surface may lie insecurity. This is due to the intense drive to succeed and they put too much pressure on themselves, thus resulting in self-doubt however, the natural optimism and enthusiasm overtakes this and the underlying insecurity may never be known to others. Aries is the first of the zodiac signs which is the sign of the self. People born under this sign strongly project their personalities onto others and can be very self-oriented. Aries tend to venture out into the world and leave impressions on others that they are exciting, vibrant and talkative. They tend to live adventurous lives and like to be the center of attention, but rightly so since they are natural, confident leaders. She will be faithful but she expects the same in return. She can be jealous because she wants a man to give her all of his attention, "all or nothing", so her jealousy is rooted in her possessiveness, she has to be number one in his eyes. She will always encourage and give strength to her partner so an Aries woman is great to have in times of despair or need, she will always be there for you. In order to have this happy ending, she needs to feel appreciated and loved. An Aries man has a lust for adventure, so if you are thinking about having a relationship be prepared for fast-paced adventure, novelty and excitement. He is always eager to try new things - including relationships. That is not to say that every Aries man will only provide an exciting and short-lived relationship, but this is usually the case. He might stick around if you are the type of woman that enjoys having the man take the lead and basking in his glory. He enjoys challenge so if you are the woman to offer challenges to him - like playing hard to get - he might stick around longer. Remember, this man is all about the thrill of the chase. He needs you to be "swept off your feet" by him. Appear innocent- hard-to-get and he will be wrapped around your little finger. Never take advantage because his short temper will turn into a fury of anger and he will leave and never look back. Let them know that you admire them, they thrive of admiration and followers. Let them know that you love their zest for life and that you find them intriguing, they love compliments more than most other astrology signs. Compliment them physically and mentally, they like conversation about intellectual topics and engage them in a lively discussion, or a friendly debate. They love the challenge and the stimulation of good, intelligent conversation. Ask them for advice, let them know that you look up to them. Remember, Aries is the first sign of the zodiac and the most forward and independent, they love followers. Balance is the key word for those born under the sign of the Scales “ because Libra natives are always seeking equilibrium in their lives. Another key word for this sign is delight. A Libra woman thrives on fun, laughter, joyfulness, and beauty. These babes have a natural cool to them that comes from not trying too hard and keeping things chill. These amorous ladies may never truly settle down, but if they do partner for the long haul, they may not have a conventional marriage. Sexuality and touch are like bread and water for a Venus-ruled Libra. Do not expect them to ever go without. A Libra woman manages to integrate all aspects of her household harmoniously, so the kitchen flows easily into the living room, and even if she has kids, their stuff never dominates the home. Without that knowledge, without that capacity to think, you can easily become a victim of people who seek to take advantage of you". It was not known to the Babylonians that the constellations are not on a celestial sphere and are very far apart. The appearance of them being close is illusory. The exact demarcation of what a constellation is, is cultural, and varied between civilisations. This provided a further motivator for the study of astronomy. Those in positions of power, like the Fatimid Caliphate vizier in , funded the construction of observatories so that astrological predictions, fuelled by precise planetary information, could be made. On astrology, it cited the inability of different astrologers to make the same prediction about what occurs following a conjunction , and described the attributes astrologers gave to the planets as implausible. Astrology provides the quintessential example of a pseudoscience since it has been tested repeatedly and failed all the tests. The criterion was first proposed by philosopher of science Karl Popper. To Popper, science does not rely on induction ; instead, scientific investigations are inherently attempts to falsify existing theories through novel tests. If a single test fails, then the theory is falsified. Using this criterion of falsifiability, astrology is a pseudoscience. According to Professor of neurology Terence Hines , this is a hallmark of pseudoscience. An astrologer could only explain away failure but could not revise the astrological hypothesis in a meaningful way. As such, to Kuhn, even if the stars could influence the path of humans through life astrology is not scientific. In the case of predicting behaviour, psychology is the alternative. For these reasons Thagard viewed astrology as pseudoscience. Whether or not they: In this approach, true falsification rather than modifying a theory to avoid the falsification only really occurs when an alternative theory is proposed. James, astrology is irrational not because of the numerous problems with mechanisms and falsification due to experiments, but because an analysis of the astrological literature shows that it is infused with fallacious logic and poor reasoning. In that case, I think, we are perfectly justified in rejecting astrology as irrational. Astrology simply fails to meet the multifarious demands of legitimate reasoning. Other comments by astrologers are based on severely erroneous interpretations of basic physics, such as a claim by one astrologer[who? Further, James noted that response to criticism also relies on faulty logic, an example of which was a response to twin studies with the statement that coincidences in twins are due to astrology, but any differences are due to "heredity and environment", while for other astrologers the issues are too difficult and they just want to get back to their astrology. When specific predictions from astrologers were tested in rigorous experimental procedures in the Carlson test, the predictions were falsified. Ten of the tests, which had a total of participating, involved the astrologers picking the correct chart interpretation out of a number of others that were not the astrologically correct chart interpretation usually three to five others. When the date and other obvious clues were removed, no significant results were found to suggest there was any preferred chart. Again the results were no better than chance. No effect was seen. The suggestion is that a small subset of the parents may have had changed birth times to be consistent with better astrological charts for a related profession. The sample group was taken from a time where belief in astrology was more common. Gauquelin had failed to find the Mars effect in more recent populations [c] , where a nurse or doctor recorded the birth information. The number of births under astrologically undesirable conditions was also lower, indicating more evidence that parents choose dates and times to suit their beliefs. The underpinnings of astrology tend to disagree with numerous basic facts from scientific disciplines. ESP, Telekinesis, and other Pseudoscience. They commented on the example of Elizabeth Teissier who claimed that "the sun ends up in the same place in the sky on the same date each year" as the basis for claims that two people with the same birthday but a number of years apart should be under the same planetary influence. Over a 40 years period there would be a difference greater than , miles. Further, the creation of the zodiac and the disconnect from the constellations was because the sun is not in each constellation for the same amount of time. Astrology was claimed to work before the discovery of Neptune, Uranus and Pluto and they have now been included in the discourse on an ad hoc basis. Some astrologers make claims that the position of all the planets must be taken into account, but astrologers were unable to predict the existence of Neptune based on mistakes in horoscopes. If they decide to keep it, what about the growing list of other recently discovered similar bodies Sedna, Quaoar. Lack of mechanism[edit] Astrology has been criticised for failing to provide a physical mechanism that links the movements of celestial bodies to their purported effects on human behaviour. Bok , Lawrence E. Jerome, and Paul Kurtz. They said that there is no scientific foundation for the tenets of astrology and warned the public against accepting astrological advice without question. Their criticism focused on the fact that there was no mechanism whereby astrological effects might occur: We can see how infinitesimally small are the gravitational and other effects produced by the distant planets and the far more distant stars. It is simply a mistake to imagine that the forces exerted by stars and planets at the moment of birth can in any way shape our futures. Sagan said he took this stance not because he thought astrology had any validity, but because he thought that the tone of the statement was authoritarian, and that dismissing astrology because there was no mechanism while "certainly a relevant point" was not in itself convincing. In a letter published in a follow-up edition of The Humanist, Sagan confirmed that he would have been willing to sign such a statement had it described and refuted the principal tenets of astrological belief. This, he argued, would have been more persuasive and would have produced less controversy. If the astrologer insisted on being inconsistent with the current understanding and evidential basis of physics, that would be an extraordinary claim. However, synchronicity itself is considered neither testable nor falsifiable. Forer effect It has also been shown that confirmation bias is a psychological factor that contributes to belief in astrology. Another, separate, form of confirmation bias also plays a role, where believers often fail to distinguish between messages that demonstrate special ability and those that do not. If more information is requested for a prediction, the more accepting people are of the results. The personality descriptions were taken from a book on astrology. The effect is heightened when the individuals were aware that the personality description was being used to discuss astrology. Individuals who were not familiar with astrology had no such tendency. Adorno conducted a study of the astrology column of a Los Angeles newspaper as part of a project that examined mass culture in capitalist society. Following the complaints of astrology believers, Cox gave the following statement to the BBC: I should have said that this new age drivel is undermining the very fabric of our civilisation. The closeness of the two words varies depending on the language. This may partially be due to the implicit association amongst the general public, of any wording ending in "ology" with a legitimate field of knowledge. In half of the polls, the word "astrology" was used, while in the other the word "horoscope" was used.

Indeed, to know oneself and to know other people by looking into a natal chart is one of the best favourite hobbies of both professional and amateur astrologers! Indeed, the natal chart is supposed to describe, quite rapidly for experienced people, the personality as well as the factors of psychological growth of any human being. It is very common to hear people say that in real life, many months, and even many years are required in order to thoroughly know someone. Actually, the wording "weaknesses and strengths" is fairly subjective, and it is preferable to talk about vulnerabilities and abilities to adjust to vagaries and to people in most areas of life. Personality description is probably the part of Western astrology which wins the best supports from its proponents. Unlike Chinese astrology for instance, which is more predictive than descriptive of a personality, Western astrology linked up with psychology and psychoanalysis very early. With the Sun, Uranus, and the Moon as dominant planets, Obama is a shining leader, an original who is an independence lover, as well as an emotional and inspired person. It is also possible to remedy specific repetitive patterns leading to failure, and also to take advantage of obvious qualities, which the person may not yet be aware of. The above questions deal with the place and time of birth. The definite answer is that, even without these data, it remains possible to draw an amazingly interesting amount of information from a natal chart. Therefore, although the time of birth is an important feature, much valuable information can still be obtained without it. As for planetary dominants, many among them may be found without a time of birth, since they are not always based on house cusps. However, it is true that assessments are not as fine-tuned and outstanding as in the cases where a reliable place and time of birth are known. For instance, a dissonant Moon-Mars interaction is very likely to translate into huge mood swings, above-average impulsiveness, and uncontrollable emotional surges. Of course, it does not mean that it has a positive or negative impact. All this is valid for planets in signs also. Indeed, the Moon in Aries is combative, and, to get back to our previous example, most likely over-emotional. Mercury in Gemini is prone to increase intellectual curiosity and keenness, or to scatter intellectual abilities, since this planet naturally rules intelligence. With Leo, Aquarius, and Gemini as dominant signs, Obama is a noble and inventive person who is clever in communication. It must be noted that when the birth time is unknown, approximations are caused by astrological houses and by the Moon, whose average motion is 12 degrees per day, thus 6 degrees in 12 hours, which constitutes the maximal margin of error, if noon is taken as a conventional reference. Thus, considering that a sign measures 30 degrees, there is a non-negligible, yet relatively limited probability, that the Moon shifts signs, if her position at noon is between 24 and 30 degrees, or between 0 and 6 degrees of any astrological sign. As for the place of birth, similarly to the time of birth, it is possible, but not desirable of course, to ignore it. A different location implies a different domification, which means different astrological houses. By contrast, planets are not affected, and their interpretation in signs and aspects remains entirely valid. It is definitely very narrow! Thus, the impact is often negligible, except in the case where some planets move from one house to another. With Fire and Air as dominant elements, Obama is an energetic, enterprising, mobile person, endowed with a strong communication talent. It sometimes discloses psychological facets which the chart owner is not yet aware of. For instance, an exaggerated emotional vulnerability can be exploited deliberately for artistic creations, and a natural tendency towards violence can be redirected into athletic exploits, etc. May we remind that for example in France, in the majority of cases, and for free, with a simple telephone call to the town hall of the natal city, you can get a birth certificate with the time of birth, even though you are not a relative. It is strongly recommended to know the birth time before ordering a Comprehensive Psychological Portrait.
