Writing Activity 20 minutes Today for writing, the students will extend the poem and write what the bear saw on the other side of the mountain. My students get so excited when they get to put their ideas in a poem or story. I will gather ideas through discussion and put the ideas on a circle map. I would like to make up a new verse to the poem. In this poem, the bear only saw the other side of the mountain. We will use the circle map to brainstorm our ideas. And use my name sticks to call on students for their ideas of what the bear saw. I give everyone an opportunity to add something to our circle map. Your verse to the poem will be awesome. I model the writing process. I draw a mountain and then draw what I think the bear will see. I erase my answer and leave the sentence frame on the board. Draw your mountain and then on the other side draw what the bear saw. I will give you a little bear to color and put on the mountain. Write your sentence on the bottom of your page. When they are finished I collect the papers and we sit back on the carpet. Going up as a row gives them the confidence to read more loudly and often times their friends help them with their readings. I love to watch my students being kind and helpful to each other. Each students has the opportunity to do an oral reading. We applaud and cheer after each reading and laugh at some of the things the bear sees.
