Bible Story Puppets and Poems includes reproducible patterns for 38 sets of scenery and puppets. The puppets and sets are easy and fun to make. Children will enjoy preparing for, listening to, and participating in the telling of these great Bible stories in rhyme.

First, we found 66 large boxes cereal box size that open like a book-cereal boxes will work, if you tape the tops and cut the front panel to open up and close. We used boxes from a computer store that held hard drives-they were very strong and opened like a book sort of. We decorated them some, added a ribbon, etc. Then we built a huge book case out of scrap wood, big enough to hold all 66 books and sectioned so that we could divide them by Law, Poetry, etc. Genesis was easy and full in no time, grapes, a toy horse, lion, fish, people paper dolls, a wax apple, a little coat of many colors, pictures of Egypt, stock of grain, endless ideas. And you can keep adding indefinitely. We used pages from Sunday school lessons, little crafts they did, just anything that you can pull out and will remind the kids of a story from that book. I wrote Scripts for my puppet team to introduce the books, using our Bible puppet as the teacher. Each Sunday morning, at the beginning of kids church, Bethany Bible and her friends would introduce a section of the bible. The nice part is that we did not have to have all the books filled before we started teaching, in fact, we started with an empty shelf and added the books as we went. And we let the kids help us fill them. There are dozens of games you can play, like one person chooses a book off the shelf and gets something out of it, and see who is the first one to tell the story that goes with the item. They make great rainy day activities, pull out an item, tell a story, extra time fillers, etc. They add to the stories in any curriculum. AND-the giant books and bookcase really make the room look fun and inviting. Some of the puppet skits that we used to introduce the different books will be posted here in the CMIV as a series. Puppet used live mic to allow for ad-libs and interaction with the audience. Puppets were behind stage and I was in front, guiding them. Our Bethany voice had a slight sweet southern accent, and was excitable, and talked fast. Depending on your puppeteer, you can create your own personality for her. OR-make it Billy Bible. Remember last time I was here I asked you to read a story out of the history section of the old testament? Does anyone have a story they can tell me this morning? Is that what the Bible poetry is all about? Can you guess who that book is about? And Job learns how wonderful and powerful and Holy God is. And How much he needs God! It goes right behind Esther. Job is an amazing story of a man that worshiped the Lord no matter what happened to him. I never get tired of reading Psalms. I like to read out of Psalms just before I go to sleep at night. BB- that is a very good habit to have. Thank you, you darling little thing. Now, lets see, what book is next? Hmm, I am getting old who can tell me what comes after Psalms? Let me see if I can find it. Wait for me to call you back up Me: ME- and I like to read a section of Proverbs every morning. It always gives me a good lesson for the day. How many of you marvelous children try to read your Bible every day? You know, you shouldâ€¦. And it is, well, boys sorry, but it is full of the mushy love stuff. Someone help me by putting The song of Solomon on the shelf, and where does it go? It looks like our shelf is getting full, but lets see â€¦ Me: And how many books are in the Bible? We have a ways to go. So be here next week! And remember, read your Bible every dayâ€¦.
