Crack house Part I of the Act "Premises where drugs used unlawfully" enables the police to close residential premises concerned in the use, production or supply of Class A drugs and which are associated with serious nuisance or disorder to members of the public in the preceding three months. The effect of the order is that no-one may enter the premises whilst the order is in place, and it becomes a criminal offence to do so. Antisocial behaviour closure orders[ edit ] Part IA of the Act "Premises associated with persistent disorder or nuisance" was inserted by Section of the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act , and came into force in December Known as a Part 1A Closure Order or Antisocial Behaviour Closure Order [4] [5] the new Sections 11AL of the Act permit the police or local authority to apply to Magistrates to close premises where they are satisfied that within the preceding three months [6] the premises have been associated with "significant and persistent disorder or persistent serious nuisance to members of the public. Council house Part II "Housing" amended housing legislation to require social housing organisations to adopt and publish policies on anti-social behaviour. It also strengthens the power of registered social landlords RSLs to take action against tenants who cause nuisance or annoyance to neighbours. Where a person is invited into residential premises by the occupier, in breach of an s. These are intended to specify steps parents must take to control their children. Dispersal zones[ edit ] Part IV "Dispersal of groups etc. There is also a power for a police officer or PCSO to accompany any unaccompanied person of under 16 to their home between the hours of 9 pm and 6 am. Section 30 does not apply to lawful pickets, [13] although the human rights implications have been considered by the courts on a number of occasions. These groups are set out in regulations made by the Secretary of State, and can be changed at any time. It gives councils power to serve a closure order on premises causing public nuisance by noise. It makes the sale of aerosol paint to any person under 16 illegal. This Part also amends the provisions of the Public Order Act concerning public assemblies. This Act reduces the number to two. High hedges[ edit ] Part VIII "High Hedges" is in response to concerns about hedges , typically of Leyland Cypress plants, which can grow to 6 metres or more in height, sometimes cutting out light for neighbours. Such hedges are not controlled by town planning legislation which normally limits the height of fences to 2 metres , and so there was formerly no way of preventing people from allowing such a hedge to grow. This part of the Act gives local authorities the power to investigate complaints made by people affected by such hedges, and, if necessary, to require their reduction. Councils can charge a fee for dealing with such complaints.
