Very much entwined with human nature, such beliefs and practices have continued to the present day. Archaeological finds show evidence of a plethora of ancient curses and protective spells, such as the discovery of cursed tablets, evil eye talismans, and warding items. The history of curses varies between cultures, locations, religions or beliefs, and times. However, the intention of the curse has consistently been to conjure a supernatural power to inflict misfortune or punishment on a target. A curse, sometimes called jinx, hex, or dark spell, can be verbalized, written, or sometimes cast through elaborate ritual. The aim is to see harm befall the recipient - bad luck may dog them, death may take them, or any number of dire or annoying fates may plague them. In antiquity a curse was a powerful phenomenon, often viewed as the summoned wrath of gods, or the presence of evil forces. It was believed that those finding themselves cursed could seek help from magic practitioners, shamans, religious leaders, healers or witchdoctors, and have the curse reversed through counter rituals or prayer. A way to avoid being cursed in the first place was to possess certain items of protection or warding. The purpose of spells and curses were, and remain today, aimed at punishing or changing behavior, warding off disaster, and controlling the actions of other people. Pharaohs Curse Ancient Egyptian curses are probably the most notorious. They gained infamy in when the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamun was opened. The mysterious deaths of some of the archaeology team and prominent visitors to the tomb soon after it was opened, and the subsequent publicity, caused a firestorm of speculation as to the power of the curses. Journalists and authors of the day fanned the flames. In reality, deadly curses in royal tombs in Egypt are rare, as the idea of invaders or raiders breaching the tomb and desecrating the contents was unthinkable and even dangerous to inscribe. Warnings or wards were more frequently used to preserve the ritual purity of a tomb, or for generalized protection. Wikipedia notes that some curses can be found in private tombs of the Old Kingdom. One tomb from the 9th to 10th dynasty warns "any ruler who The Royal Cobra Uraeus on the mask of Tutankhamun represented a protector goddess, and not a curse. Wikipedia Warnings and Wardings Curses, or the threat of cursed objects, was a clever method used to protect valuables. During the Medieval period, book curses were widely used and effective at keeping thieves away from precious tomes and important scrolls. The Medieval Catholic Church possessed many of the books, and the penalty for defacing or stealing books was high. Curses written in the tomes warned would-be thieves of dire repercussions, such as excommunication or damnation. This practice dated back to pre-Christian times, and was used in the earliest libraries. The books in a collection at the library at Ninevah in Mesopotamia were marked with various curses. Malevolent Hexes and Witchcraft While history shows that pre-Christian beliefs included the power of both light blessings and curses, the concept of dark curses is now often associated with witchcraft and dark spirits. Cursing Tablets were one way the people of the ancient Greco-Roman society attempted to harness malevolent spirits and the wrath of powerful gods to damn their foes. Binding spells would be scratched into the surface of thin, lead tablets. The tablets would then be rolled up, nails were driven into them, and they were placed underground. They ended up at the bottom of wells, nailed to temple walls, or buried with the dead. Sometimes tablets appealed to underworld gods, Pluto, Hekate, or Persephone, while other times the text simply named the victim and the misfortune or death that was to befall them. One tablet found in London reads: Wikipedia year old tablet curses were found in Italy and recently translated. LiveScience reports that the malevolent words and frightening images were meant to spell the end for both a Roman senator and a veterinarian named Porcello. A drawing of the Greek goddess Hekate was scratched into the lead plate, with snakes writhing on her head. Their soul, heart, buttocks, liver Historically in Europe it was assumed that if crops suffered blight, or food spoiled unexpectedly, that a curse was behind it. Accusations of witchcraft were a product of the tension created by such occurrences, and innocent people were frequently killed as a result of witch trials. It dates back to the upper Palaeolithic period, and it is still warded against today in many cultures, especially the Middle East, Latin America, Africa, Central America, Asia, Europe, and the Mediterranean. This malevolent glare, or evil look, is the cause of back luck or injury, and is a curse sometimes believed to be caused by feeling jealousy, possessing certain eye colors, or being over-complimentary or covetous. Because belief in the power of the evil eye is so pervasive around the world, in many countries talismans or amulets designed to ward off the curse can be found readily. This Ruby Eye Pendant from an ancient Mesopotamia was used as a warding amulet to protect against the evil eye curse Danielness, Creative Commons While curses and magic might seem to be the superstition of the ancients, there are many today who still arm themselves with amulets or wards of protection against the affects of curses. Our rational, scientific world now scoffs at the idea of curses being a danger to anyone, and yet medical science can show that the Nocebo Effect â€” an adverse psychogenic reaction to a perception or expectation - remains a powerful psychological and physiological phenomenon. In this way, perhaps curses from ancient times remain powerful to this very day.

Curses are Advanced Black Magick. I personally have no issues with Hexes or placing a curse on a deserving person. I am a glass half full type of person, and believe everyone deserves a second chance however there are people in the world that choose to hurt other people.

Dorothy Morrison is a badass wicked witch that knows her stuff! She is personable, easy to understand and most importantly she does NOT talk down to you. The information Dorothy gives in this book is sound, helpful and refreshing. Even if you are not keen on cursing or hexing I think this book is essential to any witchy book collection. For me, it was truly eye opening and the information golden. Usually, books will talk about the importance of only doing workings that are for protection, prosperity, etc. To me, I think it all sort of goes hand-in-hand. What could you possibly do that would cause no harm in that situation? Let the fly escape and the spider goes hungry. First off, I absolutely loved the idea behind the book! Let the spider eat and the fly dies. Either way, if you help one, the other suffers. It may only be slightly. You might not even know the person. And they might not even notice it. But you will affect them. Ethics aside, what did I think of the book? It follows the typical cookbook-style. One thing I really liked is that it actually explained why certain ingredients were used and gave suggestions for adapting things to your own need. One part that made me laugh out loud was a portion about using cemetery for portions of the work. Like the previous book, this one made generalized statements about the orisha as a way of adding credibility to various practices. As a whole, the book was good.

I am a glass half full type of person, and believe everyone deserves a second chance however there are people in the world that choose to hurt other people. If one of these people was to cross my path and to do me wrong, I have no hesitation in doing what I can to prevent them from continuing on their mission of chaos. You can choose to be a victim or you can choose to protect yourself. Let a higher power decide who will be the victor! Remember what I said about the rice experiments , the power within the words is all about intention. Write down on paper, the exact reason why you want to cast a hex on this person Write down, exactly what you want the result to be. Are you still angry after five minutes? Do you still want revenge? Do you still want to stop this person? Have you changed your mind? Take the piece of paper to bed with you at night. Think about it before you go to bed. Do the same line of questioning as three when you wake up. Witches that use black magic understand the need of protection. Your own personal connection, firstly to yourself through meditation, then to drawing light for protection, and then to spirit through meditation. If you need help in being able to meditate, to draw the light, and then to connect to spirit, do the spiritual warfare six month self-paced course " with daily exercises two master meditation and connection To spirit. Be mentally ready and yet unconcerned I believe that to perform a hex, curse, or death spell you must yourself be willing for revenge, and that to perform a spell to harm another being, you must be willing to be harmed. That is not willing your self to be harmed " I am not saying that. What I am saying is, that I am unattached to the concern of revenge because I would expect an enemy if they have the capability to return the hex. This means that I am just prepared, and except that this is part of my job! Every job has dangers right?

4: 5 Karma-Friendly Alternatives to Curses and Hexes

No matter what you call them: black magic spells, hexes or curses, they are something you should be careful with. Hexes Cast Against You. I'll leave the real lecturing until the next section and just mention a few things about black spells or hexes that have been cast against you.

Dealing With Curses, Hexes And Spells by John Edmiston Curses are an unusual topic, but they are real, you can even buy numerous books on how to curse people in most bookstores especially New Age bookstores. They are now part of "teenage witch" type TV programs. However curses are not playthings and are profoundly emotionally disturbing for those who experience them. They are not just angry words or swear words; they are acts of power in the spiritual realm. Curses are mentioned over times in Scripture, and were foundational to the Old Covenant see Deuteronomy Curses are not just a primitive superstition; they are spiritual pronouncements recorded in Scripture, that profoundly affect the very structure of reality in some way. Secondly curses and blessings can be from evil spirits or flow from the human spirit. The David and Goliath encounter was a power encounter of one spiritual system against the other and both contenders came in the name of their respective deities. Shamans and magicians such as Balaam were hired to curse people in OT times and still do this today. Though curses from evil sources much less powerful than curses from God they still were feared and were able to do much damage. There are 22 references exhorting believers not to curse others. Curses are finally ended in the new creation Rev The Origin of Blessings and Curses The origin of blessings and curses is found in the book of Genesis. These three basic blessings of: Lets look at this a little bit further: Fruitfulness is the ability to joyfully express your inner nature and feel that which you are doing is truly creative, worthwhile and significant. Its opposite is pain in creation especially barrenness. Multiplication is exponential increase - increasing as in 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, not additively as in 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, Multiplication is a huge increase in productivity for a small increase in effort. Its opposite is frustration and futility. Putting in a huge effort for little or no reward. Authority to rule over means dignity, headship, authority, the ability to be ascendant, to be the head not the tail. Its opposite is being humbled, to eat the dirt, to be crushed and humiliated, to be unable to rise. In Genesis 3 we see the first curses in operation. The woman is made unfruitful, the man is made to work in futility and the serpent is told he will eat the dirt. The three things that make life good are reversed. Thus when we are cursed we find life very difficult indeed. No matter how hard we try to rise we never quite make it. Time and time we get to the brink of success only to have it snatched away. Curses can affect health, particularly reproductive health. They can affect earning power and they can affect our ability to have authority and command over our lives and people who are cursed may have to endure lifelong humiliation. The Effect of Curses And Witchcraft As a missionary I can say that curses are real and in some cases they are even lethal; Ezekiel talks of magic charms that hunted lives Ezekiel Curses are on the rise in Western culture as people dabble more and more in the occult and in organizations where people take secret oaths that invoke curses such as the Masons. Emotionally curses produce deep confusion and despair and an inability to think straight. If your life is affected by sterility, barrenness, constant lack of success and failure to gain any sort of ascendancy no matter how hard you try then a curse may be in operation. If you think this may be the case then do some research on your life and family history and take the matter before the Lord. The good news is that breaking curses can be surprisingly easy for Christians because we dwell under the protection of the blood of Jesus Christ. Curses have greatest power where the person who has been cursed has committed some great act of wickedness such as involvement in the occult. The reverse is also true, curses have little or no power over a righteous person and Proverbs says that a curse without cause will not alight on the head of a righteous man. Curses may come upon you because of your own conduct because of: Curses may be aimed at you by others because of: In some cases parents curse their children, particularly the first-born son, in order to attain power in a deal with Satan or his representatives. This is said to occur in Masonic rituals. Abide in the righteousness of Christ where no curse can penetrate. Ephesus was noted for its magic practices Acts 19 and its curses and witchcraft. The primary purpose behind Paul writing to the Ephesians was so they could have some understanding of their power, authority and degree of protection in their pagan and occult city. The armor of God is like the Kevlar of the spirit world protecting the Christian against curses, magic and occult practices. He did this when Balak tried to get Balam to curse Israel. A brief prayer by Jabez that has received a lot of popularity lately is a case of a person appealing to God to have a curse turned into a blessing and succeeding. David did not fear the curse, but instead asked God to bless him and outdo the curse, and then to turn the curse back on those who uttered it. God can out-bless the most fearsome and disabling curses. It gives us hope that our prayers to God based on the name of Jesus can not only break curses but have them turned into blessings instead. We have to break ties with such sins by not participating in occult ceremonies that may be traditional and even confessing such involvement of your parents and ancestors and forsaking them in a prayer of renunciation to God. The essential thing is to make a clear break with the familial sin in your own heart, mind and spirit. For instance if we have our Grandmothers pack of tarot cards we need to get rid of them. People knew that if they did these things God would repay. Even in the New Testament God is referred to as the one who punishes those who defile the marriage bed. If you have done any of the things in the above list then repentance, restoration and an earnest appeal to God for mercy would be a good starting point in breaking the curse over your life. If you are in ministry do the work of the Lord diligently and obey His specific instructions if you have been given such instructions. In the book of Haggai God puts a curse on the nation Haggai 1: There are over verses on curses in Scripture and the above list just touches on some of the main causes and their remedies. Most curses generally last only generations though some have lasted since Creation. Repentance from sin, breaking ties with the occult and taking refuge in Christ who has become a curse for us are the main strategies we can use to break curses. Part of this is putting on the whole armor of God, which is designed to protect us from curses leveled against us in the course of spiritual warfare Ephesians 6: When the curse is lifted then the human spirit that has been affected by the curse and been bowed down with pain, confusion and futility will be quickly healed. The person will recover and emotional normality should soon follow. A Prayer To Pray To Lift A Curse If you think that your life may have been affected by a curse then gather with a small group of believing Christian friends who support you and pray the following prayer: We come in the name and authority of Jesus Christ to deal with curses pronounced over the life of X your full name. We ask the protection of the blood of Jesus Christ as we pray and we bind the activity of any evil spirits in Jesus name. We claim the full armor of God read Ephesians 6: We assert that X has been seated in the heavenly realms with Christ Jesus far beyond the reach of curses. We break the curse and all its power in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. We pray for the restoration and blessing of X in accordance with the Scriptures especially Ephesians 1: We pray for the blessings of Abraham that are ours in Christ Galatians 3: We especially pray for the blessings give in to all humans at Creation - that of fruitfulness, multiplication and dominion. We out bless all the effects of the curse and by the power of God we turn the curse into a blessing. We ask Jesus to minister to all the places in "X"s life that the devil has cursed. We ask for healing of body, mind and spirit and restoration of life and a just, fair and blessed prosperity in Jesus name. You may need to do this three or four times. I have seen it work and bring peace to many. Remove all items associated with the occult e. Pray something like "In the name of Jesus I remove the effects of any hex or spell. Others are like a sharp stabbing pain in the head or abdomen that is without medical explanation and which is emotionally distressing. Drug addiction may sometimes be associated with occult activity and casting of spells against people. Again the solution is to form a believing prayer group, and break the spell by applying the cross to the problem. Something like "Our son Jim seems to be being manipulated by witchcraft and may be under a spell Lord, therefore, in the name of Jesus we break all spells and hexes, renounce all vows and free him from all occult bondages for the person you set free is free indeed. Free his will from the dominion of Satan and make him strong and full of the light of the Lord. Use the long prayer on curses as a model for how to pray in these other areas as well. It may entail a visit to a cemetery, or even being in proximity of someone evil. A Demonic attachment is in itself a curse. I recommend anyone to say these prayer first, just in case something you believe to be demonic infestation or influence is related to an unknown curse. Thank you, Father, for hearing our prayer. Thank You for the wisdom and light of Your Holy Spirit. Thank You for enabling us through Your Holy Spirit to be aggressive against the works of the enemy. Thank You for Your Hope, that takes away discouragement; thank You for ongoing victory. Father, We now place our enemies into your hands. Look with mercy upon them, and do not hold their sins against them. Anyone who has cursed our family and household, we now bless. Anyone who has hurt us, we now forgive. Lead all souls to Heaven, and help especially those who are most in need of Thy Mercy. Holy Michael the Archangel, defend us in battle. Be our protection against the wickedness and snares of the devil. May God rebuke him, we humbly pray; and do thou, O prince of the heavenly hosts, by the power of God, thrust into hell Satan and all the other evil spirits who prowl through the world seeking the ruin of souls. I thank You for sending your Son Jesus Who won victory over sin and death for my salvation. I thank You for sending Your Holy Spirit Who empowers me, guides me, and leads me into fullness of life. I thank You for Mary, my Heavenly Mother, who intercedes with the holy angels and saints for me. Heavenly Father, let the healing waters of my baptism now flow back through the maternal and paternal generations to purify my family line of Satan and sin. I come before You, Father, and ask forgiveness for myself, my relatives, and my ancestors, for any calling upon powers that set themselves up in opposition to You or that does not offer true honor to Jesus Christ. By the power of Your Holy Spirit, reveal to me, Father, any people I need to forgive and any areas of unconfessed sin. Reveal aspects of my life that are not pleasing You, Father, ways that have given or could give Satan a foothold in my life. Lord Jesus, in Your Holy Name, I bind all evil spirits of the air, water, ground, underground, and netherworld. Heavenly Father, allow Your Son Jesus to come now with the Holy Spirit, the Blessed Virgin Mary, the holy angels and the saints to protect me from all harm and to keep all evil spirits from taking revenge on me in any way. Repeat the following sentence three times; once in honor of the Father, once in honor of the Son, and once in honor of the Holy Spirit. In the Holy Name of Jesus, I seal myself, my relatives, this room place, home, church, car, plane, etc. To break and dissolve all satanic seals, repeat the following paragraph three times in honor of the Holy Trinity because satanic seals are placed three times to blaspheme the Holy Trinity. In the Holy Name of Jesus, I break and dissolve any and all curses, hexes, spells, snares, traps, lies, obstacles, deceptions, diversions, spiritual influences, evil wishes, evil desires, hereditary seals, known and unknown, and every dysfunction and disease from any source including my mistakes and sins. Lord Jesus fill me with charity, compassion, faith, gentleness, hope, humility, joy, kindness, light, love, mercy, modesty, patience, peace, purity, security, serenity, tranquility, trust, truth, understanding, and wisdom. Help me to walk in Your Light and Truth, illuminated by the Holy Spirit so that together We may praise, honor, and glorify Our Father in time and in eternity. I confess and renounce every sin, iniquity, and transgression that I, myself, my ancestors and forefathers have committed by our using or participating in that have offended God our father in heaven. In Jesus Holy Name and by his precious blood, All these curses are broken on me, and on all generations walking the earth, and all future generations from the soles of our feet to the crowns of our heads and on all items of possessions and property which I now seal with the precious blood of Jesus Christ our lord. Very much entwined with human nature, such beliefs and practices have continued to the present day. Archaeological finds show evidence of a plethora of ancient curses and protective spells, such as the discovery of cursed tablets, evil eye talismans, and warding items. The history of curses varies between cultures, locations, religions or beliefs, and times. However, the intention of the curse has consistently been to conjure a supernatural power to inflict misfortune or punishment on a target. A curse, sometimes called jinx, hex, or dark spell, can be verbalized, written, or sometimes cast through elaborate ritual. The aim is to see harm befall the recipient – bad luck may dog them, death may take them, or any number of dire or annoying fates may plague them. In antiquity a curse was a powerful phenomenon, often viewed as the summoned wrath of gods, or the presence of evil forces. Ancient Egyptian Curse Inscription It was believed that those finding themselves cursed could seek help from magic practitioners, shamans, religious leaders, healers or witchdoctors, and have the curse reversed through counter rituals or prayer. A way to avoid being cursed in the first place was to possess certain items of protection or warding. The purpose of spells and curses were, and remain today, aimed at punishing or changing behavior, warding off disaster, and controlling the actions of other people. Pharaohs Curse Ancient Egyptian curses are probably the most notorious. They gained infamy in when the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamun was opened. The mysterious deaths of some of the archaeology team and prominent visitors to the tomb soon after it was opened, and the subsequent publicity, caused a firestorm of speculation as to the power of the curses. Journalists and authors of the day fanned the flames. In reality, deadly curses in royal tombs in Egypt are rare, as the idea of invaders or raiders breaching the tomb and desecrating the contents was unthinkable and even dangerous to inscribe. Warnings or wards were more frequently used to preserve the ritual purity of a tomb, or for generalized protection. Wikipedia notes that some curses can be found in private tombs of the Old Kingdom. The Royal Cobra Uraeus on the mask of Tutankhamun represented a protector goddess, and not a curse. Warnings and Wardings Curses, or the threat of cursed objects, was a clever method used to protect valuables. During the Medieval period, book curses were widely used and effective at keeping thieves away from precious tomes and important scrolls. The Medieval Catholic Church possessed many of the books, and the penalty for defacing or stealing books was high. Curses written in the tomes warned would-be thieves of dire repercussions, such as excommunication or damnation. This practice dated back to pre-Christian times, and was used in the earliest libraries. The books in a collection at the library at Ninevah in Mesopotamia were marked with various curses. Malevolent Hexes and Witchcraft While history shows that pre-Christian beliefs included the power of both light blessings and curses, the concept of dark curses is now often associated with witchcraft and dark spirits. Cursing Tablets were one way the people of the ancient Greco-Roman society attempted to harness malevolent spirits and the wrath of powerful gods to damn their foes. Binding spells would be scratched into the surface of thin, lead tablets. The tablets would then be rolled up, nails were driven into them, and they were placed underground. They ended up at the bottom of wells, nailed to temple walls, or buried with the dead. Sometimes tablets appealed to underworld gods, Pluto, Hekate, or Persephone, while other times the text simply named the victim and the misfortune or death that was to befall them. One tablet found in London reads: LiveScience reports that the malevolent words and frightening images were meant to spell the end for both a Roman senator and a veterinarian named Porcello. A drawing of the Greek goddess Hekate was scratched into the lead plate, with snakes writhing on her head. Historically in Europe it was assumed that if crops suffered blight, or food spoiled unexpectedly, that a curse was behind it. Accusations of witchcraft were a product of the tension created by such occurrences, and innocent people were frequently killed as a result of witch trials. It dates back to the upper Palaeolithic period, and it is still warded against today in many cultures, especially the Middle East, Latin America, Africa, Central America, Asia, Europe, and the Mediterranean. This malevolent glare, or evil look, is the cause of back luck or injury, and is a curse sometimes believed to be caused by feeling jealousy, possessing certain eye colors, or being over-complimentary or covetous. Because belief in the power of the evil eye is so pervasive around the world, in many countries talismans or amulets designed to ward off the curse can be found readily. This Ruby Eye Pendant from an ancient Mesopotamia was used as a warding amulet to protect against the evil eye curse. While curses and magic might seem to be the superstition of the ancients, there are many today who still arm themselves with amulets or wards of protection against the affects of curses. Our rational, scientific world now scoffs at the idea of curses being a danger to anyone, and yet medical science can show that the Nocebo Effect – an adverse psychogenic reaction to a perception or expectation – remains a powerful psychological and physiological phenomenon. In this way, perhaps curses from ancient times remain powerful to this very day.

Break Black Magic Spell particularly curses and hexes with Powerful Hanumath Kavacham. E-Book with Lyrics in English, Sanskrit and other Indian languages.

I mean, I totally get it. It seems your options for doing something about it in the physical world are so painfully limited, you feel almost irresistibly compelled to direct your considerable personal power toward causing them harm. In my regrettable experience, karmic backlash is a real thing. But, hey, cheer up: The five alternatives below will provide valuable magical recourse without endangering your own energy, sanity, and general wellbeing. Reflect All Energy Back to Its Source A traditional feng shui cure for dealing with challenging neighbors involves nothing but a mirror. Usually the mirror is placed outside of the house, but apartment dwellers can place the reflective side against the wall, and hide it behind a picture or a sofa. This same practice can be adapted for the workplace, or you can even wear a mirrored pendant and set the intention that it reflect all energy back to a specific source. The important thing is the intention. It can be as big as an entire wall or as tiny as a mirrored tile. Cast a Protection Spell There are plenty of spells that work wonderfully for protecting your physical and energetic wellbeing. Dragonsblood incense and incense holder A lighter or matches Sunflower oil like for cooking A small bowl, shot glass, or saucer Light the candle and incense. Archangel Michael, I call on you and invoke your protection. Please keep me completely safe in all ways, at all times. Please surround me in your fiery divine light through which no negativity may enter. Add one drop of frankincense essential oil and combine. Then lightly anoint your forehead, throat, heart, belly, and wrists with the oil. Finish by picking up the incense and holder and safely wafting the smoke around your body and home if applicable. Place the incense back near the candle and allow it to burn all the way out. And this spell can act as your alarm clock. Hold the identifying paper in both hands and say, [Name of person], you have no power over me. What once seemed like power is now erased. It is null and void. It was never even there in the first place. It now completely dissolves, dissipates, disappears, and returns to its native nothingness, now and forever, in all directions of time. Place the card, photo, or name in the jar and completely surround it with sea salt by pouring it over the top and filling the remainder of the jar. Feel your own power returning and remember how magical you actually are. Keep the jar on a shelf or in a cupboard until you feel you no longer need the magical reminder. Bind Someone from Causing Harm In some cases, a binding spell is just the thing. Namely, if someone is behaving like a bully in any sense of the word, and you want to stop them from causing harm. Activate Swift Justice Perhaps the person in question is actually doing something illegal, or has done something illegal. Lucky for us, there are divine helpers who just love enforcing swift and appropriate justice. The Norse god Forseti is my personal favorite to call on for the purpose. When you feel his powerful presence, send him gratitude in the form of visualized light. With or without words, show him the situation. Be sure to feel your feelings and project them to him as well. Imagine that you are illuminating the dark spaces and shining light on the true situation. Then ask Forseti to intervene on your behalf and bring you the justice that you deserve by saying: I honor you with love and light And thank you for your wisdom bright! Feel even more gratitude, and be sure to heartily thank Forseti once justice has been served. Click To Tweet Related.
