Listen Do you have what it takes to be the next big Hollywood star? Or perhaps you instead see your name in lights on a Broadway marquee? Maybe you just want to see your name in the program of your next high school musical? If any of these scenarios sound like you, then you obviously want to be an actor someday. But can just anyone be an actor? If you want to be an actor, you can make it happen. Turn on the television and flip through the channels. As for natural talent, it certainly helps to be born with the ability to perform. But acting is also something that can be learned and mastered through lots of practice. Like any skill, it can be taught. Actors are just storytellers at heart. Instead of reading a story aloud, they act out the story in the form of a movie, television show, or play. Think about your favorite television show or movie. You can probably name one or two of the actors that star in it. Maybe you can even name three, or four, or more. But watch it again and count the total number of actors involved. Most actors spend a lot of time trying out for roles – called auditioning – and then memorizing their lines, practicing, and performing. There are many ways to become an actor. Many colleges and universities have drama programs that will teach you the ropes. Of course, many actors get into acting simply by jumping in with both feet and giving it a try. From school plays to community theater productions, there are many acting opportunities you can take advantage of close to home.

However, actors are more likely to exhibit traits of neuroticism - Neuroticism is defined as psychology behavior characterized by anxiety, fear, moodiness, worry, envy, frustration, jealousy, and loneliness.

It is with Wong Kar-wai that Tony has enjoyed his strongest, most durable collaboration. Romance Around the end of , he dated Carina after they spent hours preparing a stage show. He had known her since "The replica" in She used to be a good friend with Margie, but after their romance went public, Margie and Carina distanced themselves from each other. Carina had just came off a humiliating experience of her own. Her ex-fiancee called off their wedding just weeks before the scheduled wedding day. Tony had recently broken up with Margie for the 3rd time. They were attracted to each other because they had suffered similar kind of losses. Both had plenty rocky relationships before and experienced enough hardships in life, Tony, a product of a broken family, and Carina, a mainlander trying to adapt in HK. For some reason, they bonded. From to now, Tony and Carina had been going steady, except a few minor incidents. One time, Carina met Valarie at a movie premiere, and she refused to take picture with Valarie. However, eventually when the rumor cooled down, everything was back to normal. In , Carina filed a law suit against her personal assistant for stealing her check. Her male assistant testified on the court that he had sexual relationship with her. But later, Tony dismissed the case by publicly going on air and said "I love Kai-Lin" on a radio show in new year eve. Then in , Carina were again involved in a complicated family matter. Her long time friend Mr. Lo was filing for divorce. The rumor said she was the third person in this marriage. Both Tony and Carina denied the rumor, and defended themselves. The never ending rumor mills were targeted at Tony again on the March of , Tony was being caught on camera driving Rosemund Kwan home. Later, Tony drove Rosamund home. Rosamund claims there is nothing going on with Tony. She is a good friend of Carina, and Tony simply gave her a ride home. Right after that, another rumored affair between Carina and a Taiwanese actor hit the stand, Tony claimed the rumor was ludicrous. All of things listed above were so-called "juicy" rumors, none had been proven true. Tony said many times before that he intended to get married whenever he felt like he wants to settle down. We will just have to be patient and wait for that moment. Childhood Tony was born on June 27, He used to be a mischievous boy before his father left the family. Although his father was a career gambler, but he took care of his family until the day he left them for good. After witness so many ill effects of gambling can do to a man, he promised to himself that he would never get involved in any kind of gambling activities. Even to this day, he would be reluctant to participate in a relaxing game of Majiang. He feeling toward his father was always mixed. To him, his father was just a stranger, if his father had stayed with the family, Tony could go to a college, something he always dreamed of. But there was very little he can do when his father left the family. His mother was left alone to take care of two young kids. He had trouble believing in marriage. He would picture marriage as something that was unreliable and stressful to certain extent. He behaved himself and grew into a mature kid. His mother worked hard to keep him attending a private school, but without a strong financial support, Tony quit school after age Tony was a close friend with Stephen Chiau at the time. Stephen used to talk to Tony about TVB training school and how he always wanted to become an actor. Early Success After he was admitted to the training school in , his acting talents quickly caught many directors by surprise. Tony was a determined young man with ambition to succeed. He put forth effort and made himself the prominent star of the eighties. His popularity exploded soon after the release of "Duke of Mount Deer" in His acting ability came natural for him. Tony had excelled in portraying various characters, and had gained the recognition as a versatile actor, as well as being an extremely popular one. They met in tvb batch artistes training class in Especially after "Police Cadet 85", they became the hottest couple on the screen as well as off the screen. They had broken up three times, each time was followed by a celebrated reunion. Their romance had kept everyone in suspense. However, the problems started when Tony reached the ultimate stardom after While Margie was gaining popularity after "Police Cadet 85", she too were busy shooting films and making new friends. Despite it all, they were still deeply in love. In a span of 4 years, they broke off and reunited three times, before finally calling off the relationship in After Tony broke up with Margie the second time in , he met Kitty Lai. They co-starred "Heavenly sword and Dragon Sabre" in . Soon after the release of "Heaven", they were rumored to fall in love. They even wrote hate mails to Kitty. Deep down, he still loved Margie more than anybody else. In mid of , Tony had a chance to work with Margie again on "Police Cadet ". So, where did this leave Kitty? In short, Tony left Kitty alone to face the humiliation of the press. In all fairness, he had deeply hurt a very lovely and sweet girl. Facing this agonizing defeat, all Kitty could do was to swallow the pain and stay strong. Even though many people wanted to blame Tony for this messy situation, however, they were also happy to see Tony and Margie finally getting back together. By the end of , Tony and Margie were officially separated for the last time. Troubling Years Tony became famous when he was very young. Being famous, every bit of his mistakes were magnified 10 times greater under the microscope. His stardom did not settle easy with him, he was struggling within himself. He was leery of all the attentions he had attracted. In short, he was living in fish bowl, paying a price for being rich and famous. As a kid who grew up without a father, he suffered the most ill effected self-esteem and self-abandonment. Even as his success and popularity grew, he was still unsure of himself. His self-abandonment had reached to a degree beyond his possible imagination. He was a tortured and miserable soul. Early , Tony was determined to leave tvb to begin his movie career. Tony was very successful in tvb, but he was getting paid very little compared to how much work he had put into. Only the movies offered him a better pay as well as a higher prestige. But he was taking a big risk leaving the small screen for the big screen. Alcohol and drugs had consumed him. He became so self-destructive that he often drunk himself to unconsciousness. There were several reasons behind it. The most influential fact had always been a lack of mentor. He never had anyone to consult with when facing problems. The insecure childhood and hurt feelings that had passed on to his adulthood. Without anybody to consolidate, he was confused and lost. Tony was a very dedicated actor, but he often worked himself into exhaustion trying to perfect his performance. He was always a perfectionist. Sometimes, he went too hard on himself. As the pressure built up, he often released himself into alcohol. During his darkest days, he spent days shooting movies, then nights in the bars. He had trouble to keep himself sober. He was making a habit of self-destruction. Alcohol had ruined everything he ever wanted to achieve. He was losing control of his life.
