

1: 'Broken' poems - Hello Poetry

I am feeling this poem deep in my heart. My husband of 10 years has found someone else to love. He asked me to move out, and I have. I feel so disconnected from my life, the life I knew. I.

What he used to tell his college students: Hell, life should break your heart every day. He reads a few old plays, one about two gorillas who dance alongside him in a motel lobby. He could have read one about the Belmar beach being invaded by American troops. Or the one where the borrowed library paintings on the walls of his apartment have people climbing out of the frames to talk with him at night. He wrote them to stay alive. Other mags to come out of that period were Footwork and Lips. Gillan turned her back on those who endorsed her and has made some kind of mark on the poetry world. Rich eventually left north Jersey and the life and wife he loved there. Much of this was brought about by a rigged prosecution of Rich as a home instructor in Passaic and Lyndhurst. This is a decision he has regretted often in his life, since he allowed the State to strip him and his family of every cent they possessed. He has never really recovered from the financial poverty. He received an expungement in After the infamy of September 11, Rich began an all-out, six year campaign of reading hard-hitting poems, poems to educate, poems to connect personal love and world love, at the Java Hut, which later became the diluted Coffee Blue, in Belmar, NJ. Online Rich resurrected actually the third incarnation of Passaic Review, following the original magazine, then Passaic Review Millennium Editions. Joined in this effort were scores of poets, including Bob Quatrone and Amiri Baraka. Rich kept the Ezine going until he abandoned it after the invasion of Iraq. Rich felt the country was no longer worth the risk involved in speaking so honestly publicly. This is a staged reading series of new plays from predominantly new playwrights. Rich has two sons, John and Eric, both poets, musicians, and athletes.

2: How Do I Mend A Broken Heart?, A Broken Heart, Heartbreak Poem

This poem is about the pain of a broken heart. Tears of blood fall from my broken heart. I never thought we would be apart. When you held me, you said forever.

Francine was at work and I always leave last in the morning. I reached for the door knob and turned. The door was open. The moment I entered I knew. I could feel it, smell it, hell I could taste it. It mocked me over and over again. I knew, I knew the moment I entered the apartment. They were naked and in our bed. How do you do that? How do you cross the line to that extreme? I did see green! That monster jealousy was by my side but I took charge. Being cut open alive must be less painful than this. I felt like a pile of worthless shreds. I spoke I mean my lips moved and words came out I said Sorry and I left. I was moving to the rhythm of the beating of my own heart. We had been so much. She was a big part of my life. She was the love of my life. I would never love anyone like that again. So much of her was me. I thought she was my soul mate. We let go of all of it. There is a feeling of betrayal. A feeling of disgust. A jealousy that takes over. Everything she ever did from that day on would always make me suspicious. Jealousy would rule me. Jealousy should never rule anyone. You have to remove that person out of your life. Trust, is the only gift we can offer. Friend, lover or stranger! People can trust me. My word is my bond. She had left a note.

Has this poem touched you? I loved him dearly that not even once did I give up or stop loving him, yet now we fell apart. To have to take all the broken pieces of me and gather them together hurt me. It hurts knowing how happy he is with the girl he loves. I know when we love someone we should let them be happy. Go somewhere you can clear your mind. Who knows what will happen tomorrow in a relationship? You might just break up. How would you deal with the loss then? I have a best friend. I never had a fight with her before. She started a relationship with her boyfriend about 1 year ago. When meeting with my organization he always sits down next to me. He has certain conversations and jokes with me. Sometimes he even takes me home. When they celebrated their first year anniversary in a cafe, suddenly my tears drops down my cheeks and I cried a lot. I realized that I falling in love with him. And now they have been in relationships for 16 months. Am I wrong to fall in love with him? Love is like an uncontrollable bullet. If you try to hide your love for him, yes, it will do good to your friend and the lover, but you will have no peace. Love is something that costs nothing. Umer 1 year ago No, you are not wrong. But what can we do now? This will be the proof of your pure love. Start your new life and keep in touch with him. He made a bet to make me fall for him about 3 months ago. He was smart and charming. He was fun to talk to. All this happened on the phone. And then to dispose me off more, he sent me pictures and videos with other people about how they chill and all. He and I had certain jokes and stories and games. I thought he was only like that with me, but he is like that with everyone. We rarely talk because I no longer feel good about myself after our conversations. But I like him now too much. I force myself and I did it. But what happened next was he came back to me about 2 weeks ago and said to me that he wanted to start it over. Can you tell me what to do? What do you think is best for both of us? Why did he come back? If you still love him, then go, because love is about sacrificing. It is all about forgiving. We never know if the second time around is sweeter and will work. If yes, then make the move. Fighting is a part of being in love, believe me. He was thinking as much as you were. He came back to show you that he needs you in his path. It made me cry. We often use the word love but not actually know the meaning of it Love is different for everyone! Love means different things to different people. The reason we need our hearts broken is so they will grow back stronger, much like the muscles on our arms. The only way to train it is to tear it then let it grow back stronger and more prepared for other problems. We all have different definitions of love, but I think it is also when you trust that person fully and even through the fights you say you are willing to make this work. No one is perfect, but love covers it all. If he is made for you then he would definitely come. Keep calm, hold your nerves, and have patience. I fell in love with this girl, and we have been dating for the past 5 month. I really love her. Every month we celebrate our anniversary. I got her a promise neck chain on our first month anniversary. She broke up with me when she realized she was pregnant. I was really hurt because I loved her still and wanted the baby, but she demanded an abortion. Do I call her and try to make things work out again? Be the best you, and people are going to love you for that. I found out how painful it is to love someone because at the end of one day they broke up with me for no reason. It was the worst. I would let it go and move on, eventually. It got easier for me when I lost my mom in That was the greatest heart break of all. It may not seem like it, but it will get better. You just have to force yourself to let go. Love can be the most addictive drug on earth, with the same withdrawals as heroin. Just fight through it, my friend. Moving on may be hard, but the right woman is out there for you somewhere. All it requires is a little faith and patience. I mean, I know you think that maybe your relationship just hit a bump, but I think you just smashed into a mountain. Now I also know you need closure, so try and talk to her. See why she is not interested anymore. I just want to know, Is our chance so low? This love is too much. You just leave me like a scratch. Early this year I was raped and I got pregnant and aborted it. He stood by me every step of the way. He never comes to visit anymore. Even though it might not feel like that, you are an amazing woman. You are a strong woman. I hope you find a better lover that will be with you. Maybe he is having a rough time emotionally, but if he was brave enough to stay with you before, then he will be there. Give him some time. Everything will be fine. One weekend he hung out with an old friend to catch up. He broke up me after that day. I didnt know why it hurt so bad. I love him and miss him so much. Today we went behind the stairs and we were hugging and crying and we kissed, but I want the pain to end. I just want this to end. Sometimes it only takes time to heal. I hope the time comes that your wound totally stops hurting.

I understand your feelings. One day at a time. This happened to me after 16 years with my husband. I still cry just as much as when he was gone. My wife did the same to me and has stopped me from seeing my children for a year, if not longer. I cry all day, even at work. I have no point in my life anymore. She controlled me for many years. I have no family. I am on my own. I wish you would come back to me. Baby, I am lost without you by my side. I feel so much pain. What can I do to win her back again? I love you Biscuit. But it feels nothing of sort. Three days ago my world crashed down when I learned of my husband cheating. The night before our wedding he went to a strip club, alone, after drinks with his friends. Gave his number to one of the strippers and proceeded to text her for the next three days. Yes that means while he waited for me to come down the aisle he was texting her. Along with minutes after we said "I do". Then for the rest of our wedding weekend spent at a resort! How do I believe his vows to me were honest when he was flirting and trying to sleep with a stripper the day of our wedding? Not to mention I am currently 34 weeks pregnant with our first child together!!! We have a blended family of 3 children who also will be heartbroken of our separation. My loving and joyful memories of the best day of my life is now gone. How do I recover from this? How do I forgive him? Is it fair for him to justify because he never did the act? I need advice ASAP!!! Make yourself and your baby your first priority. If it hurts now it may hurt even more down the road. Women need to step up and make themselves a priority. He has cheated on me with my best friend, I found them in our bed and other women when I was pregnant with our daughter. Once a cheater always a cheater. But I was stupid enough to waist my years.. Wish you the best. I can fully relate. I just broke up with my husband because he cheated on me when I was pregnant with our second child. I have no job at present, my parents are dead and my siblings do not understand the pain I was going through. I cling to God and myself to survive. The sight of my children at peace made me stronger each day. You are stronger than what you think. You are not alone. There is one man for every great woman and you have more strength than I have ever known. I am a man who was hurt just like you were. Recovering from a knee replacement and depression. After 2 years and 2 months I can still dream of my ex. Some days I tell myself that we well be together again and that one day this pain will be gone. Loved him with every fiber in my bone. And I can relate because I was in a relationship with someone for a lot of years. And believe me I tried to make it work. But he never had anytime for me at all he would put his friends before me. In every single way you can imagine I was the one always left in tears with my heart in pieces in my hand. I have had to finish with the man I love after six years, because he is married and I have come to realize that he will never leave his wife. I still love him so much and miss him terribly but I cannot put myself through all this pain time and time again. I have just emailed the poem to him and hope it goes deep into his soul and realizes what a big mistake he is making my staying in a love-less marriage just because its the easiest option. By the time she left me I was like a death log laying across the river bank. During the tide I was lying there but nothing came and talked to me I thought why and I wonder but it was true Love. We have been together for 50 years and I loved her so much, and will until I die. Why is life so cruel? The poem describes the way I feel, the way I hurt, the way I long for her touch, her embrace, her kiss. Love is a reciprocal relationship. I have faith that one day I will be put in his path and him in mine, I long for that day and fear it. In life people come into your life for brief moments, seasons, and if your lucky a life time. We had a moment in , a season in , and hopefully a life time is coming. Meeting him changed my entire life. He helped me through everything and truly became my most cherished friend. When he graduated we grew closer. I decided to graduate early and we were going to move in together. We did we were living in our temporary home and the day before we were going to go live in his house in San Antonio I went to go visit my parents. When I got there my father took my cell phone and keys. He told me I was living in sin. I regret every fight we ever had. I rarely get to see him and because of all the threats my parents made to him he feels it impossible to be with me. It leaves me feeling a little worthless. Nonetheless I am still trying. Pray for me guys and never give up on that person you love.
