Building better family relationships This material is also available in a PDF format: There are lots of ways to show you care even in busy families: Tune in One way to show you care is by listening to what other family members have to say with interest and enthusiasm. Other ideas include doing things for one another, helping without complaining! Hugs are another favourite. Have fun together, spend time doing things you enjoy. Doing simple things that allow you to relax and play together is very important for building positive feelings and connections amongst family members. Playing games or sports, going to the park, having picnics, visiting with friends or just relaxing together are examples of family activities that help to build relationships. Family rituals Family rituals can help to build a sense of connection and belonging. These may include family celebrations that happen once a year, as well as everyday activities like bedtime stories, morning cuddles or cooking a special meal together once a week. Having family rituals and routines that you enjoy together helps to create strong family bonds. Make time to talk Regular time for talking and listening to one another helps families to plan and set priorities, strengthen relationships and build mutual understanding. Share values Sharing common values strengthens belonging and helps families work together when challenges arise. Discuss your beliefs and values or tell stories about your own family and cultural history. Demonstrate through your behaviour values like respect, care, compassion and responsibility. Share the load Family life can get out of balance when one person feels they have the burden of responsibilities, or when one person makes all the decisions. Supporting each other includes sharing the chores and making sure that everyone gets to have a say in the decisions that affect them. Get support Family life has many challenges as well as rewards. Getting support when you need it " from extended family, friends, or professionals " is important for managing the challenges. Professional counselling is a particularly valuable strategy for helping many families who experience relationship problems.
