It's no secret that used car dealers have an unshakable reputation for shady deals, dishonest stunts, dirty tricks, tom foolery, shenanigans, and other undesirable actions that you should prefer never to have to deal with.

YOU Have to Read Have you been high pressured by the sales manager? Did the car salesman ever tell you your car is worth a whole lot less then its really worth? Does your car keeps breaking down? Have you been ripped off by the car dealer? Then you are about to read the letter you have been waiting for over years. Let me prove to you, how to turn the negotiations in your favor. Here, is why you should believe me. I was certified, trained to sell new and used cars. All logos above are registered trademarks of the owner. Look, I am not mad at the car manufacturers mentioned, that is not my intention. In fact, the car manufacturers make high quality cars, safety, reliability and family cars with excellent customer service. It is not the car manufacturers fault, in fact, it is the independent car dealers fault. It is the independent car dealers who own franchises who at times will do just about anything to get a car sold. It boils down to the car salesman who will do what ever it takes to make a sale today to earn his commission. Carmax is the worlds largest used car dealer and fortune company. In my opinion, they have the best car buying process with a no haggle price and 5 day money back guarantee. Car selling tactics is a year old mentality, and the old school car selling tactics came before the internet. With internet, search engines and social media the public is now becoming more aware of the problems in the car industry worldwide. The old school car selling system has been perfected for over years and has serious flaws! The mindset of do what ever it takes to sell a car today even if that means lying to you and ripping you off. This is how the old school, used car salesmen got their notorious reputation. The managers will never allow the buyer to leave the car lot without a T. This is insider car sales talk. It is mandatory, the car salesman must bring the customer from outside into the showroom, so the sales manager can sell you a car. You can not just go look without being high pressured, so forget about window shopping! That is what is fueling the greedy problem. Car salesmen are required to be trained by the manufacturers and become certified in product knowledge. That means your facing a team of highly trained car sales force starting with the car salesman, sales manager, used car manager, finance salesman, finance manager, parts department manager, service department manager and customer service manager. Not to mention, the support from the manufacturers representatives. My intent is to Help You, by teaching you what car dealers teach car salesmen. If you know the car sales training system, the games, then you will have the same knowledge as us and be part of our secret insiders circle. As a rookie car salesman, during my first year, I sold 34 cars in my 4th month and 30 cars in my 12th month. My best day, I sold 5 cars in one day. I just wanted to show you, I sold millions of dollars of cars in 4 years. How to Buy a New or Used Car? Why so many cars sold because my customers trusted me and liked me because I used this one secret technique. I did the exact opposite of what the car dealers taught me because I found it offensive to approach customers this way. Customers are not stupid. Customers hate salesman who are pushy and greedy. If buyers are liars, then what are car salesmen? Then attended 4 years of college, and studied Tae Kwon Do for 4 years under 2 time Korean silver medalist. Then trained with 2 time Olympic Tae Kwon Do silver medalist. Then studied Aikido in Chicago, and was awarded a Brown Belt. No I am not bragging, my point is to be awarded a Black Belt you have to have honor, integrity, discipline to those of higher rank and lower rank. In other words, I am no better then you. To be honest with you, my mom only has a 8th grade education, and I have to read to her. I know your pain, problems, no money down, want low payments, horrible credit because I was on the other side of the table as the car salesman. It used to break my heart to see innocent familys who desperately needed a good, reliable car get ripped off by the car dealer. I will be your master teacher. Miyagi of Black Hat Car Selling Secrets Would you like to join me on my sparring team as we take on the car salesmen and car dealers? In fact, I sold millions of dollars worth of cars. Then I met this guy and I will call him Mr. X showed me some dodgy, sneaky, black hat car selling techniques, that I was not happy about doing or promoting. My good friend Mr. X I was writing a book, and I wanted to help car shoppers from getting ripped off. He agreed with me that car dealers have been ripping off customers for years, and he wanted to help me by staying deep undercover! X mentored me and contributed his knowledge by pouring out his secrets to me, so I could give you the sneaky, black hat, inside secrets taught to car salesmen. I am so sick of car dealers and car salesman taking advantage of innocent car buyers, and bragging how they ripped them off. Used car salesmen have the most experience and are the most dangerous salesmen, so be extremely careful. Do you realize car salesman at your big franchise dealers, have to go through a certified training program on product knowledge, before they can sell a car off the new car showroom! When you walk into any big car dealer you are walking into a den of thieves and their waiting to get all your money like sheep to the slaughter. Finds Job as the New Car Sales Manager I know a new car sales manager who was an attorney, but they took away his license to practice law because of some off shore tax haven and IRS fraud, so now he has a job as the new car sales manager. Would you want ex attorney new car sales manager negotiating with you? Do you honestly think he wants to help you or rip you off? These are the people you are going to meet in the car business. You have no idea what your up against when you walk into a car dealer. Why would you walk into a car dealer and face a team of certified trained professionals starting with the salesman, new car manager, used car manager, floor manager, finance salesman, finance manager, customer service manager, parts manager and service manager? The minute you drive on the car dealers lot you will see a team of salesmen hanging around the front door smoking and joking like vultures. There is an honor up system, which means the salesman take turns to greet the next customer. I worked with a car salesman who had eagle eyes, he would see the car turn off the highway and just start to pull onto the car dealers lot. Then this guy was doing his yard sprint chasing the car down like a police officer before we could say your MaMa. I Would Rather Go to the Dentist Than Buy a Car at the Car Dealer" I sold a customer a car, who told me, he just wanted to get a fair deal, without the hassles of the salesman going back, and forth to the sales manager playing games. Then he told me, I would rather go to the dentist than buy a car. He said he hates the dentist drilling his teeth, like they had a jack hammer! Personally, I have to agree with my customer. I hate going to the dentist myself. You see I am a car salesman, and I can not stand some of the other car salesman, sales managers, and car dealers. Plus, the insider knowledge I gained from my mentor Mr. X in the car selling business. You will immediately start this 10 step process the minute you get out of your car. In fact, do you realize a high number of car salesmen are big liars, ex cons who could not find work, drug users and fast talkers. I remember when a van suddenly pulled up, and the sales manager yanked 5 salesmen into the van, to go take a surprise random drug test. Test results, 2 out of the 5 salesmen were on drugs and lost their job. That means if you just happened to get the salesman on drugs, you would have been negotiating with a "crack head" who desperately needs the money at your cost. Step 2 "Qualify: Find Common Ground p. Step 3 "Product Presentation p. Step 4 "Demo Drive the Car p. Step 5 "Trial Close p. Step 6 "Negotiate pgs. They will show you monthly payments and down payment on the 4 square worksheet designed to get you to focus on 2 things. Get this wrong and pay dearly! Learn why the salesman goes back and forth to the sales manager. Step 8 "T. Turn Over to Finance Office Manager p. I will show you how to get out of the contract even if you signed all the papers if follow my step by step plan. Step 9 "Delivery p. You need to make sure you check the used car by your mechanic in advance of delivery.

Used Car Guide Learn all of the important steps when buying a used car. We will cover all topics including choosing a car, getting quotes, negotiating with the seller and protecting yourself from buying a lemon. We level the playing field, teaching you how to get the best price on a car, while allowing for a fair dealer profit. We give you useful, easy to understand, examples of each step in the car buying process. Once you have decided to shop for a car, the first big decision you need to make is new or used. Most people have a very strong opinion on this topic. Typically it will come down to budget and personal preference. Some people would rather buy used because the large drop in value just by driving off the lot has already happened. Others prefer to only buy new because there is no risk of hidden issues not covered by a warranty. You will always get more car for your money when buying pre-owned vehicles. Whichever you decide, your goal is to get the best deal. Beware of "Good" or "Fair" Prices You probably think that is a strange warning from a site that tells you how to get a great deal when you buy a car. With all the advertising you see about getting the best price, you need to know that the price is only one component of a great deal. When dealers give you a great price they have even more incentive to make up profit on other parts of the deal. We will educate you, show you how to find true dealer cost and use our tools to haggle your best deal and avoid scams. Who else does that for you? After you read this guide you will become an informed, confident car buyer. You will get the most out of the site by reading everything but if you are interested in learning about something specific you can jump right in. How to use the internet to save money when financing your new car Bad Credit Auto Loan: Financing tips for people with less than perfect Credit Extended Warranty: Believe it or not, buying during certain parts of the month can get you a better deal. It can even depend on the launch date of a new model year. Read our tips on the best time to buy a car. However, one common sales tactic is for the dealer to tell you that "this new car is so hot that everyone pays MSRP or more. If it was, there would be a six month long waiting list. If your new car is not "in demand," then you should "demand" a lot less than MSRP! Please read the whole site before going car shopping. If you are really pressed for time, we have created a summarized version to help you. We have found a source where you can get new car rebate information, secret factory to dealer incentives and new car dealer invoice pricing. Buying a car is often one of the biggest purchases for a household. By following these well-kept car buying secrets, you can avoid the regret so many car buyers feel after they've already bought the wrong car at the wrong price.

Car Buying Tips These car buying tips will help you save money by avoiding common overcharges and outright rip-offs that occur at many car dealers across the country. These dirty tricks are not used by ALL car dealers, but they are used by too many. When you are done reading about these common dealer rip-offs, be sure to visit our How To Buy A New Car page, where you will learn the best new car buying strategies for getting huge discounts on new cars and trucks. Free Price Quotes To get the best possible deal on a new car or truck, do all of your homework before signing any contracts or putting any money down. Use the Internet to get at least quotes before you start negotiating with dealers. For free no obligation quotes on new cars and trucks, use Edmunds, Autos. Be sure to see our Money Saving Tips page for more information and resources. Quoting Packed or Loaded Payments Quoting "packed" or "loaded" payments is a deceptive practice that is commonly used by car dealers. When the customer asks how much the monthly payment would be on a particular vehicle, the salesperson gives them an inflated figure that represents a higher loan amount or APR. If the customer unknowingly agrees to the inflated monthly payment, the dealer then has a number of ways to get his hands on the additional money. For example, the customer might be talked into getting one or more high-priced and high-profit items like an extended warranty or car alarm, "at little-or-no extra cost. And if inflated payments were used on a lease, the extra money could represent a secret price or APR increase. This little scheme is frequently used to trick people into leases: Dealers simply quote inflated loan payments to make a conventional purchase look a lot more expensive than a lease. You can avoid this scam by using the Internet to find competitive rates on car loans look for "Online Auto Loans" in our Money Saving Tips page , then calculating your own payments. Since dealers are already being paid by the factory for new-car preparation, any amount that you pay for this service is pure profit. See our NewCarBuyingTips blog for videos of undercover investigations, car dealer tricks and scams, how to buy new cars below dealer invoice, and other new car buying tips. Extended Warranty Rip-offs Selling service contracts extended warranties has always been a big moneymaker for car dealers. Since their customers have no idea how much markup there may be on a particular warranty, many dealers have been able to make as much profit on that item as they made on the whole car. Worse yet, instead of selling good factory-backed policies, some dealers have sold practically worthless "brand X" warranties at outrageous prices, just to make more money. As an alternative to the high prices that dealers often charge for their policies, reliable extended warranties can also be purchased from other sources. Money Saving Car Buying Tip: Get free online quotes and discount prices at Endurance. Overpriced Car Alarms The increasing popularity of car alarms has given dealers another opportunity to make huge profits. One-Price, No-Haggle Dealers A "revolutionary" concept is being tested in the sale of new and used cars: Saturn dealers have always had this supposedly "consumer-friendly" policy, and now a growing number of used-car dealers are showing up with similar practices. Several automakers are even attempting to convert some of their new-car dealers to "one-price" after seeing used-car superstores like CarMax and AutoNation getting good customer satisfaction ratings. Is improved customer satisfaction the only motive behind this trend toward no-haggle prices? A recent survey of used-car transactions suggests another reason for dealers to embrace this radical change: On average, no-haggle dealers are getting more money for cars than dealers that allow price negotiation. Warning to Car Buyers Many car buyers who rely on the Internet as their only source of information end up paying a lot more than others who do a little more homework. Even more on higher-priced cars. Why are these people paying so much more -- for the same vehicles? And what secrets do the "smart shoppers" have that enable them to get better deals? Car buyers with the best information get the best deals, and smart shoppers know how -- and where -- to get the best information. Too many people make the mistake of thinking that all they need is the magic "dealer invoice" number to get the best deal. Thinking that "dealer invoice" is the same as "dealer cost" is mistake 1, which is usually followed by mistake 2: Mistake 3 is not knowing the actual prices that "smart shoppers" are paying for the same vehicle. Are you beginning to get the picture? When he mentioned to a friend that he was in the market for a new car, his friend told him about a car buying book he had read and how much money he had saved by following its advice -- which included paying for accurate "dealer cost" information. But Fred thought that was silly because he knew how to find everything on the Internet, for free. Or so he thought. When Fred was ready to buy, he used a popular Web site to get his free "dealer cost" numbers. Then he went to the dealer to make an offer. Read our New Car Buying Tips page to learn how to find the real dealer cost numbers, how to buy at huge discounts from sticker, and other useful car buying tips.

4: 17 Things Car Salesmen Don't Want You to Know

Salesmen aren't car experts. I know. Shocking. But yeah, most dealer salespeople aren't enthusiasts. Worse, a lot of them aren't well-educated about the products they sell.

The links and mentions on this site may be affiliate links. But they do not affect the actual opinions and recommendations of the authors. Wise Bread is a participant in the Amazon Services LLC Associates Program, an affiliate advertising program designed to provide a means for sites to earn advertising fees by advertising and linking to amazon. Meanwhile, this should be required reading for anyone under, uh, 40 who is about to go through the ordeal of buying a new car. In particular, I usually do 2 before setting forth. I found a really good deal on my current car that way and brought printouts just in case. We have a special way of dealing with 3. Do all your conferencing in some language other than English. The best way to avoid situation 4 and 9 is to only bring in trades that are barely running. I usually say, "I just want the car. Note this also applies to tires and large appliances. The credit union is right next door to the car dealers. First I get my loan pre-approved, then I go shopping. That also takes care of 8, 11, and Nick 2 No it is not the fact that you are old. Back in the day any salesperson did not care quite at all if the customer was satisfied, they just box pushed the easiest purchase and torqued the customer until they bought. This is not the case now a days, if any dealer is worth your time and money they will listen to what you are asking for, be fair about things and take of you like family. Anyone who tells you, you are getting "screwed on your trade" is purely not true. The vehicle may have dings and dents, that the client has forgotten about. Or it has rust or mechanical trouble or other problems. Cars are depreciating assets and every day they are on the road they lose their value. No vehicle will appreciate unless you are driving something vintage. If you drive a common sedan you will get common money for it, it is that simple. There is not much money in a vehicle. We charge a certain price for our products because we install them professionally, the fact the author of this article wrote that "VIN Etching" can be done at home makes me cringe because a certified technician from for example "Sherlock" has to do it. We do things a certain way because that is how the manufacturer requests it to be done and if for example ruin something on the car doing an installation of something, we have to pay to fix it. We also guarantee every product we sell you, there is the value in having it done through us. Most salespeople these days are transparent, like myself. That is like saying insurance is for suckers. Down the line after the manufacturer warranty has run out you will thanking your lucky stars for the extended warranty. I see many clients that come and say the reason they want a new car is because they DONE putting money on repairs. The extended warranty may seem like a lot up front, but in the long run when the car lasts you eight years being fully warrantied and you not having to drop a cent on maintenance but brakes, tires and windshield wiper blades, your pocket will be happy and you will be much happier. You can stretch the longevity of your vehicles life with a single warranty. Drive the car longer, get better bang for your buck and spend less money in long term. As for the "four square" the reason why we use it is because the majority of people who sit down with their significant other or their friend use this method. It allows us to show different options of purchase or lease. We do not manipulate the figures, legitimate salespeople are in this for the long-run. Manipulating a client only creates negative feelings towards the salesperson and the dealership. This again does not create return clients which is how we make our money. If you give a good service and make the client understand what we are talking about and both parties feel good about the transaction then we did our job. As for us "playing with your head" and asking random questions about the value and options on a car. We do not know until the car is evaluated. We ask you these questions to make the evaluators life easier so we can get the evaluation done promptly so you do not have the spend hours in the dealership. Your time is valuable and we take that seriously. By asking for your vehicle options, we can get a basis as to what you are used to driving and we can then discuss if you would like something equally equipped, less equiped or more equipped. If you are paying invoice there is a reason for it. If the salesman asks you early on how much you want to put down, they are not interested in finding a vehicle that will build value for you. They just want to go straight ahead to payment so they do not have to actually do their job. The dealer has to be able to come up with the reason why the payment is that high. That is not good business practice and here in Canada actually incredibly illegal. If you buy accessories of course your price will cost more, otherwise its the taxes, borrowing cost, msrp, dealer fees for vehicle preparation and any applicable rebates that create your monthly payment. Then just increases with every claim so it is not intelligent to do it that way. Most dealers actually take a massive hit for a damaged vehicle because they usually get sold at auction for a much much cheaper price and the dealer loses loads of money. You do not get the best deal from the internet salesmen. Low price maybe, but value no definitely not. The internet salesmen usually does not qualify the client. He does not assess their needs. If for example you tow on a daily basis because you are in landscaping LBS. Currently you are looking at a light duty pick up truck, and the internet salesperson does not know this. You agree on price, meet up and buy the truck and then you realize that you miscalculated the amount the truck which now is LBS. This might not seem like much, but down the line you will hurt the truck and then have to either buy a new one, strengthen it or keep fixing it. Be wary of those who only talk price those ones are the true sharks in the water because they actually do not care about you. Non-factory aftermarket parts are not added unless the customer asks for them. No one these days does that unless they want to get stuck with a modified vehicle. Not one dealer where I am from modifies any vehicle unless it is pickup trucks and that does not happen that often either. Modifications occur only if the client asks for it. Getting your own financing can be a good idea if the interest rates are higher than normal. Getting a line of credit for example will get you an interest rate of around 2. If you buy a vehicle that is above 2. We are not the scum of the earth trying to squeeze every dollar our of clients. We are honest individuals trying to make a living, just like you. Cut us some slack and I promise that you will get a good deal and above all the right vehicle to fit what your wants and needs are. Listen intently and let the salesperson go through the motions with you. They do this because they care and want to make sure that the vehicle you end up driving will serve you well for the years to come. Cheers, Nick Nick 3 No it is not the fact that you are old. Cheers, Nick Raul Laurence 4 In Oregon it is state law that if you as the customer can provide a salesman with physical proof of a set sales price, so an advertised price on say a website or newspaper. The salesman is required to sell at that set price and cannot heckle you for a higher rate.

CAR BUYING SECRETS EXPOSED THE DIRTY LITTLE TRICKS OF A USED CAR DEALER pdf

5: Winston Salem Used Car Dealer Facilitates Ford F Recall -- Tracy Myers | PRLog

Car Dealers Exposed - Everything You Must Know Before You Buy a New or Used Car by Robert Reuter Attention: Car Shoppers, Do Not Step foot on a car dealership without knowing the sneaky, underhanded tricks, the salesmen use to rip you off.

And while not every car salesperson is trying to pull one over on you, plenty of unscrupulous sellers will. Buying a car is often one of the biggest purchases for a household. As car payments often come in a close second to mortgage or rent payments, any decision you make can significantly impact your monthly budget. Find out what kinds of cars meet your needs and budget, and compare makes and models from a variety of manufacturers. Also, be sure to price the vehicles that have caught your eye. The truly unsavory types will even misrepresent your score in order to lock you in at a higher interest rate through their financing department. When you arrive with your credit score in hand, you remove this tool from their arsenal. You are entitled to one free credit report each year. You will want to study this and be sure you have cleared up any mistakes or old accounts before you seek financing on a new car. You may even want to discuss loan options from your personal bank or lender. Using the interest rates they offer, you can often negotiate a better deal with the seller. If you walk into the showroom projecting the attitude that you can buy and sell the entire place, you will remind them you are no easy mark. This is the attitude to adopt. Most dealers these days have printable promotions all over their websites. Find as many as you can, and bring them with you to demand credit for them. This secret may not save you thousands, but it will knock a few hundred bucks off the selling price. Most sales reps are eager to seal a deal at this point in their commission schedule. The vast majority of car salespeople work on quotas. The more they sell by the end of the month, the more they stand to make on commission. Your car purchase, if timed correctly, could mean the difference between an average month and an incredible month for them. They may offer you incredible incentives just so they can meet that magic number. If the rep shares the secrets, you have a chance to share the spoils. Many times carmakers put incentives on their dealerships to sell more of a certain model. Dealerships themselves often run contests for their sales force in order to foster competition among their staff. If you can weasel these perks from your sales rep, chances are the sales rep will even split them with you, if only you buy that car today. Sometimes their confidence gets the best of them, and they think they can sell you the car without actually stepping foot into the vehicle with you. Then ask for an extended test drive. This is when you start to win the game of attrition. During the test drive, recite a well-practiced list of relentless questions. Car dealers are adept at keeping this part of the process emotional. This baby purrs like a kitten! Keep it about the car not how you feel behind the wheel. Is this the emergency break? What is the resale value? The sales rep was probably getting an earful from the manager about the price you were offering. Be sure to have them explain any warranty package in detail. Have any agreement documented and signed by a manager, not just your sales rep. Ask for a tour of the service department. Ask to meet the manager. Then, after a friendly greeting, ask about any oil change or regular maintenance promotions that they may have going on at the time. You may just get a free service coupon. Next, make sure the tank is full. If not, ask for a gas voucher. Dealers sell all new cars with a full tank of gas, but, sometimes, sales reps will neglect to fill up after test drives or use the gas voucher themselves. Finally, inspect your new car thoroughly. Check the exterior for any chips or scratches, and be sure to point them out to your rep. Inspect the interior for any rips on the seats or scuffs to the dashboard. Document any minor imperfections, and be sure to have the seller document them and schedule a time for FREE repairs. Congratulations on your new car purchase!

Here are some reasons to consider a new car purchase: A new car requires less maintenance. After that the maintenance is minor. A rare few new car dealers cover this type of routine maintenance as part of the deal. This means if anything goes wrong with the car, the repair costs are covered! Unless the issue is in a non-warranted item. Non-warranted items include items like clutches, breaks and tires. These warranties can be as much as 10 years, , miles. Should problems occur with your new car, you have legal recourse through state lemon laws. Every state has a lemon law in effect. By proving that your new car is a lemon, you could receive a replacement vehicle or get your money back. Lemon laws apply only to new cars. Many new car dealers offer this as a benefit of purchasing these days and in a pinch it is nice to have. The problem with many road side assistance programs are that you do not know what company they are using. It may be Acura Total Luxury Care Roadside you think you are calling, but it is actually a local company that they outsource to. Many new car companies pay little attention to who they outsource their road side assistance to and you can quickly end up stuck on the side of the road for hours if you wind up with the wrong company. I have a friend who waited for over four hours for his new car to be rescued by the new car roadside service. AAA is a reliable and powerful service that is available to both new and used car dealers for road side assistance.
