Limited Seats Day 1: Edinburgh Arrive in Edinburgh and check in to your city centre hostel from 3pm onwards where you will meet your Guide and trip mates for the duration of your adventure. Edinburgh You have some free time to explore the exciting capital of Scotland. Get your warm-up for all the Hogmanay festivities at the official opening of the festival – the Torchlight Procession. Have your cameras at the ready and join the torchbearers led by the famous Shetland Vikings and march through the city streets. You can bet that your feet will be sore in the morning from all the spinning on the dance floor! Edinburgh We kick off with the Aussie and Kiwi New Year surrounded by loads of fellow Antipodeans, all keen to celebrate early in the morning. Party on as the celebrations continue around the globe or take some free time to explore the capital and its Winter Festival. Did we mention that fireworks are set off against the backdrop of Edinburgh Castle? This is a crazy but once in a lifetime experience. The evening is free for you to check out what the many pubs of Edinburgh have to offer. The Grassmarket and Rose Street are a good starting point for another epic night! Travel past Stirling, home to Scottish legends like William Wallace and Robert the Bruce and the scene of many bloody battles in the Wars of Independence. Travelling along the Great Glen Fault Line we then skirt the coast and pass Eilean Donan Castle perched on the shores of Loch Duich before crossing the bridge to the jaw-dropping Isle of Skye, our home for the night. Finish the day off sampling some local ales or whisky in the pub with your fellow tour mates. Ruined castles, breathtaking views and faerie stories. You will hear all about the legendary MacLeod and MacDonald Clans, as well as the Celtic myths and Viking legends from the past millennia. Take to foot as your Guide leads you to the best spots for the classic panoramic views you see in travel magazines. Skye packs an amazing array of stunning scenery, from dramatic mountain ranges and rugged coastlines to soaring waterfalls. Here you can head to the bar and be sure to find some traditional Scottish hospitality. Loch Ness to Edinburgh We follow the entire length of Loch Ness searching for a glimpse of the legendary monster see if you are able to entice her out and pass Urquhart Castle dramatically poised on its shores. The journey takes us on through Inverness, the capital of the Highlands, before turning south to make our way towards the town of Dunkeld, steeped in history but portrayed incorrectly by Shakespeare. We cross the epic Forth Road Bridge on our return to Edinburgh in the early evening. Select a date to book!

They reached Koina in three days. Others take at least seven days on foot. The next day, they ran to Laya, as participants of the Laya Run, a gruesome kms run through trails, which see more horses than man. A snowfall the earlier night had worsened the trail. But for Kinlay Zam who was visiting Laya for the first time, the weather and the condition of route was not an issue. The dzongdag had encouraged the people of Lunana to participate. On Tuesday, as the fog parted for the third royal highland festival to begin, Langothang, located 3, meters above sea level in Laya, came alive. Horses and yaks, the livelihood of the highland communities grazed on the yellowing grass while their owners arrived in their finest. Young men adorned factory woven ghos, almost a replica of hand woven materials, available easily in the shops while women were clad in their traditional attire and ornaments. Visitors and tourists ambled around with their heavy cameras and jackets. These visitors cheered on Kinlay Zam when she finished the run in two hours, 39 minutes and 50 seconds, the first among the 19 women participants. The two had met at the tent pitched for the participants of the run. Chimi won the race last year. He said his stomach was aching and he had vomited several time after crossing Taktshimakha because of the cold. This is his second win in the Laya Run. He came fourth last year. Kinley Gyeltshen, 33, a soldier from Damthang, Haa came second. This year, the two eastern dzongkhags of Trashigang and Trashiyangtse could not attend the festival, because of the limited time after the elections. Gasa dzongdag Dorji Dhradhul, said about of the 1, people who have gathered at the festival were from outside Gasa. The hairdressing stall saw some 25 people on the first day of the fest while the nail spa, 15 people. The little utopia, as one of the tourists, an Australian, Bryce described Laya, is changing. The community is connected until Koina with road and during the recent elections, both candidates had promised to connect Laya with Gasa with a road. It is connected with electricity and with it has come smart phones 3G network, washing machines and electric cooking appliances, When a visitor to the festival asked a homestay host if they wanted some medicines from Thimphu, they asked for a fairness face cream. Parents are not encouraging their children to continue education because of the lucrative cordyceps business. The highland festival while celebrating the lives of the highlanders embraces the change that the nomadic communities are confronted with today. It appreciates their culture and tradition and encourages the communities to preserve the culture of living with nature. They also buy our products and spend money. Zam said that her family was looking forward to seeing His Majesty at the festival.
