Wednesday, November 5, Book Review: The Ghost Bird Series by C. If you like to read classy well thought out books with relatively few cliches and at least a chance at being realistic, these books are not for you. If you like strong female leads who can take care of themselves, then the Ghost Bird series is not for you. If the idea of a reverse harem freaks you out, walk away now. All that being said, I am obsessed. These books have made me a little stupid. Let me explain why. Something about unrealistic expectations in the future. Did I pay attention? I am obsessed with covers and these covers drive me crazy. She is supposed to be a dirty blond and an excessive amount of time in the books are spent going on about her hair. They are pretty covers, despite having the wrong model for them but I could nit pick all day about them. These books are a slow burn romance. The wait for something to happen can be torture at times but when something happens, it is like magic. I can feel the chemistry between the characters. The main character, Sang Sorenson, is a perfect example of the "helpless heroine". She has been locked away all her life from the outside world, barring school. Her mother is insane, her sister is a bitch and her father is rarely, if ever, around. Her mother forces the idea that if she goes outside, she will get raped and die. Sang takes a chance and tries to run away but ends up running straight into the arms of her savior. Ok, the real reason I read them. There is this new trend somewhat emerging of the "reverse harem". That means lots of boys, one girl. It can come off as kind of weird and society sort of demands that the girl picks one guy. They are like family and they will do anything to protect her. These guys are all part of a secret group called The Academy that influences everything that they do. The more that Sang tries to pry into their lives within the Academy, the more confusing it gets. The first one that Sang meets. Kota is the one that first runs into Sang as she is running away from her home and convinces her that he can help her. He is compassionate and really works to listen to what others are saying. Generally, a great guy. The type of guy you bring home to meet your parents, grandparents and dog. Victor is sort of the logical thinker of the group. He is patient and quiet. He plays the piano and is good with computers, both self taught and only achieved with an extreme amount of effort. Sometimes, he comes off as kind of distant but he has his reasons. Gabriel fills the role of the fashionista in the group. He bosses the other guys around, telling them what to wear, how to do their hair and every other aspect of appearance. Gabe may seem like a soft guy sometimes but he can hold his own and can be just as tough as the other guys. Nathan is a big burly guy who is wonderful at martial arts. Nathan makes me mad sometimes because he seems like he has so much potential to be play a much more passionate person. He holds back to protect himself. I love his name, even though he goes by Luke. Lucian is such a wonderful name. Luke is the happy-go-lucky one. He jokes around and can lighten the mood. One of my favorites. The BFG for everybody that watches Chelsea football and part of the muscle of the team. He rides a motorcycle and is generally a BAMF. He plays football but hates being told what to do. North is one of the characters that seems to have the most depth, at least to me. He puts on a front of being tough and an enforcer but he cares deeply for his family and is willing to do anything to protect him. Another one of my favorites. Apparently I have a thing for big rough and tumble guys. Silas is definitely the other third of the muscle of the team, along with Nathan and North. He plays football but loves baseball. A passionate Greek man with a penchant for sweet talk and selfies. Green is smart and a definite flirt. He plays the role of caretaker wonderfully but still needs, in some ways, to be taken care of himself. Blackbourne has this persona that you want to please. You want his approval desperately and when you get it, it is like the sun is shining. He is demanding and tough on the others but he is still a likable guy. So there we have it. There are the reasons that I read this series, all nine of them. The guys grow throughout the books, as does Sang. We get back story and the reasons that they are the way they are. I definitely care about these characters and I want their stories to work out. I want them to be happy. These books are guilty pleasures for me. They are built to entertain and when I read them, I walk around with a big grin on my face. This author puts out a new book every months. Has anybody else read this series or another reverse harem story? What did you think? Is it weird or hot?

May 10, Lina rated it it was amazing Confession: I am a Ghost Bird addict. More specifically, I am addicted to nine flawlessly written boys who manage to be both sexy and sweet. Considering I binged the first ten books within three days and then had to wait an agonizing year for this one, I have to admit my expectations lowered. In our time apart, I almost forgot how much I love the Academy boys. Things I loved about Black and Green: Oh my goodness, can I get a hell fucking yes?? They just needed a point dedicated to their awesomeness alone. Like zombie nail polish cupcake nights and Academy touch football games where Silas is the "worst" at something. Did NOT see any of that coming. He was a cutie pie. And who could blame him for possibly crushing on his new stepsister? Even I have a crush on her. Plus, North as an angry, sleepless monster? There are nine hot boys! And the fan girl in me was consistently in cardiac arrest. Yes, the wait for this book almost killed me. And yes, the wait for the next one is going to be the reason for my demise. Especially after that teaser. I keep forgetting Owen and Sean are my age. They seem so much older than twenty or is that just me?!? The only things I ask for in the next book? Blackbourne please, 2 Can it come out sooner? Like now, for instance?
