

1: Masters in Marriage & Family Therapy (LMFT) - William James College

The Clinical Manual of Couples and Family Therapy is a practical guide designed to facilitate a clinician's ability to evaluate and treat couples and families.

HSS is the cornerstone of St. With more than 20 disciplines to choose from, this is the largest school on campus. Mission The mission of the Department of Marriage and Family Therapy is to produce clinician-scholars who provide quality clinical services in the field of Marriage and Family Therapy. Specific to this mission, the Marriage and Family Therapy programs work to educate culturally sensitive and socially just Marriage and Family Therapy clinician-scholars prepared to meet the needs of diverse populations in South Texas and nationally. The Veterans Administration now posts jobs specifically for family therapists graduating from accredited programs. Students are able to meet the requirements for direct client contact hours and receive live supervision by AAMFT approved clinical supervisors at the Family Life Center, which offers counseling services for the public, and at local community agencies. In addition, students may take additional courses beyond the hour program in order to qualify their program of study to meet the license requirements for the Texas State Board of Examiners of Professional Counselors LPC. Students can also increase their knowledge of play therapy by taking additional courses beyond their hour program. This degree can be completed in two years for full-time student and three years for part-time students. Specific to this mission, the MFT doctoral program educates culturally sensitive and socially just MFT clinician-scholars who can educate other therapists and meet the needs of diverse populations in multidisciplinary settings across South Texas and nationally. The doctoral internship provides the opportunity to gain clinical experience in multidisciplinary settings. The internship includes at least client contact hours with hours of supervision by faculty and advanced clinicians. Students see clients in our counseling clinic and in an approved community site that assists in family therapy training. Students receive individual and group supervision of their clinical practice using direct observation, videotape or audiotape review, and case consultation. Program Requirements and Student Expectations The academic requirements for licensure as a professional counselor in the State of Texas and for Clinical Membership in the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy can be met by completion of the appropriate program. Students desiring licensure should ask the graduate program director to design their degree plan to ensure that they meet the academic requirements for licensure. The field of counseling is concerned with helping individuals and people in organizations, schools, and groups gain their optimal level of personal, social, and vocational functioning. Prior to graduation, students are expected to: Understand the principles of effective counseling and the processes of bringing about positive change within the counseling setting. Understand theories, skills, techniques, and philosophical foundations of clinical counseling. Understand the essential elements of the counseling profession and related human services professions and the distinctive contributions of each in meeting the needs of the various client populations. Demonstrate the counseling competencies necessary to work in a professional capacity with a broad range of client populations and client problems. Understand the characteristics of various social, cultural, and ethnic groups and the impact these characteristics have on the counselor and the counseling profession. Understand the responsibilities inherent in the roles and functions of the professional counselor and the social, legal, and moral obligations created by the professional counseling relationship. Demonstrate the ability to work effectively with human services professionals from a variety of human service disciplines psychology, psychiatry, social work, pastoral counseling, etc. Demonstrate the skills required for effective client evaluation and assessment, treatment planning, implementation of appropriate counseling strategies and techniques, and follow-up. Goals for the doctoral program in counseling include all of the goals for the masters program, plus the following: Demonstrate competence with design of experimental and non-experimental research and the collection and analysis of data through formal instruction and actual research activities. Develop academic and psychological potential by working closely with faculty in teaching, research, and scholarly efforts. The faculty will have assisted the student in developing a synthesis of personal philosophical beliefs and values within the disciplines of teaching, research, and counseling. Demonstrate the formulation of a personal theoretical and philosophical position or model as derived from formal and informal learning experiences and applied work. Understand the historical development of counseling as a profession, and the various philosophical and theoretical positions, social forces, and traditions which have shaped the profession. All coursework and program experiences are intended to foster student development and contribute to the following student learning outcomes upon SLOs program completion: Knowledge of Historical Evolution of Marriage and Family Therapy Demonstrate knowledge of the history and ongoing development of the MFT discipline, within regional, national, and international contexts. Demonstrate the ability to work clinically using selected models with individuals, couples, and families. Articulate critique of MFT models based on knowledge of human and family life course development; recognize the differential impacts of individual and family life cycle transitions within a family Intentionality in Treatment Planning and Execution, and Ethical Conduct Demonstrate the ability to facilitate the therapeutic process from intake through systemic assessment, treatment planning, management of therapeutic process, evaluation of treatment outcomes and termination using a clinically appropriate MFT clinical model s for the presenting individual, couple, or family client system. Demonstrate awareness of and ability to facilitate the development of a positive therapeutic alliance in order to enhance clinical outcomes with all family members in all modalities of therapy. Demonstrate an ability to seek and utilize supervision, peer consultation, and involvement of other professionals to enhance treatment outcomes. Demonstrate an ability to recognize ethical dilemmas that may arise in practice settings and articulate potential strategies for determining an appropriate response. Identity as Marriage and Family Therapy Scientist-Practitioner Demonstrate an ability to utilize empirical research and published literature from MFT and related fields to enhance therapeutic services. Demonstrate a willingness to pursue licensure as a licensed marriage and family therapist. Career Opportunities Professional counselors work as clinicians in public and private schools, community and mental health agencies, alcohol and drug abuse programs, family counseling centers, child and adolescent programs, social service agencies, or in private practice. Marriage and family therapists are employed in social agencies, churches and counseling offices. Many have entered private practice. Some are using their skills in careers such as nursing, teaching, ministry, personnel management or social work. Others have created new positions for themselves in areas which previously were without a marriage and family therapist. Since the field of marriage and family therapy is relatively new, career opportunities are still developing. Teaching is another option available to those who receive graduate degrees. Most college and university positions are restricted to those with doctoral degrees. Our alumni are employed in a variety of clinical settings, including private practices, play therapy centers, and as clinic administrators. In addition to clinical settings, our alumni work in academic settings such as serving as faculty, instructors, and associate professors. Alumni have published books, peer-reviewed journal articles, and regional grants. Once data are collected and aggregated, the Marriage and Family Therapy faculty use the results to identify program limitations and areas of strength. In order to facilitate the data collection process and provide adequate anonymity to provide honest feedback, the alumni feedback survey can be taken online and will require no more than 10 minutes of your time. Please contact Jason Northrop , Ph. If you are a graduate of St. At Candidacy, the Department affirms your clinical potential and declares that you are a candidate for the degree. A student must have completed Candidacy before beginning Internship. There are several components to the Candidacy step: Completion of 12 graduate credits with a GPA of 3. If all criteria have been met, the faculty proceeds with the clinical review. If academic criteria have not been met, the faculty recommends that candidacy be denied. If academic performance is satisfactory, the faculty evaluates the clinical potential of the applicant by considering data from all sources, including the Graduate Battery and the Student Fitness Evaluation Forms. The faculty may also consider supporting statements and recommendations from professional counselors student colleagues or other informed persons. Strengths and weaknesses are identified and discussed with the applicant. If, in the clinical judgement of the faculty, the applicant could remedy the weaknesses or problems, the faculty may recommend that the Graduate Council approve candidacy effective upon the remediation of the weaknesses or problems as judged by the faculty. If, in the clinical judgement of the faculty, the applicant possesses the potential for rendering the desired counseling or therapeutic care to a client, the faculty will recommend that the Graduate Council approve candidacy. The Graduate Council approves or disapproves requests for candidacy. Professional Competence and Integrity Marriage and family therapists seek appropriate professional assistance for their personal problems or conflicts that may impair work performance or clinical judgment. Responsibility to Students and Supervisees Marriage and family therapists do not permit students or supervisees to perform or hold themselves out as competent to perform professional services beyond their training, level of experience, and competence. Comprehensive Exam and Thesis While a certain number of hours are required for graduation, one of the major areas of emphasis is professional competence. Mere accumulation of credit hours does not entitle a student to receive a graduate degree. Students are required to demonstrate a breadth of knowledge in the counseling field as well as depth in specific areas with the ability to integrate what has been learned. Comprehensive examinations are offered three times a year during the fall, spring and summer semesters. A mandatory pre-comp orientation is scheduled at the beginning of each semester. Eligibility To be eligible to take the MFT exam the student must: Be maintaining matriculation or be enrolled in their last semester of course work; Not be on probation or suspension; Have a cumulative grade point average of 3. Graduation from the program is contingent on satisfactory evaluation of the Comprehensive Review Portfolio along with completion of required clinical contact hours. The paper should be no more than 20 pages and written in accordance with current APA Publication Manual standards currently sixth edition. The paper should clearly describe, in a broad manner, how the student approaches therapy, and specifically what this looks like with two selected clients. In the Position Paper, students should specifically speak to the following points in order to demonstrate the outcomes evaluated at Comprehensive Review: Evaluation of Comprehensive Portfolio Satisfactory: Satisfactory evaluation by the Portfolio Review Committee is necessary for students to be endorsed by the program for graduation. Documentation of the satisfactory evaluation is forwarded to the Graduate Council for approval. Upon completion of all academic and clinical program requirements, the student is approved for graduation. A student who received an unsatisfactory evaluation by the Portfolio review Committee at Comprehensive Review must promptly schedule a meeting with the MFT Program Director to gather information necessary to develop a Remediation Plan. The Remediation Plan will include a timeline for re-submission of a complete, revised Comprehensive Review Portfolio. For many, the primary reason for a thesis is the research and writing experience prior to entry into a doctoral program. The thesis is a cumulative experience which provides a record for student achievement in the program. This record may be consulted for reference and program evaluation. Student Responsibilities The student who wishes to write a thesis obtains approval from the Program Director. The student confers with the Program Director concerning the appointment of a supervising professor and other committee members. Research involving human subjects must be conducted in accordance with University policy. The thesis grade and degree will not be approved until this requirement is satisfied. The student must matriculate each semester by registering for thesis extension until the thesis is approved. Thesis Supervisor The Thesis Supervisor directs the research design, data gathering, literature search, and writing of the thesis. The committee members assist the Supervising Professor with suggestions concerning research design, data collection, literature search, and editing of the manuscript. Students must satisfactorily complete the thesis prior to graduation. Students may use the suggested schedules.
