In , a scale of measurement was established for alien encounters. When a UFO is sighted, it is called an encounter of the first kind. When evidence is collected, it is known as an encounter of the second kind.

Enter at your own risk; you may come away a changed person, many already have. Instead, we stand on your behalf in front line of battle. We are in defensive warfare at a major point of assault on humanity. What you are about to see is probably the best kept secret in the UFO research community. These researchers took on one piece of the UFO puzzle as a research project. They have done honest research into this strange and unusual phenomenon. They first started with a hypothesis, collected the data and then attempted to share their findings. The research group has to date worked with over so called cases of the Alien Abduction Experience. His research findings on Alien Abductions have been written about in twelve different authored books over the past decade. The research showed that some people professing to be Christians were indeed reporting that they had encountered this experience in their lives. The same experience that people of all faiths or no faith had been reporting over the many years of UFO research. Research polls through the years have shown that upwards of 5 million people may have experienced some form of this phenomenon. It is a terrifying experience to those that report it. Lives have been destroyed. Family relationships have been destroyed. To live with the idea that they cannot control what is happening to them is devastating. They cannot even ask for help from friends, family or the medical profession because of ridicule, which only intensifies their situation. During the investigations into the experiencers case testimonies, CE4 Research Group found something really remarkable. They found that some of these Christian Alien Abduction experiencers had been able to stop or even terminate the experience from their lives. The most fascinating finding was that this was even possible. And there was a commonality amongst the experiencers in the way that they were able to do this. This is something that the worlds leading researchers in this field of investigation publicly say is not possible. But the findings of CE4 Research Group show otherwise. When questioned off the record, many of these leading world researchers admit they themselves have come across similar cases. The question arises, why have they not shared these findings also? Could it be because of what the consequences might be if they did share? Is there a hidden agenda that this research might expose? If these are the researchers that we are relying on for the truth, why are they not sharing everything with us? Even if the puzzle pieces were to show a different picture than you might have expected? We have attempted to bring our piece of the puzzle to the table. We have been met with hostile resistance from the research community in this process. If you are honestly seeking answers to this strange phenomenon, please ask yourself, why is this happening? Through this website, we hope to be able to give you that unwanted piece of the puzzle. Please be open to all of the research findings. We hope that by viewing the research findings we are sharing with you here you will be able to make that honest decision. Christians are being abducted by Aliens. Compiled through working with over Alien Abduction Experiencers. Some professing Christians are claiming to have experienced the Alien Abduction experience. The Unexpected Outcome of the Research Through the research into the case testimonies it was found that some of the experiencers were able to stop or terminate the experience. There was a recognized commonality in the method that was used among the Christian experiencers. Not as a magic word but by their allegiance to and personal relationship with Him. We also found that by sharing this with other experiencers we could help them also stop their experiences. This is called repeatability. The UFO community has been looking for that repeatable event that research demands to verify the data. We have documented this in our research. There is no other documented repeatable event recorded in any other UFO research. What causes someone to have an abduction experience? This is a question that secular researchers do not have an answer for to this day. But we at CE4 Research Group have found through our research that people can have this experience because of one of three reasons or a combination of these reasons: You asked for it. Some people actually ask to have the experience to know what is like or about. Be careful what you ask for. You unknowingly open a door to the realm of this experience. Some people unknowingly opened a door for the experience, by being involved in New Age or Occult activities. We have found this reason to be the most often found root cause. You are part of an ongoing cycle or social conditioning. It IS important how you raise your children. When there is a GODLY covering over the family by the head of the household, the family is protected. The Evidence The evidence of our findings is in the testimonies of the experiencers. We have over posted with permission, written and audio testimonies from the experiencers themselves. More are coming in as the work continues by the research group. How many does it take to see that this is a real event? Read and listen to the evidence yourself. Weigh what you read with what you have been told by others. You will now have all of the pieces in your hand. Bring them all to the table. The evidence you read and hear will surely raise many questions about the Alien Abduction and UFO experience. Questions you must continue to ask. Answers that you must demand from the researchers that refuse to allow all the pieces of the puzzle to be shared, whether they like what the research shows or not.

2: The Fourth Kind - Wikipedia

Close Encounters of the Fourth Kind A UFO event in which a human is abducted by a UFO or its occupants. [13] This type was not included in Hynek's original close encounters scale.

Kim Jones When it comes to alien encounter, there are five kinds to it. The first kind of alien encounter is when a UFO is spotted in close proximity of an individual; either on the skies or at a distance of about meters. The second kind is when a UFO makes its physical presence felt by means of leaving marks on ground or interference in the radio and TV signals etc. Third kind of alien encounter refers to UFOs that carries visible occupants in it. The fourth and most deadly kind of an encounter is when an individual gets abducted by a UFO or its occupants. Here are top 10 true life stories of the fourth kind of alien encounters. After being found after 5 days, Walton could not remember anything about what had happened to him in these 5 days. After many days he could finally recall the experiences that he had onboard the alien spaceship. After abducting Linda, the flying saucer disappeared by diving into the East river. The incidence took place in the Allagash Waterways in Maine in the month of August, After being abducted, he was taken to a room, stripped off his clothes and samples of his blood were taken. After sometime he had an intercourse with an alien being that looked like a woman with angular face and catlike eyes and red pubic and underarm hair. After the intercourse was over, the alien pointed her hand towards her belly and then to the sky, which possibly meant that young Boas was going to father the first human-alien baby in the history of earth. The girls were returning from a birthday celebration and were taken aboard by a metallic, huge disc shaped flying object. While they could not describe vividly what happened to them inside the spacecraft, but they cleared the lie detector test easily proving that their tale of the encounter of the fourth kind was not a lie. The yellow suited aliens used means of telepathy to communicate with the politician. As per the abducted, he was subjected to medical examinations and the aliens were not very hostile in nature. The whole experience of being abducted was wiped off their memories and they could remember things about the abduction only when they underwent sessions of regressive hypnosis. The three aliens had paralyzed their bodies hence they could not resist a bit when they were stripped naked and were subjected to different experiments by the beings from the outer space. Various samples from their bodies were taken and then they were returned to the same summer camp from where they were being abducted. More from my site.

3: The Fourth Kind () - Rotten Tomatoes

Encounters with Unidentified Flying Objects have been categorised into five groups as close encounters of the first, second, third, fourth and fifth kind. When a person sees a UFO within

A Scientific Inquiry Dr. Allen Hynek left and Dr. Hynek proposed three types of close encounter: Sighting of one or more UFOs at a distance of feet or less. Sighting of a UFO with associated physical effects e. Sighting of an animated being presumably an alien but not specifically defined as such. Human abduction by an alien. May also include voluntary experiences. Voluntary bilateral contact between humans and extraterrestrials. Death of a human or animal associated with a UFO sighting. Cattle mutilations would fall into this category. In addition, ufologist Ted Bloecher has suggested seven sub-categories for close encounters of the third kind: A being is witnessed inside a UFO. A being is witnessed both inside and outside a UFO. A being is witnessed in the vicinity of a UFO. As type D, but UFO activity is not reported in the area. No entity or UFOs are witnessed, but the subject experiences some kind of communication. Abduction the same as a close encounter of the 4th kind. A possible eighth sub-category: Thanks to this film, most adults in the western world associate the phrase with alien encounters, even if few people can actually define the encounter types.

The Fourth Kind is a American science fiction thriller film directed by Olatunde Osunsanmi and featuring a cast of Milla Jovovich, Elias Koteas, Corey Johnson, Will Patton, Charlotte Milchard, Mia Mckenna-Bruce, Yulian Vergov, and Olatunde Osunsanmi.

First of all, the descriptions of abductions, especially the ones under hypnosis, scared the crap out of me. Sleeping with the lights on scared. But mainly I was struck by the serious tone covering a topic that most people would dismiss with a snicker. And I learned from his NYTimes obit that his bio fath I first read this book in the late 90s, and it had a strong effect on me. That might explain his motivation for writing this book, which was sort of a mystery to me. Then I bought it on my kindle after I gave him the hard copy. John Mack of M. T almost lost his position after this conference, then suddenly died after being hit by a drunk driver. At least the Truther movement hoovered up all the conspiracy minded morons. The first part of the book is Mr. Bryan at the M. Then follows a bunch of post-conference interviews of wildly varying quality and interest. Of particular interest are Carol and Alice, who run a horse ranch and seem to arrive late to events often enough that they should block out "alien abduction time" on their calendars. I still got chills when one Tall Grey told one of them: You will eat only cow things. But you get the idea that abductions have a similar cadence to them, or at least among this group. It seemed to me that Budd Hopkins had worked with Carol and Alice so much that he was leading them a lot during some sessions. The last chapter is the most interesting. If I were editing this book I would have moved it to the beginning or mixed it in as background with the conference as context. I could almost recommend just buying the book for this chapter and not reading any other part of the book. Not that the memory of an alien abduction is being used to mask child abuse -- the memory a child abuse is being used to mask an alien abduction. Another researcher suggests that children who have experienced trauma are more likely to perceive aliens and UFOs, due to their long experience with dissociation. Good luck getting a grant for these studies Liked his tone of open-minded skepticism throughout. Boylan was a pud--but everybody else was pretty cool; actually the only real dinks were the scientist types with their bloated pious self-important nonsense--like the guy taking a couple pages to "explain" the Old Hag phenomenon. Also found it interesting as a sidelight how many different things can go wrong with pregnancy; like the bunch-of-grapes thing and all that. Also like the humorous tou Jeepers--a whopping great read! Also like the humorous touches: Zar would like that too--if he has a sense of humor. There does seem to be something going on there All-in-all it is a fair bit of reportage, going beyond the conference itself to include matter obtained from interviewing some of the principals. Bryan does not subscribe to the aliens-from-spacecraft hypothesis, but he does take the abduction phen Michael Miley mailed me the telephone-book-sized, spiral-bound proceedings of the alien abduction conference held at MIT in Bryan does not subscribe to the aliens-from-spacecraft hypothesis, but he does take the abduction phenomenon seriously and maintains a sympathetically objective tone throughout.

Share via Email The Fourth Kind links the widely recognised phenomenon of sleep paralysis with the purely fictional idea of alien abduction. Directed by Olatunde Osunsanmi and released in the UK over the weekend, it purports to be a dramatic reconstruction of events that took place in the city of Nome, Alaska, involving the disappearance of local residents. If you were to accept this film at face value, you would be left in no doubt whatsoever that these disappearances were the result of "close encounters of the fourth kind" – abduction by aliens. The film employs several far-from-subtle techniques in an attempt to convince viewers that what they are watching is based entirely upon documented evidence. This film is a dramatisation of events that occurred October Every scene in this movie is supported by archive footage. Some of what you are about to see is extremely disturbing. This approach seems to have backfired badly on the filmmakers as most reviews of the film are highly critical of this unconvincing "archive footage". Kyle Hopkins wrote an excellent piece for the Anchorage Daily News debunking the movie. He conceded that there is a long history of disappearances and suspicious deaths in Nome. They have been investigated by the FBI who "mostly blamed alcohol and the cruel Alaska winter". According to promotional materials from Universal, the film is framed around a psychologist named Abigail Tyler who interviewed traumatized patients in Nome. No one by that name lived in Nome in recent years, according to a search of public record databases. Still, there is a shred of "evidence. Except the site is suspiciously vacant, mostly a collection of articles on sleep studies with no home page or contact information. Denise Dillard is president of the Alaska Psychological Association. Hopkins also points out that Nome is not, as portrayed in the film, a city surrounded by beautiful mountains but is instead "a flat tundra town at the shore of the Bering Sea". Let me be quite clear. I have no objections to the paranormal being featured in fiction. But I do object to fiction being sold as fact. What I found really worrying was that, even though the "case histories" featured in the film were almost certainly fictional, the accounts would not have looked out of place if they had appeared in my column last month on sleep paralysis – individuals with disturbed sleep patterns seeing strange creatures staring at them and being attacked by unearthly intruders. Sleep paralysis is a condition in which the sufferer experiences temporary paralysis when entering or emerging from sleep. Despite the fact that sleep paralysis is scientifically recognised and reasonably well understood, there are many self-appointed UFO experts or "ufologists" who insist that if you have ever suffered from the symptoms of sleep paralysis, you have probably been abducted by aliens and you cannot remember the rest of the event, either because you have repressed it due to its horrific nature or because the aliens have wiped your memory. These ideas, along with the equally mistaken notion that hypnosis provides a reliable means to retrieve such hidden memories, are uncritically promoted in this film. In , ufologist Budd Hopkins, in collaboration with historian David Jacobs and sociologist Ron Westrum, commissioned a survey of around 6, American adults regarding unusual experiences. Included were five which Hopkins and colleagues claimed were often indicative of alien abduction the percentages in brackets indicate those who said it had happened to them at least once: Needless to say, there is no convincing evidence for a link between any of the experiences described above and alien abduction. However, according to Hopkins, if you answered "yes" to four or five of the above items, you have probably been abducted by extraterrestrials. Extrapolating to the American adult population as a whole, the authors claimed that 3. This figure received very widespread media coverage, often being misquoted to the effect that "3. There is every possibility that some will believe that the film is based upon true events and that it provides a plausible explanation for their own bizarre experiences. They may decide that they should undergo hypnotic regression to "recover" the rest of their memory for this traumatic event and thus end up with detailed false memories of being abducted by aliens. For that reason, this film and the manner in which it has been promoted deserve to be condemned as totally irresponsible. He edits the [UK] Skeptic magazine Topics.

"close encounters of the fourth kind" Cancel. Close Encounters Of The Fourth Kind: Alien Abduction, UFOs, and the Conference at M.I.T. Nov 2, by C.D.B. Bryan.

She tells a story of a close encounter incident at Nome, Alaska , in October Tyler tapes hypnotherapy sessions with three patients who have the same experience: Tyler hypnotizes two of them, and both recount similar terrifying stories of creatures attempting to enter their homes. Tommy Fisher Corey Johnson , her first patient to go under hypnosis, refuses to admit what he sees and returns home. He insists that he remembers everything and keeps asking what "Zimabu Eter" means. After hearing the similarities in the accounts of nightly occurrences, Abbey suspects these patients may have been victims of a non-human kidnapping. There is evidence that she herself may have been abducted, when an Assistant gives her a tape recorder , which plays her voice and the sound of something with a distorted electronic voice entering her home and attacking her. It speaks in an unknown tongue; Abbey, though, has no memory of it. Abel Campos Elias Koteas , a colleague from Anchorage , is suspicious of the claims. Later, Tyler calls upon Dr. Awolowa Odusami Hakeem Kae-Kazim , a specialist in ancient languages who was a contact of her late husband, to identify the mysterious language on the tape. Odusami identifies it as Sumerian. Another, more willing patient named Scott Enzo Cilenti wishes to communicate. He admits that there was no owl and speaks of "them", but cannot remember anything further, but does say that he knows why Tommy did what he did. Later, he insists she come to his home to hypnotize him, to get something seemingly horrific out of his head. But while he is under, he suddenly jerks upright and begins hovering above his bed, while a distorted electronic voice coming out of his mouth tells Dr. Tyler in Sumerian to immediately end her study. Later, Sheriff August Will Patton arrives, telling her that Scott had three upper vertebrae completely severed from his experience, and was completely paralyzed. The Sheriff tries to arrest her, but Campos comes to her defense, seemingly confirming her story. The Sheriff instead places her under house arrest. One of the deputies stays to watch the house and starts recording with his dash-cam. The dash-cam footage shows a large black object flying over the Tyler house. The video then distorts, but the deputy is heard describing people being pulled out of the house and calls for backup. Deputies rush into the house, finding Ronnie and Tyler, who is desperately sobbing, screaming that Ashley was taken into the sky. Ronnie, though, goes with them willingly, not believing the alien abduction theory either. Tyler undergoes hypnosis in an attempt to make contact with these beings and reunite with her daughter. Campos and Odusami videotape the session, and once hypnotized, it is revealed that Tyler witnessed the abduction of her daughter and also shows scenes of her own abduction, showing part of the abductors ship and it is hinted that they possibly took some human egg cells from Abbey as well. The camera scrambles, and Abbey begs the alien that abducted Ashley to return her. The creature replies, saying that Ashley will never be returned. It then calls itself the savior, then the father and finally ends with "I am The camera scrambles again, and a volatile voice yells "Zimabu Eter! The film cuts to an interview with Tyler in which she explains that all three were abducted during that hypnosis session and no one has any memory of what happened. She wakes up in a hospital after breaking her neck in the abduction. Later it is shown that Abbey is paralyzed, presumably due to her neck injury. The film then returns to the present interview, where the Interviewer asks Abbey how they, he and the viewers, can believe her if most of what she thought was only in her mind. Abbey tearfully tells him that she has to believe that Ashley is still alive. The interviewer ends the interview as Abbey breaks down in tears. Campos remains a psychologist and Odusami becomes a professor at a Canadian university. However, as is repeatedly stated in the movie:
