However, hurtling as we are through the fourth quarter of a frighteningly fast-paced year and set against the backdrop of a team in its figurative infancy, the title seems quite apt! I started life with BPCA just over 12 months ago knowing much about some things and little about others. I knew less than nothing about pest control. My excruciatingly steep learning curve had begun. How can I just let you walk away? Experienced Training Administrator, Danni Bromley returned from maternity leave just six months ago. She came into my life like a breath of fresh air. All we knew of each other had been gleaned from a return-to-work lunch and the odd staff meeting. However, we soon started to learn how to work together, build ourselves into a team, and to do our jobs better. Katrina, while having worked within BPCA for a few years, joined the Training team just a few weeks ago. Part of her previous role was supporting Danni with training administration, so it was a pretty simple transition. We were nothing short of ecstatic not least because her youthful knowledge of technology might at last result in the successful connection of my internet phone to the outside world! And so, we were one. A small team with a big remit. Today, online learning, webinars and virtual reality are increasingly the preferred learning methods for both employers and employees alike. More cost effective, less time consuming, more efficient are often reasons for the change in approach and practice. It should be effective. It should be pre-emptive. Grow training and launch BPCA Registered is the collective remit of the training team and these two challenges are what binds the three of us together. The development of BPCA Registered first and foremost aims to recognise the achievements of pest controllers. And we need to do all of this by the end of the year. So take a look at me now So, how are we doing? Well, to paraphrase a well-known and well-used adage, our mantra from the start was to expect the best, plan for the worst, and prepare to be surprised. And surprisingly, things are coming together. By the beginning of we will have: Added to our online learning portfolio Produced a video library of technical presentations Developed practical training sessions Created a collection of technical reading editorials Established new training courses. We will also have launched BPCA Registered, the platform for which many of these developments will be used by our pest control members to demonstrate professionalism and competence. There has been much to do, much to think about and much to learn in the last six months. But against all odds our little team of three is hopefully beginning to make a difference.

Elaine Ruth Pope Language: But she felt this story had to be told to inform society there is another view of prison life on the inside, rather than only the stories reported by the media and the justice system itself. Therefore, what you are about to read will take you on a journey into the chilling hellhole of prison and, you will find it is not at all what you expected it to be. Quite the contrary, it is a house of dreams for souls who are victims themselves: Victims of abuse while living on the outside in society and, victims of abuse by the penal system during incarceration. In addition, they are victims of drug and alcohol related incidents, or bad judgment and, in more cases than we can imagine, of wrongful conviction. Every time she made this trip she was appalled at the madness behind the disproportionate security. It appeared to her the perimeter towers, rifles, steel topped clubs, pepper spray and stun guns strapped to the hips of every guard were security enough against men who were shackled behind these cement walls. She had driven from Michigan alone to meet Horace and to help him with his appeals and also, when the time was right to become his wife. During the five months since her arrival from Michigan, she had made a few acquaintances, but hadn't had sufficient time to make a good friend. Horace had been her only friend. She had neither friends nor family to stand by her side to give comfort and solace as Horace slowly died a suffering death. Why would a woman, who was considered an average societal wife and mother, leave family and home, even divorcing, to marry a man on death row? Why enter into an environment where personal diminishment is the daily experience? And especially perplexing, why enter into a relationship with a man whose impending death was possibly the only future? Why did Elaine do this? Did she have a choice? It seemed, somehow, her whole life had prepared her in a special way to follow this course, as if a plot had been written. Did she feel a martyr? Did she feel a fool? Did she feel courageous? His reality was, he was marked His being part Japanese at that prejudicial time and Native American as well, he was prejudged and condemned by an absurd record of poverty and ethnicity. Whether he was laboring in the groves or strumming his guitar playing in lounges at night, Horace was a wandering man with a wandering heart in search of fulfillment. And for this honky-tonk heartbreaker, unfortunately, the worst was about to come for he was one more person who would not be touched by the American Dream but was about to become part of Americas nightmare. If I can assure you that I would makewell, I will assure you that in the event you are sentenced to life or death The Defendant: Yes, maam, I understand.

A walk against the odds to defy the short countdown that doctors have placed on my life. A walk I wish none of you would ever have to make. A few months back, doctors in Sri Lanka found that I have been living with a large 'hole-in-the-heart' my entire life—33 years.
