Oahu is also one of the Hawaii's most exciting islands. It has on it the city of Honolulu the state capital and largest metropolis in Hawaii historic Pearl Harbor, and Waikiki, one of the world's most celebrated beach resorts.

This entry includes resources to provide Road to Hana driving tips and advice, plus maps and even information regarding closures, when applicable. There are few words that can describe the beauty of this drive with its cliffs cloaked in green and lush valleys bursting with waterfalls. Curves hug the coast and gaze over an ocean that stretches uninterrupted all the way to the Alaskan coastline. And while we have several years of experience exploring this famous road, we certainly understand driving it is certainly not for everyone. They offer hotel pick up from most major locations, their expert local guides are top notch, and their luxury vans have panoramic windows. And because they are the first Hawaii-based tour company to complete the Hawaii Green Business Program, you can feel good about your adventure. The Highway to Heaven If not, you might want to check out that page before continuing to plan your trip down the Hana Highway, as we share lots of helpful hints about making the drive on your own. Every twist and turn of the Road to Hana is something to see. Where is the drive located? The scenic drive is located on the northeast coastline of Maui. Officially, the road is named the Hana Highway and on maps will be listed as Hwy. Is the drive to Hana and beyond safe? The highway is fully paved and even though it has many curves and one-lane bridges, the drive is very safe. How many waterfalls are there on the drive? That depends, but there are a lot of them. But if it has been dry, some falls may dry up and not be flowing. In our opinion, the best waterfalls are actually beyond Hana town, with Wailua Falls being the crown jewel. Waimoku Falls at the end of the Pipiwai Trail. Where are the best places to stop along the way? Unless you spend a night in Hana town, visiting every attraction along the drive is impossible. It could take two or three days to see everything, so we always advise most visitors to stick to the highlights. Also, a quick word of caution about some guidebooks: If it sounds like the book is "revealing" anything too exclusive, it probably is - so avoid those locations. Is the drive really worth it? Is the Hana Highway Really Worth it? If you have any reservations about the drive, that article should clear up several important factors for you and help you decide if the drive is right for you and your family. We have driven the road countless times by ourselves, but we understand that going solo is certainly not for everyone. Whether you want to ride the twists and turns in luxury, see the sights from high above, or get an up-close personal view on two feet or wheels! Just remember that we feature only the best Road to Hana tours and they tend to fill up quickly, so book early to ensure availability.

However, there are only eight major islands, as they are the biggest and oldest islands. From youngest to oldest the islands are: All major domestic and many international carriers serve Oahu, so you can get here from just about anywhere. As far as temperature goes, the islands remain at a perfect temperature between degrees celsius year round. It rarely reaches above 90 degrees 32 celsius or below 65 degrees 18 celsius allowing a consistent flow of tourist throughout the year. However, here are times to be aware when planning to visit. Winter Season officially November to April: The time to see the big wave surf competitions and witness the best surfers of the world master these monstrous waves. JAWS beach on Maui also has massive waves. Some competitions are so insane that the minimum height waves have to be 20 feet 6 meters before the competition can even start! Summer Season officially May to September: The state of Hawaii basically has two seasons but has very little change in daily temperature. During the summer months, the south of the islands will have more waves; this means along the coast line of Waikiki Oahu where many tourists visit. Not saying there will be a Hurricane every single week, more so just a warning. The last Hurricane that hit was 15 years ago, so although unlikely, always check weather patterns before flying out of anywhere. No matter what season you visit, trade winds keep things comfortable year-round so temperature is no issue. If you want to see one of the most famous waves in the world, winter time is for you. Hawaii Entry Requirements Contrary to popular belief, Hawaii is like any other continental United States, so you do not need a passport if you are an American. Please note the following entry requirements for travel to the United States: You must be on a short and temporary visit. You must agree to leave the US before the expiration of your visa. You must hold a valid passport for the intended period of stay. You must hold a valid visa issued by the US Embassy or Consulate. You must comply with all requirements on visa issuance. Getting around Public transportation is very minimal in Hawaii and your options vary island to island, but to really experience the landscape, we HIGHLY consider renting a car. There is no metro. If you prefer not to rent a car or ride The Bus, your best option would be a strong taxi the most expensive or use social services such as LYFT or Uber. Some hotels on Maui, Big Island, and Oahu offer shuttle services to and from certain locations but do not bet on it if you want to explore the island to more remote locations. On Oahu, the major spot to stay is in Waikiki. This is where most attractions and many services are readily available along the lines of entertainment and necessities. Must See Tourist Attractions Oahu offers countless tourist attractions and activities; from beaches and sightseeing to historic grounds of World War II and ancient Hawaiian war zones. Hikes Lanikai Pillboxes Trail is our favorite hike.

This is what a many picture when they think of a luau in Hawaii. The VIP option gives you some perks. One of the most notable perks with the VIP ticket is an earlier entry time for the luau. This is a benefit if you have young kids who will want to try each of the special cultural activity booths. The VIP ticket also gets you complimentary alcoholic and non-alcoholic drinks. VIP guests also receive a more substantial lei necklace compared to the single strand given to General guests. Stage not pictured is on left side of photo. As far as seating goes, the VIP tickets were closer seating to the main stage. Prices include gratuities, but tax is additional. I do feel the price is high for the experience. Therefore, arrive earlier than your specified check in time. TIP – The luau is only performed on certain days, so be sure to check the schedule before making plans. Hawaiian Cultural Activities Before the Luau As I mentioned above, arriving early gives you the opportunity to participate in the cultural activities set up around the area. These were a big hit with kids of all ages, and even adults can enjoy them. They got to use a traditional mortar and pestle to grind up some taro root, making the traditional Hawaiian food, poi. Taro smashing to make Poi Paper Stamping You could use naturally made stamps to stamp on paper and create your own bookmark. Tattoo This one was a big hit – getting a tattoo! The early on activities make the waiting time great for kids. And being Disney, the show itself is definitely family-friendly. People who have rooms that face that lawn would actually get a view of the show, but will miss out on the food and drink. Our whole family found a nice variety of food that interested all of us. Most of it was even still hot, which I was worried about since it was brought out at the start of the event. It was your standard buffet fare quality, not fine dining, but certainly tasty enough to enjoy! The chef prepared an allergy-friendly plate for Mia! Feel free to comment below if you have any questions about this Oahu luau!

5: Road to Hana | Maui Hawaii

Maira and I had the awesome opportunity to join Paul and Doug on their North Shore tour last Wednesday. If you're not familiar with the North Shore Beach Bus, you should be: these guys provide the premier tour of the North Shore of Oahu, including multiple awesome beaches, a fun day paddling down a river, snorkeling at the famous Hanauma Bay, and even a short stop at Dole Plantation!

Splurge for the convertible. Also, splurge on major doses of sunscreen. Waimea Start your Kauai tour on the southwestern side of the island, where it rarely rains. Check into your private cottage at Waimea Plantation Cottages. Do take the earplugs offered at check in. Drink it on the beach while leisurely watching the sky change as the sun sets. The fog slowly drifting out of the canyon while the colors change as the sun rises is a mystical experience. Follow signs for other canyon lookouts for a different perspective on this cavernous, waterfall-laden land before making your way back down to the highway. This leisurely ride is fit for even beginner equestriennes, winding through hillside and ocean views not available by car, and best seen on four legs. Spend the afternoon recovering from your ride by the pool or on the beach. With your experienced guides and a bit of luck, you may encounter eagle rays, pacific green sea turtles, or even inky octopi. After your underwater adventure, towel off and drive just a few minutes into the town of Koloa to grab a picnic lunch to go from Koloa Fish Market. Order the must-have wasabi poke and one or two others that strike your fancy we are partial to the Korean and Avocado varieties along with a refreshing seaweed salad. Pick up a few bottles of water or beer from the grocery store down the block, and take your picnic to Poipu beach to see Spouting Horn , where the crashing waves have eroded a narrow opening in the rock that shoots water in the air like an oceanic geyser. After your magical meal put the top down and hit the road, passing right by Lihue and heading up the coast to Kapaa. Kapaa Spend an afternoon in Kapaa before making your way to the North Shore, or if you want to linger a bit, spend a night at the Hilton Garden Inn in Wailea. Kapaa is located just north of Wailea and has a friendly, busy for Kauai vibe, along with some of the best food and shopping on the island. Drop into Shipwrecked Kauai for some ultra-hip home goods, clothing, and beachy jewelry and Work it Out for current yoga gear. Have a cold brew at Java Kai and pick up some locally grown and roasted and not cheap coffee beans to remind you of the island when you wake up back home. Have a lunch of barely seared ahi tacos from the Al Pastor taco truck , or mouth watering Chicken in a Barrel. From here, make sure that top is down and the sunscreen is applied and the top is down for the beautiful drive to the North Shore. North Shore Now make your way to the North Shore for the truly luxurious portion of your honeymoon. Rent a home, or for a waited on hands-and-foot experience, stay at the St Regis Princeville , which boasts a truly magnificent, heart-rupturing view of Hanalei Bay. Make sure to head to the patio off the lobby around dusk to enjoy the tradition of champagne sabering while watching the magnificent sunset. But you should, at least for a helicopter tour. You can book one that departs from Princeville, but the experience of a Safari Helicopters tour is worth the drive back to Lihue. Lihue You will be departing from Lihue, so if your flight is early in the morning, book a room at the funky but serviceable Kauai Beach Marriot Resort as it is just five minutes from the airport and will give you a chance to check out the main town of Lihue. Take a short drive up to Wailua state Park to see Wailua falls and a majestic view of the valley below. Follow Jaime on her adventures prudentjaime Read more.
