Whether you are planning a preschool party or need something for tweens and tweens, these games are perfect for all ages. Single ply works great! Simply have the kids choose a partner. When you say go, they have one roll of toilet paper to wrap their partner from head to toe to become a Halloween mummy. First one finished wins. Target Practice Shower cap for each participant Foaming shaving cream Orange cheesy balls Divide your contestants into teams. One person will wear the shower cap, and their partner will cover the cap with shaving cream. Have the partners spread apart. Winning team lands the most in 60 seconds. This is best played outside. Shake Your Booty Cake box or tissue box " with a hole cut out Belt softball and baseball belts work really well! Ping pong balls Cut slits in the side of the box and weave your belt through the box. Fill the box with ping pong balls and give your kids 60 seconds to shake them all out. For older kids, use a tissue box. For my younger kids, the larger cake box and larger hole made it a little easier for them. Spider Web Walking This adorable game is perfect for younger kids think preschool and early elementary.
