1: Confessions of a Sexist Pig () - IMDb

color) Ralph, a pot-bellied pig, and his rooster friend are living the high life at the animal farm behind John Wooden High School in Reseda.

A pig has to have his freedom! Look on the other hand my little friend, they are just trying to watch after your safety. Consider it a gesture of love. I just had to share. You never know where my kind might jump out at you. Consider us like clowns. I will never stomp my little hooves in the puddle outside in my magical backyard EVER again. Heck, I close my eyes and still see you. EEWW â€” you are like clowns â€” scary!! I gotta get in therapy. I love to settle in the back seat and go for a spin. It kind of relaxes me and helps me to go to sleep. I think it helps my mom too to hear me go bbaaww. Yes you are so right my friend. You are the most adorable little thing. I just want to pick you up and cuddle with you! If my mom saw you, oh goodness, we would so have to adopt you here at the Hotel Thompson!! Stay safe my little friend. Dear Bacon, I turn my back for one minute and my tail hit my nuts off of the pole. I think my face tells you everything. I got make every nut count during these winter months! Dear Bacon, No matter what you do in life, never give up and never surrender. Stay strong my friend. So true and spot on. I will never give up and never surrender with anything in my life. Remember friends â€” keep your pictures and questions coming. Send them to me at baconthompson gmail.

No matter how optimistic you are of a positive outcome, they never end well. Like getting the mail and finding yourself face-to-face with that annual gift from the county tax assessor: Then you open it and immediately want to slap yourself. What the fâ€” was I thinking?! I was recently contacted by someone from the dreaded area code. Without so much as a thank you. What did I expect? This guy had spent his entire career – or what passes for a career in D. Bloated bureaucracy and political posturing was all he knew. To him, everything was an entitlement. Everyone was out to get him. Every word of my proposal contained a conspiracy theory. Every email a subliminal message within a message. And he somehow saw himself as both the smartest guy in the room and a perpetual victim – nobody got him, but everyone was out to get him. What the hell was I thinking? Like Moses making the Jews wander in the desert for 40 years because the only life they knew was one of enslavement, he knew their future leaders had to be born free. Easy for him – the guy lived to like. It reminds me of the first and last time I considered joining the board of a nonprofit. After sitting through a three-hour board meeting I literally could not get out of there fast enough, my head pounding with a massive headache and wondering why there was never a power drill around when you needed one. Then there was college. After finally escaping with a couple of degrees in hand and entering the tech world I was encouraged to pursue an MBA. I somehow managed to get through financial accounting and managerial economics and finally said screw this and swore off academia for good. Have not entered a classroom since. I grew up watching my dad go to work at the post office. Then he retired, had ten relatively peaceful years and died. Several people have asked me if I would ever consider getting into politics. If that makes me a capitalist pig, so be it. Give me competition, or give me death. Apologies to Patrick Henry.
