Salamatof is located on the Kenai Peninsula between the communities of Kenai and Nikiski. The historic village site overlooks Cook Inlet and the towering Mt. Redoubt across the inlet. The village of Salamatof was recognized prior to the s. It was originally spelled Salamatowa, the surname of a Russian officer on one of the exploring expeditions sent to study Alaska. The village site is in the area where presentday maps locate Salamatof Creek and Salamatof Lake. The designation led to the creation of Salamatof Native Association, the village corporation for the original shareholders. We got in with them right away, as soon as we got down here. Russian fur traders arrived in the area in the late s, establishing Fort St. Nicholas at the mouth of the Kasilof River, and in they established another fort at the mouth of the Kenai River in what is now know as Old Town Kenai. Swanson River near Kenai, AK. Incorporated in , Kenai is a major sport fishing destination, famous for king and sockeye salmon. Today, a designated tribal fishing area near the mouth of the Kenai River allows elders to teach youth about traditional fishing methods. So they come to me to learn how to fillet the fish, what to keep, what to throw away, how to brine, how long to smoke it. Municipal Airport includes an asphalt runway, gravel strip and a water runway. Another half-dozen schools are in the sister towns of Soldotna and Nikiski, 11 and 18 miles away, respectively. Seafood processing, tourism, oil production, commercial fishing 1, borough residents hold commercial fishing permits , fish processing, government, timber and lumber, agriculture, transportation services, construction and retail trade. Fishing, hunting, and subsistence. Though Sharon and Karen grew up far from their Alaskan roots, Gladys made no secret of their adoption. Shortly after, Karen and Sharon were reunited with Feodora Kallander Pennington and their eight biological siblings. Photo by Brianna Cannon. The twins have taken time out of a busy summer day to relate this story. Karen, who still lives in Spokane, comes back to Alaska regularly to reconnect with her sister. Summers in Kenai, for them, mean fishing â€” a part of their culture they inherited from Feodora, who passed away in They live this lifestyle as a way of life. Sharon Isaak discusses the enjoyment in making birch bark baskets to keep the tradition alive. So they seek help with their crafts from the Elder women at Tyotkas. At the beach, they watch children from the community learn how to fillet salmon with an ulu. They take their porcupine quills and beads to Tyotkas, make earrings and give them to their Elder friends. The fish, the baskets, the porcupine quill beaded earrings: Native entities in the Kenai area Kenaitze Indian Tribe.
