In vampire novels such as The Vampire Chronicles by Anne Rice and the Twilight series by Stephenie Meyer, covens are families or unrelated groups of vampires who live together. [ citation needed ] Covens feature in the video game Dishonored, specifically in the DLC's Knife of Dunwall, and The Brigmores Witches.

The Cullens in New Moon. The family made a birthday party for Bella. However, the celebration is cut short when Bella cuts her finger by accident, prompting Jasper to lose control of his thirst. Though he fails to harm her, Bella is shoved into a pile of glass, receiving more serious injuries. After the incident, the family moved to Ithaca, except Edward, who traveled the world trying to dismiss his depression. While there, Alice researched her past with information from Bella provided by the tracker James. Carlisle worked at a new hospital; Esme restored an old residence and Jasper studied philosophy. When Alice suddenly receives a vision of Bella jumping a cliff, she rushed back to Forks, only to find her alive. However, Rosalie reported the previous information to Edward, who then lost the will to live and traveled to the Volturi for a suicide attempt. After Bella and Alice stopped him, the family moved back to Forks. With the Volturi now aware of Bella, the Cullens agree to let her become one of them after graduation, except Edward and Rosalie. Eclipse The Cullens from Eclipse. When Alice foresaw their approach to Forks. After being abandoned by the Denalis , the Cullens approached the Uley pack for help. To protect Bella from harm, Edward and Jacob take her to a mountain peak for safe hiding. At the end of Eclipse, Bella and Edward were engaged. The Cullens appeared at the end of the novella, The Short Second Life of Bree Tanner near the end of the battle when Carlisle, his family and the Uley pack finished off the newborns. Carlisle spotted a frightened newborn, Bree Tanner , and offered her asylum in exchange for her surrender, which she agreed. Jasper was against the idea of leaving the newborn alone for fear of what could happen when the Volturi arrived, but Carlisle and Esme talked him into leaving her be. When the Volturi arrived and interrogated the Cullens about the situation, the family was spared, but the newborn was ordered to be executed. Carlisle, Esme and Edward attempted to convince the guard to spare her life to no avail, and eventually witnessed her destruction. Breaking Dawn Main article: Bella and Edward eventually married in August. A few weeks later, Bella was shocked to discover that she was pregnant while on her honeymoon: This news caused a split in the La Push pack since Sam considered the child a threat to the local humans and planned an unprovoked attack on the Cullens in order to keep it from being born; Jacob Black embraced his birthright as Alpha and splits from the pack to protect Bella before Seth and Leah Clearwater decided to follow. The Cullens welcomed the wolves on their side into their home. After approximately one month, Bella gave birth to a daughter, Renesmee Carlie Cullen , almost dying in the process. Edward injected his venom into Bella slowly and painfully turning her into a vampire. Jacob imprinted on the baby; the incident forces the other wolves to declare peace with the Cullens, thus cementing the alliance between the two groups. Two days later, Bella officially joined the family as a vampire. After Alice had a vision of the Volturi coming to destroy their family as well as claim her, Bella and Edward into their "collection", the Cullens spent the month looking for friends around the world to witness for them. Eventually, a group of witnesses, including the wolves of La Push, the remaining Denali coven, and other vampires from around the world, gathered to testify that Renesmee was not an immortal child; some also agreed to defend her if the Volturi refused to listen and a fight proved inevitable. The Cullens and their allies run into battle. Alice and Jasper returned in time to present Nahuel , another hybrid, who provided information on behalf of their non-threatening existence. On the discovery of the strength of the Cullens and their allies, Aro was forced to retreat with the Volturi for self-preservation. The Cullen family celebrated their victory with their friends, though they realized that the coven had been disgraced, and that someday in the future would probably attempt to avenge themselves for it, but it will not be quite as easy as long as they had Bella. Twilight Reimagined Main article: Twilight Reimagined Two years after moving to Forks, Edythe fell in love with a young year old human boy named Beaufort Swan, who shared her feelings. Edythe found Beaufort interesting in two ways: The entire family worried about the safety of their secret after Edythe saved Beau from being crushed by a van, which inadvertently exposed her inhuman strength and invulnerability. But most of them learned to cope when Edythe and Beau become romantically involved. Beau found out about the family being vampires and accepted them in stride. Another vampire coven came to Forks soon after, and the leader, Joss , decided to hunt Beau for sport, with help from her mate, Victor. Beau chose to become a vampire and let his parents believe he was dead. Soon after this, the Cullens became aware of a new pack of wolves , led by Samantha Uley. After a necessary conversation between the pack and the Cullens, the truce was kept in place.

2: Vampires and Vampirism in the Pagan Community – Coven of the Goddess

Astral Vampires are vampires that are able to travel through the astral plane and feed off of the life-force energies of other entities within the astral plane, and/or they are able to materialize in astral form and feed off the life-force energies of people who are usually asleep.

Coven, to be precise. Oh, you know, family of witches. A coven is generally a group of twelve or more witches who occasionally meet to practice magic, celebrate sacred holidays, and discuss topics on witchcraft. As shown on several occasions, covens seem to always have both a leader and followers. In New Orleans , there are at least nine covens, all of which have detailed rules of conduct and a complex structure. All members of each of the nine New Orleans covens follow a leader known as the Regent. Together, the nine covens are a collective community that has Elders who guide them, and each coven individually has its own structure and different types of magic that they practice such as Sacrificial Magic, Necromancy, etc as well. However, they all appear to share their common form of witchcraft, Ancestral Magic , which they practice by drawing upon the magical power of the Ancestors. To earn the title of an Elder, a witch must have the power bestowed upon them by another Elder, or, in the case where there are no Elders to pass on the power, the witch in question must be able to consecrate the mortal remains of a powerful witch; this fail-safe was demonstrated by the witch Sophie Deveraux , who became an Elder of the French Quarter Coven after consecrating the remains of Esther Mikaelson. Aja , a former friend of Abby, met with Bonnie in the place she requested, along with the other eleven witches in her coven. When Bonnie looked apprehensive, Aja assured her that she and her coven had experience in dealing with witches consumed by Expression. When the members of the coven all linked themselves to Aja to give her the additional strength she needed to overpower Bonnie to strip away her Expression magic, Caroline Forbes , who refused to stand by and watch them kill her best friend, killed Aja by stabbing her, which in turn killed every witch who was linked to her. Aja, along with her coven, returned to the world of the living to take revenge against Caroline and her friends for being complicit in their murders. However, Niklaus appeared and killed Aja by decapitating her with a graduation cap, effectively scaring away the rest of the witches and preventing them from doing further harm. Because of their predilection for performing their magic in groups as a result of the ancient curse placed upon their people two thousand years earlier, the Travelers could be considered a very large coven. It was later explained that the coven was extremely old, since they were believed to have been the group of witches who cursed the Travelers in BCE. The Gemini Coven also has a specific ritual for choosing their leaders known as The Merge ceremony. In this ceremony, when a set of twins in the coven reaches the age of 22, the two twins perform the Merge during a celestial event, during which the stronger twin essentially kills the weaker twin in order to absorb their magical powers and certain personality traits, doubling their strength in the process. Once the ritual is complete, the stronger twin then becomes the leader of the coven, to whom the collective power of the coven is linked. This requires the coven to have a Merge ceremony regularly in order to ensure that there will be a new leader before the previous one can die or be killed. At the introduction of the Gemini Coven to the series, the leader was Joshua Parker , who was meant to be succeeded by one of his eldest twins, Malachai or Josette Parker. The Gemini Coven ended up meeting its end several months later at the wedding of his twin sister Josette and her intended husband, Alaric Saltzman. Before the couple could finish their vows, Malachai killed Josette and her unborn twins and attacked the rest of the party attendants before stabbing himself in the throat with a shard of glass and killing himself. After Malachai was killed by Damon Salvatore later that evening, his death marked the end of the modern-day generation of the Gemini Coven for good. It is assumed that the coven has existed for quite a long time, due to their tradition of the Harvest , a ritual that the ancestral witches perform every three hundred years in order to strengthen the link they have to their Ancestors, on whom they draw for strength. Members of the coven, led by Sophie Deveraux, manipulate the newly-returned Original Vampires Niklaus and Elijah Mikaelson into helping them overthrow the vampire leader Marcel Gerard , who had been holding the witches in subjugation and forbidding them to practice magic. It was believed that had Eva been successful in completing the ritual, she would have been more powerful than any

Elder or Harvest Girl. Ninth Ward Coven In For the Next Millennium , Davina gathers the Elders of the nine covens of New Orleans to decide the guidelines to be followed, namely a truce in the feud between vampires and witches. The witches who belong to the Ninth Ward Coven cause friction in the witch community, because they do not trust Davina as a leader, as they consider her a vampire sympathizer. One of the Elder of the Ninth Ward Coven, Kara Nguyen , even physically attacked Davina with a spell during a meeting in Lafayette Cemetery and she paid the price with her life. Structure New Orleans is the city with the largest number of covens, which are well structured and differentiated compared to other covens or groups shown so far. While small coven, generally family-run, refer to a leader or Elder, in New Orleans, witch covens are hierarchical according to a well-defined pattern: Chief witch of all nine covens of New Orleans, sovereign of the witch community and acting as an emissary to the Ancestors. Every coven has at least a couple of Elder witches who act as guides and priests of the individual coven, as well as dealing with internal problems of the coven concerned. Every years, four young witches known as "Harvest Witches" are chosen from the French Quarter Coven to be the forefront of the Harvest Ritual , a ceremony that according to Vincent Griffith can be performed only by Elders from the French Quarter Coven. Upon completion of the ritual, a Harvest Witch gains the favor of the Ancestors and is revered by the community to be trained as future leaders. Typically each coven manages its business in a certain part of the city, respecting the borders established by the division into districts, but some matters require to collaborate, so the Elders of each coven meet with the Regent to discuss policies to be implemented, especially when it is required to interact with other factions ; humans, vampires, and werewolves, respectively. Sometimes it is possible that within the same coven there are factions with different agenda. This may be caused by personal motivations and beliefs, feuds or personal gain. However, one of the tasks of Elders and Regent is to keep peace among the witch community members. A conspiracy against superior ranks can lead to hanging, as stated by the witch Davina Claire and the questioning of the value of the Ancestors as well as plotting against witches leads to a gruesome death, usually bleeding caused by magical means. The most terrible punishment that a witch can undergo is to be shunned via a ritual that is implemented only in severe circumstances when a witch is guilty of serious crimes, such as plotting the killing of other witches. When the guilty witch also happens to be Regent, the witch is forced to renounce the leadership role. For New Orleans witches who suffer from mental issues or are guilty of the crime of practicing dark or forbidden magic, the sentence is to be locked in the Fauline Asylum , where they are constantly sedated in order to suppress their magical power.

A Coven of Vampires is a collection of horror short stories by author Brian Lumley. The stories all concern vampires. It was released in by Fedogan & Bremer in an edition of 1, copies, of which were numbered and signed by the author, and illustrator.

Jessi was given a house charter that she took over known as Societas de Anarch and she was elevated to Princeps of this house charter a few months after entering the Corvinus family She then was placed into a position where she had to learn to protect all of those who chose to follow her in this house charter and Family she began to build. This was certainly no easy task as she was still very young but she was ready to take on the full responsibility that came with this new role and title and she did so without a second thought She set out on her mission to learn to fight and become good at it so she would have the knowledge to share with her family She did just that and spent many days and evenings venturing out in the realm to many of the lands which were dangerous to walk in as such a young vampire She was always able to find and sniff out trouble, which always usually led her to finding what she was seeking somewhere out there Many battles were lost and she was becoming discouraged until finally she found her way she fought many great warriors in the realm some of those who were considered legends within our dark world and she learned that never showing fear would earn her respect from these great warriors of our realm as well as many others in the realm Jessi began to get very good as the months went by and made a name for herself and her family that was begging to flourish When her Sovereign started seeing her abilities he placed her in charge of training his people to make them great warriors as Jessi had become, but for his own personal selfish reasons When Jessi followed his orders of waging war on the realm over a spat with another Sovereign in the town social known to the realm as Domino Frannizi of the Clan Blood Myst of the lineage Societas Draconistrarum led by Arch Nestis who both would later become Greater Diabolics in our realm Jessi set out to make her family proud and began initiating attacks upon other kindred in the realm from all others who were not direct family and began the killing and slaying of many with the help of the warriors within the family they were creating and building The very next day a parchment was received from Arch Nestis to Lord Mach Corvinus stating that due to recent attacks on her children by Lady Jessi they were threatening a blood war against the Clan Corvinus Jessi gathered her family together and had a meeting to determine what they wished to do and all voted unanimously that they wanted to leave the clan and begin our lives as Rogue vampires in the realm Jessi and her family left as well as two other house charters upon their departure from the Corvinus family Lady Jessi vowed to Lord Mach that one day she and her family would eliminate him and The Corvinus family Thus began the Journey which led to the birth of what would later be known to the realm as The Coven of Ravnos The Coven of Ravnos Family began as three original acting rogue house charters lead by Jessi Braveheart-Ravnos House Blood of Ravnos , JR Silverfall House of Darkness and Samuel Iblis Noamah House Malificious de Baphomet all of which were eager to get all three charters official rogue status in our realm which would end up taking over a few decades to finally accomplish However the third original house of Malificious de Baphomet would later be turned over to Lilith DeLioncourt who would eventually go astray and betray the family altogether thus the house ending up in the hands of someone outside of the Coven of Ravnos. This turn of events would bring the house known as the Fockers into the spot of the third original house of Ravnos led by Raversito Focker. The merger of these three houses as well as other Rouge house charters and individual outcasts in the community who decided to join the movement became known to the realm as The Rogue Alliance aka the RA Our goals and beliefs in this realm were very different from many others. We were Anarchs and we lived and survived by using our true nature and animal instincts. We taught our family members not only survival but the ways of our tribe creating many honorable warriors. Many utilized this family as a learning tool only to depart and betray us. Those who did so were usually relentlessly hunted and destroyed for their crimes of treason and betrayal against our family. Jessi was dusted by our creator for her actions and violent killing sprees of many vampires in the realm which was a short lived death as her family appealed her case to the Diabolic Conclave to have her once again resurrected to continue leading our great family and Coven The Family journey, strifes, and hardships would all begin and continue into the future Jessi and Raversito though both starting out as enemies, both created and born of different blood and DNA came together as brother and sister later in the journey and would end up forging a very tight bond thus leading Jessi, Raversito and JR to teach this bond and integrate all of our families different DNA and blood into one blood Jessi would later reconcile her differences with her true mother, Blood Regent Morrigan Alistor- Braveheart and her grandmother Arch ZoeBlue Alistor-Braveheart of her born lineage known to the realm as Harbingers of Blood. When times got rough and things started to seem hopeless her family would pull together and pick her back up to continue on. There were three very important individuals that also helped to guide her from behind the cloak of the darkest shadows they were her Grandmother ZoeBlue, Mother Morrigan and one other individual outcast known as Eseroth All of these guiding lights in the darkness would help guide Jessi down a path of success in the realm in creating and teaching others to be real vampires that would forge and eventually become the evil faction in our dark realm known as the Coven of Ravnos Welcome to Armageddon we will no longer be seating ourselves at the GCSC table or any of its meetings Get ready we are coming out of the shadows with our fangs bared and ready to consume any that cross our paths and rest assured we will not be knocking or asking for permission to destroy you.. Lock up your childer and lock down your homes because the river shall once again run red with the blood of thy enemies No one is safe from natures savagery, Not even the innocent, Only beauty is consistent. The wise choose their conflicts. The foolish have conflicts with everything and everyone. The ignorant convince themselves there is no conflict. Let it be known that on the 8th day in the month of September in the year of Our Source and Creator, the following clans of Ravens Claw bloodline declares war on the Clan known as Coven of Ravnos of Harbingers of Blood. The clans under Ravens Claw draw the line when it comes to the Coven of Ravnos. We will no longer take your verbal and physical assaults. Nor shall we be intimidated or bullied any longer. Ravens will stand united. We are rising above and taking flight. We have united as one. We are willing to go to war to stop these atrocious acts that are being opposed on us and others. We shall defend our own and have no fear. Our ancient have risen from slumber. They have spoken their wisdom from days of old. Our young are hungry, eager and ready to fly. Our old have bonded together and called the flock close. We ask at that time for Jessi Braveheart-Ravnos and all involved in this war to come together for peace talks. From this moment on you will be the prey and we shall be the hunters.

By Coven of the Goddess Blog Other Studies , Vampires 1 Comment This world is older than any of you know, and contrary to popular mythology, it did not begin as a paradise. For untold eons, Demons walked the earth; made it their home – their Hell. In time they the demons lost their purchase on this reality, and the way was made for the mortal animals. What remains of the Old Ones are vestiges: There are those with a different understanding of the metaphysical. They are seen as dangerous and evil beings that take a walk on a darker side. Yet is their existence among us to be feared, shunned and misunderstood or is it for us to break through the myth, and recognize these creatures, beings for whom they are. Not to fear them, but to understand, accept and recognize them. I talk about the vampire. Vampires are a very real part of our human living. There are those who are drinkers of blood, but more common are those who feed off energy, the psychic, empathic, and astral vampires that we in the pagan community have been taught to fear and shield against. Seen as monsters without ethics, yet are they really? Or are they simply misunderstood souls on the same journey and path as our own, trying to find the place they belong and live with the driving forces and desires that burn within them. To begin to remotely get a grasp on vampirism we will cover history, myths, psychology, the vampire community, types of vampires, methods of feeding, ways of recognizing a vampire and differentiating them from people exhibiting vampiric behaviors. This is a topic that a person could study a lifetime and never come up with a total understanding of, for in the vampire community lies as many views, opinion, practices, and lifestyles as in our very own pagan community. It will be important to note that most of this paper is based off my personal research, experiences and my opinions. This is my outlook on this topic and I hope that it will inspire others to see another point of view, yet also hope it will stir controversy and debate, because that is how we learn and grow. History and Myths Where vampirism began is as debatable as creationism vs. History has been redirected as much in this area as in our own area of Goddess worship, for many of the vampires talked about are female. Made to be evil, demonic, horrific by the patriarchal society ruled by a male god and figurehead. History of vampirism is as much myth as fact. Our beloved Lillith is one of my favorite vampires. She was believed to be a Succubus. This legend was an explanation for the phenomena of wet dreams, sleep paralysis, an excuse in some cases for unfaithfulness, and unnatural acts of sex that went against the churches teachings. This particular version of vampire was the excuse for many men who were accused of witchcraft, saying they were lured by or entrapped by a succubus. The Slavic people including most east Europeans from Russia to Bulgaria, Serbia to Poland, have the richest vampire folklore and legends in the world. The Slavs came from north of the Black Sea and were closely associated with the Iranians. Prior to 8th century AD they migrated north and west to where they are now. The origin of Slavic vampire myths developed during 9th C as a result of conflict between pre-Christian paganism and Christianity. Causes of vampirism included: In Romania, they are called Strigoi based on the Roman term strix for screech-owl, which also came to mean demon or witch. They believed the dead soul entered a world similar to ours except that there is no death. The soul stayed around the body and sometimes wanted to come back. The ancient home of the Gypsies, India has many mythical vampire figures. The Bhuta is the soul of a man who died an untimely death. It wandered around animating dead bodies at night and attacked the living like a ghoul. In northern India could be found the brahmaparusha, a vampire-like creature with a head encircled by intestines and a skull from which it drank blood. The most famous Indian vampire is another one of beloved Goddesses, Kali who had fangs, wore a garland of corpses or skulls and had four arms. Her temples were near the cremation grounds. She and the goddess Durga battled the demon Raktabija who could reproduce himself from each drop of blood spilled. Kali drank all his blood so none was spilled, thereby winning the battle and killing Raktabija. Yet, in Britain, the vampire was not even recognized until the 18th century. In fact, the word Vampire only came into English language in via an English translation of a German report of the much publicized Arnold Paole vampire staking in Serbia. It all started with an outbreak of vampire attacks in East

Prussia in and in the Austro-Hungarian Empire from Two famous cases involved Peter Plogojowitz and Arnold Paole. Plogojowitz died at the age of 62, but came back a couple of times after his death asking his son for food. When the son refused, he was found dead the next day. Soon Plogojowitz returned and attacked some neighbors who died from loss of blood. In the other famous case Arnold Paole, an ex-soldier turned farmer who had been attacked by a vampire years before, died while haying. After death people began to die and it was believed by everyone that Paole had returned to prey on the neighbors. These two incidents were extremely well documented. Government officials examined the cases and the bodies, wrote them up in reports, and books were published afterwards of the Paole case and distributed around Europe. The controversy raged for a generation. The problem was exacerbated by rural people having an epidemic of vampire attacks and digging up bodies all over the place. However, Dom Augustine Calmet, a well-respected French theologian and scholar, put together a carefully thought out treatise in which said vampires did exist. This had considerable influence on other scholars at the time. Eventually, Austrian Empress Marie Theresa sent her personal physician to investigate. This was the end of the vampire epidemics. But by then everyone knew about vampires and it was only a matter of time before authors would preserve and mould the vampire into something new and much more accessible to the general public. Vlad Tepes and Elizabeth Bathory In our western society, our most beloved vampire, Dracula is based on fact of two historical figures of Slavic ancestry and the great imagination of Brams Stroker. However, the real Vlad Tepes, i. Vlad Tepes and Vlad the Impaler were not in fact one person, but father and son. Vlad Tepes was the illegitimate son of Prince Mircea, the ruler of Wallachia, the area of present-day Romania south of the Carpathian Mountains. In Vlad appeared in Transylvania as an official in charge of securing the Transylvanian border with Wallachia. He resided in Sighisoara, where toward the end of the year his second son, Vlad later called Vlad the Impaler or Dracula was born. Vlad Tepes was part of the order of the dragon, thus became known as Vlad Dracul. He was a politically driven man, and in fact played both sides of the fence, playing loyalty to the Christians while making he also signed a pact with the Turks. As this was a very frightening and bloody time in the Carpathians, Vlad Dracul was eventually caught and tortured to death by the order of the Hungarian king and the rule of Wallachia was taken over by the a distant relative of Vlad Dracul known as Vladislav II. He was unable to do so until Vlad then began his six-year reign, during with his reputation was established. In September he took both a formal oath to Hungarian King Ladislaus V and, a few days later, an oath of vassalage to the Turkish sultan. At Castle Dracula he was faced with overwhelming odds, his army having melted away. He chose to survive by escaping through a secret tunnel and then over the Carpathians into Transylvania. His wife according to local legend, committed suicide before the Turks overran the castle. In Transylvania he presented himself to the new king of Hungary, Matthias Corvinus, who arrested him. Vlad was imprisoned at the Hungarian capital, by events had shifted to the point that he emerged as the best candidate to retake the Wallachian throne. In the summer of he was again recognized as the prince of Wallachia. His end came at the hand of an assassin at some point toward the end of December or early January

Now into the equation we will put in the Blood Countess, Elizabeth Bathory. Her search for youth led her into a life of murder and obsession with the bathing in and ingestion of blood of young women. Countess Bathory was born in to George and Anna Bathory, whose family was amongst the oldest and wealthiest of families in Hungary. Her husband was known for his cruelty and torture methods. Elizabeth herself was a very cruel woman and took up torturing and beating her own servant girls. According to record, on day a young servant girl pulled her hair to tight and the Countess slapped her so hard the young girl bled. Some of the blood splashed on the Countesses hand and when she wiped it away, she thought her skin looked younger, so she ordered her other servants to kill the girl and drain her blood so she could bathe in it. The countesses obsession with blood for maintaining her youthful appearance, continued until when one of her victims escaped and told authorities. In all, the countess and her servants reportedly killed, tortured and bled some girls. The Countess herself being of royalty was not executed for this treachery but locked in her room in her own castle until her death three years later. All of her servants were executed. This can be attributed to all of the Psychic self defense books being read in the pagan community, great story writers like Christina Freehan and Anne Rice, movie producers like John Carpenter, and bands like Inkubus Succubus and Type O Negative. This growth can also be attributed to an awakening on a higher level of spirituality of those truly with a vampire soul. Society bred vampires are those who live the music, the movie, the game to the point that their own individuality becomes meshed with the characters they idolize. These are the ones who make the news for destructive deeds; many worship Satan and claim to be Satanic Vampires and Witches. Many times this is a way to rebel against mom and dad, society, or gain recognition by adverse means to draw attention to oneself such as in the case of Jonathan Sharkey the man who was running for governor of Minnesota under the Vampire, Werewolf and Pagan party. The Kentucky Vampire Clan is another example of what I call society-bred vampires. This young group of people came together after reading fictional books, playing vampire games, and formed a Vampire Cult. These teenage kids began by bloodletting to gain power, moved onto small animals, and eventually murdered the parents of one of its members. Here is a news article written about the case: A group of Kentucky teen-agers who claim to be members of a vampire cult face a court hearing today in a double murder case.

They knew I was a caring king, and that if they failed to return that I would worry about them and send out others to discover their fate. And they knew also that with beasts so loaded down with gold and gems, their pace would be slow and my riders would surely catch them. Moreover, they would need provisions for their long trek overland, and extra beasts, and how to purchase such without displaying at least a portion of their loot? And finally they knew that my intelligence is good, that I am rarely lacking in advance knowledge in respect of travellers and caravans in these parts. What if I expected them to return with loot galore? And so they brought two-thirds of it back and left the rest in the desert, to be collected later on their way to Thandopolis.
