

1: Daddy Don't Die Chapter 1, a full house fanfic | FanFiction

I was a big full house fan and collector of the Stephanie books. This book is good but Danny Tanner's character is a little bit too strict and overprotective towards Stephanie, the writer should have studied more Full House episodes to get a taste of what the characters are like.

Scott Weinger, John Brotherton, Ashley Liao and Adam Hagenbuch are credited after the opening credits and only for the episodes in which they appear. Scott Weinger is credited as a Special Guest Star in the sixth episode of season two but as starring in all of his other appearances. Born Hermes Katsopolis as revealed in the season five episode "The Legend of Ranger Joe", he was named after his great-grandfather, who in turn is named after the Greek god of swiftness. However, he did not like his birth name, as other kids teased him for it; so when he was in kindergarten, he begged his parents to have his name changed to Jesse, thinking that one had to have a "cool name" to be in the in-crowd. As an adult, he was more confident with his true name, telling the girls about the Greek god of speed, and how his great-grandfather saved a village from a volcano, but still goes by Jesse. Jesse first moves into the house with virtually no experience in taking care of young children or babies, but starts to learn the ropes along the way. He becomes closer to all of his nieces over the course of the series, especially Michelle, whom he affectionately nicknames "munchkin" and "shorty", among others. Although he was shown to be a sports fan as well as a good athlete in the earlier seasons, it is revealed in later seasons that Jesse hated all sports especially basketball, as revealed in "Air Jesse" from season eight and was not very athletic. In the season two finale, Jesse and Becky adopt a baby girl whom they name Pamela after his sister. Somewhere along the line Jesse became a stay at home dad. Jesse, Becky and Pamela are all moving back to San Francisco, and he also bought back the Smash Club which is now a laundromat along with Joey. Danny Tanner Daniel Ernest "Danny" Tanner portrayed by Bob Saget, John Posey in the unaired pilot is left with three young daughters to raise after his wife, Pam, dies in a car accident caused by a drunk driver. At the beginning of the series, he works as a sportscaster for Channel 8 News. In the season two episode "Tanner vs. While Rebecca goes on maternity leave in season five just before giving birth to his nephews Nicky and Alex, Danny ends up falling in love with her co-host replacement, Vicky Larson. However, their relationship turned into a long-distance situation as Vicky was assigned various reporting jobs away from San Francisco. He says the family motto is "clean is good, dirt is bad". His quirkiness and generally "unhip dad" personality are also targets for humor. Danny also has one brother and one sister, and his parents are divorced. Unlike his brother-in-law Jesse who is more into rock-and-roll, Danny has a taste for disco music; one of his favorite songs is "Play That Funky Music" by Wild Cherry. During the second season Danny goes through a little bit of a mid-life crisis since he just turned 40. In season three Danny reveals that him and Teri got divorced. Danny and Becky asked for raises on their show but since they asked for too much they are fired and replaced by Mario Lopez. After feeling sorry for themselves they go back to Wake Up San Francisco to ask for their old jobs back but the station only wants Becky back. To cheer him up, the girls somehow tracked down Vicky and surprised him with her. He invites her to the 30th "Dadi-versary" party the girls threw for him, Jesse and Joey. Joey works as a stand-up comedian, whose act usually includes vocal imitations of cartoon characters such as Popeye, Bullwinkle J. Joey nearly quits comedy in the season one episode "But Seriously, Folks," after Phyllis Diller who was there as an audience member hogs his slot at a comedy club, deciding to change his name to Joe and become a serious businessman. He reverses his decision after D. Although there was some tension between Joey and Jesse when they first move in with the Tanners, they quickly become good friends to the point where Jesse asks Joey to be his best man at his wedding. Joey usually handles the day-to-day raising of the kids by doing chores like making meals, driving the kids to school appointments, and after school activities, taking care of Michelle as a baby, and helping the kids with their homework. Joey also buys D. It is in this episode that Joey reveals that he had wished to have siblings as he grew up as an only child even imagining that he was part of The Brady Bunch, and that being part of the Tanner family gave him the extended family he always wanted. Joey has held various jobs in addition to his work as a stand-up comic. Joey has moved to Las Vegas in Fuller House, and is now married with four kids.

His wife Ginger is a magician, and their kids, Phyllis, Lewis, Joan, and Jerry are very loud and obnoxious kids. Joey and his kids are moving back to San Francisco since his wife will be working as a magician on a cruise ship for six months. He also bought back the Smash Club with Jesse. Tanner Donna Jo Margaret "D. Although she sometimes bickers with them, she cares for them deeply. She has her first serious relationship with Steve Hale who was first introduced in the season five episode "Sisters in Crime", who later becomes a real fixture in her life and a regular character beginning in season six when their characters return from a summer abroad in Spain. Their relationship lasts until they break up in the season seven episode "Love on the Rocks," when they realize that the passion in their relationship is gone, but they agree to remain friends. Her best friend throughout the show was next-door neighbor Kimmy Gibbler, who was the complete opposite of D. In season eight, D. In Fuller House, D. When her boss retires, his son, Matt Harmon, and D. Matt and Steve fight for D. Realizing they have feelings for each other, Matt breaks up with his girlfriend and starts dating D. Steve tells Kimmy about D. The next day, before the wedding starts, Kimmy tells D. At the altar, Steve calls off the wedding, and D. Back home, the two decide to wait a month before they start dating, out of respect to their exes. After their "third, first date," Steve tells D. He chooses to stay with her, but D. Her mother died when she was five years old. Her catchphrases during the early seasons of the series include "how rude! She eventually evolved into something of a tomboy in seasons four and five. Stephanie has a habit of spying on D. Her best friends in school are Gia Mahan and Mickey, whom she meets in season seven the former is the only one who appears through to season eight. In her early years, she is very sentimental about Mr. Bear, a stuffed animal that her mother gave to her after Michelle was born this was the focal point of the season two episode "Goodbye Mr. She and Jesse are the most abrasive when it comes to how they feel about Kimmy Gibbler. Stephanie confesses to D. Becky schedules Stephanie for a pelvic exam and turns out she has three viable eggs and can have a baby via surrogacy. He wants to be the father. They are able to make embryos and Kimmy volunteers to be the surrogate mother. Kimmy is able to get pregnant with the embryos. Michelle Tanner Main article: Danny is more overprotective of Michelle than the other girls. Michelle was just a baby when Pam died, so she hardly remembers her mom. Her best friends, Teddy and Denise, appear frequently in later seasons. Her favorite toys in earlier seasons are Barney, a plush bear who hangs on the wall above her bed, and her stuffed pig. It is apparent that Jesse is somewhat closer to her than her sisters, and he gives her nicknames such as "munchkin", "shorty" and "rugrat". She is known for her many recurring catchphrases such as "you got it, dude! Becky was born in Valentine, Nebraska and decided to pursue journalism as a career while she was in high school. She was reluctant to admit her feelings for Jesse at first, but she eventually falls in love with him. The two almost elope in Lake Tahoe in the season two finale "Luck Be a Lady", but backed out when Becky realized that she and Jesse were not really ready to get married. Becky helps to transform Jesse, although she still teases him about his obsession with his hair and love of Elvis. She also serves as a mother figure to the girls at times; most prominently giving advice to D. Becky is offered a producer role on Wake Up, San Francisco in the season eight episode "The Producer", which results in Danny briefly quitting the show due to him being passed over for such a promotion. Becky gets baby fever when around D. She and Jesse end up adopting a baby girl whom they name Pamela. They ask for their old jobs back at Wake Up San Francisco but the station only wants her back. She, Jesse and Pamela are moving back to San Francisco. Kimmy Gibbler Kimberly Louise "Kimmy" Gibbler portrayed by Andrea Barber, recurring since season one and upgraded to a series regular in season five is D. Most of the Tanner family cannot stand her Danny, Stephanie and Jesse are especially annoyed by her, with Stephanie often making jabs at her lack of intelligence and other unusual quirks and Danny urging D. She is often known to be a poor student in school, and had copied D. Kimmy is the subject of a recurring gag in the series, regarding her terrible foot odor, which becomes noticeable to other people mainly once she removes her shoes; Kimmy also becomes aware of this in a scene in the season seven episode "The Apartment", in which she accidentally grabs one of her shoes while searching for her phone when Danny calls her to find out the whereabouts of D. She is also known to be addicted to shopping. He finally tries to stop picking on her and tells the Tanners to try to go easy on her. However, their behavior towards her remains the same in later episodes, although she never seems to mind it anymore. In "Taking the Plunge," Kimmy decides to run off to Reno and elope with Duane after she was rejected by the colleges that she had applied to, and is afraid that D. In the two-part series finale "Michelle Rides Again," she tries to find D. Sometime after high school Kimmy got married to a race car driver named Fernando, and has a daughter named Ramona. In the sequel series she and Ramona move into the Tanner family home after D. She moved in to help her along with Stephanie. Kimmy has become a party planner. He is introduced in the season five episode "Sisters in Crime" as D. Steve is two years older than D.

Stephanie had gone to college down in L. And Michelle had had a falling out with Danny when she was seventeen and moved out to live with her boyfriend Kyle. After high school graduation they moved to New York City and got married. They had twins named Claire and Alison. Joey had fallen in love with a girl named Nancy and gotten married and had a child named Peter. They still lived in the San Francisco area. Jesse and Becky were still married, Alex and Nikki were grown and gone and so was their daughter Megan. They also still lived in the San Francisco area. Danny now lived in the house that they all had once lived in, alone. Joey and Jesse still came by every now and then and they were still close which Danny was grateful for. Everyone else told him what they knew sometimes, but they knew talking about her hurt Danny and it was hard for him. Michelle was in her New York apartment when her cell phone rang. She looked at the caller it was her sister DJ. But you need to come home. Michelle felt the color on her face start to drain. She had recently even thought about going out to see him. He had yet to meet her girls. Doctors have said that everyone should be prepared to say goodbye. This had to be a nightmare repeated for her sisters. Michelle made no hesitation when she told DJ she would get there as soon as she could. After hanging up she called Kyle and told her what DJ had relayed to her. Kyle agreed that she and their girls needed to go out to California as soon as possible. He had a couple things to tie up at work but would be out as soon as he was done. That night Michelle took her four year old daughters and caught a redeye to San Francisco. DJ picked her up from the airport. They cried when they saw each other. Stephanie and DJ enter from downstairs. Uncle Jesse, something horrible is in the house! Hey Jesse, grab Michelle, and help me set the table, will you takes a pot to the table? Alright, come on Michelle picks up the high chair. Danny enters from the side. I missed you too honey. Did you miss all of me or just my leg? DJ, stop watching Oprah and start doing your homework. Maybe because the closet monster moved into the garage. As you know, all the TV stations in this city are fighting each other tooth and nail for better ratings Anyway, my station is putting together a special promo, kind of a little commercial, about each of its newscasters, and here comes the great news Stephanie. I can feel the energy. Alright, everybody chow down all take one taste of the food and turn away. Should we send out for pizza or Chinese? Later that night, DJ and Stephanie are asleep, Stephanie hears the same noise from earlier. Can I sleep with you in your bed? Alright, come on over. Does this mean you believe me about the monster? You forgot to turn off the light. Both hear the same noise. Forget the light, run for your life! The girls run into the hall. Mon Jesse enters from a side door, picks up Stephanie ster! Danny enters from the right. You know, in every movie the hero is always a soldier, a cop, or a private i. Never once, never once have they made a movie about the real American hero, the exterminator enters the room. Coming soon to a theater near you. Daddy, can I sleep with you in your bed tonight? Your Uncle Jesse says that your room is monster free. And girls, there are no such things is monsters. Get it girls, more money. DJ and Stephanie are asleep Good night. The joys of fatherhood. Okay Michelle, this is your big TV debut. Yeah bangs sweeping to the left, curls framing the face starts messing with her hair. See, I say we pull it back, and give her a more sophisticated kind of look. More of a Madonna, Brigette Neilson kind of thing pulls her hair back. Maybe just a bow. Simple, yet it screams style. Okay, tie it first There we go, finger. Alright, now should we get her Wee Bots or her Little Glens? Yeah I think I did. Alright removes the bow. They hear the strange noise Jesse: Did you hear that noise? Yeah, the girls were right. Be quiet listens, hears the same noise. How can you possibly know this? Alright, come on out pal! This is your last warning! Get out now or be another notch on my spray gun! Jesse heads for the garage, Joey enters. Alright pal moves some boxes come on out! Who are you trying to catch, Phil Neacroe? Joseph, I have to improvise. I left my tools in the car. Listen, in order to catch a ferret, you must become one with the ferret. Oh sure, like this imitates a squeaking mouse. Joey, when you were a kid did you fall out of a tree house? There he is, there he is! What are you going to do to him? Somewhere between rat and lawyer. Jesse gets a net, Joey steps in front of him, singing Born free, as free as the wind There he goes Switch to the living room, the doorbell rings, DJ and Stephanie answer, a dark haired woman in a blue dress stands on the other side. Yes I am, because you are so adorable! Let me see you smile! Let me see if you can find a place to put my coat. Downstairs, Jesse is in a crawl space in the garage, Joey moves a ladder. Joey, give me the ladder. You have to promise me that if you capture the ferret, that you will let him go in a safe and pleasant environment. Help me down here gives Joey an arm. These guys help take care of us.
