The Dallas Cowboys season was the Cowboys' 39th season in the NFL. Team owner Jerry Jones would hire former Pittsburgh Steelers offensive coordinator Chan Gailey to be the fourth head coach of the Dallas Cowboys franchise.

Breaking down one of the riskiest draft picks by the Dallas Cowboys over the past 25 years: First, eighth Did the risk pay off? At the time Michael Irvin was going through legal issues that had the Cowboys concerned over their image. The head coach, Chan Gailey, was not in favor of selecting Moss, whose talent was unquestioned but whose off-field troubles had many teams concerned. The Cowboys were not the only ones to pass on Moss. Nineteen teams did so, and the Cincinnati Bengals passed on him twice. After meeting with Jerry Jones and Deion Sanders, Moss felt assured he would wear a star on his helmet. When the Cowboys passed on him, he carried the grudge with him the rest of his career. In his first game against the Cowboys on Thanksgiving in , he caught only three passes but they went for touchdowns of 51, 56 and 56 yards. He also drew a yard pass interference penalty. Moss never lost a game against the Cowboys for the Minnesota Vikings , Oakland Raiders and New England Patriots , catching 35 passes for yards and 10 touchdowns. Greg Ellis was picked over Moss and had a solid career, picking up 77 sacks in his 11 years with Dallas. Randy Moss finished his pro career against the Cowboys. Jerry Jones is not someone known for playing it safe, but he did so by passing on Moss. It also speaks to the control the head coach has in developing a roster because Gailey was opposed to taking Moss. Two years later the Cowboys traded for Joey Galloway, giving up two No. That move might be the most costly of the Jones era. Had the Cowboys selected Moss, they would have had an electric receiver and two first-round picks to help extend the final days of Troy Aikman. Instead, Aikman retired after the season and the Cowboys finished from By no means should Ellis be viewed as a failure. He was a productive player and a team leader. But when you consider what Moss achieved in his career, with a spot reserved in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, it pales in comparison.

Since that time, the two teams have met in regular season contests and two NFC Championships. Dallas leads the regular season all-time series 59–40<sup>2</sup>, and the Redskins lead the all-time playoff series 2–0. New York Giants Main article: Giants–Cowboys rivalry The first game ever played between the Giants and Cowboys was a 31–31 tie on December 4, Dallas currently leads the all-time series 56–39<sup>2</sup>. Philadelphia Eagles Main article: Eagles–Cowboys rivalry The competition with Philadelphia has been particularly intense since the late s, when the long-moribund Eagles returned to contention. A series of other factors heightened tensions during the s and s, including several provocative actions by Philadelphia fans and Eagles head coach Buddy Ryan. Among these were the "Bounty Bowls," in which Ryan allegedly placed a bounty on Dallas kicker Luis Zendejas and Veterans Stadium fans pelted the Cowboys with snowballs and other debris. A game at Philadelphia saw Eagles fans cheering as Michael Irvin lay motionless and possibly paralyzed on the field. In the rivalry became more intense when in the last game of the year in which both teams could clinch a playoff spot with a victory, the Philadelphia Eagles defeated the Cowboys 44–6, and clinched a playoff spot, where they would go to lose the NFC Championship game to the Arizona Cardinals. The following season, the Cowboys avenged that defeat by beating the Eagles three times: Dallas leads all-time series 65– Dallas has played seven postseason games against San Francisco. The Cowboys defeated the 49ers in the and NFC Championship games, and again in the Divisional Playoff Game, when Roger Staubach threw two touchdown passes with less than two minutes remaining for a 30–28 win. San Francisco subsequently won their first of five Super Bowls. Dallas won the first two match-ups, and San Francisco won the third. The Cowboys and Rams have met eight times in postseason games tied 4–4, matching the Bears-Giants rivalry for the most in postseason history. The meetings include two NFC Championship games Dallas 2–0, four division playoff games Rams 3–1 and two wild-card games tied 1–1. The Rams wore their white jerseys in certain home games when the team was in Los Angeles, especially against the Cowboys, forcing Dallas to wear their "jinxed" blue jerseys, including the NFC Championship Game Dallas won anyway, 28–0. Since the move to St. Louis the Rams have worn their blue jerseys in most home games. The Rams did, however, make one exception and wore their white jerseys at home in their most recent meeting in, forcing the Cowboys to wear their "jinxed" blue jerseys. Dallas would lose 34–14 to a Rams team that would finish 2–14 on the season and see the Cowboys miss the playoffs that season. The two teams have faced each other in the postseason six times. Texas Stadium is one of the few places where then Packers quarterback Brett Favre has never won 0–9, Favre has since gone on to play for the New York Jets and currently the Minnesota Vikings. The rivalry was renewed during the season, when both teams met in a late-season matchup. Anticipations ran high as both teams boasted 10–1 records, and battled for first place in the NFC playoff hunt. Dallas prevailed, winning 37–27, and clinched the top seed a few weeks later. Pittsburgh Steelers Main article: Steelers–Cowboys rivalry The two teams met in the first regular season game the Cowboys ever played in a 35–28 loss to the Steelers, the first-ever regular season victory for the expansion Cowboys in, and would later meet in three Super Bowls, all of which were close. The Steelers-Cowboys is to date the Super Bowl matchup with the most contests. It is said that the rivalry was fueled in the s due to the stark contrast of the teams: The all-time series is currently tied 15–15 including the playoffs. Houston Texans Intrastate rivalry Edit The Houston Texans, and before that the Houston Oilers, are considered by some to be rivals of the Cowboys because of the in-state affiliation. The Cowboys face the Texans every four years in the regular season. In, after failing to secure NFL backing for a Texas football franchise, millionaire Lamar Hunt organized a renegade formation of franchises called the American Football League, composed almost entirely of teams in cities ignored by the NFL like Buffalo, Houston and Dallas. His own franchise, the Texans, and the Houston Oilers were the first two to play in the state of Texas since another Texans franchise folded in To counter what was seen as encroachment the NFL organized two
