Cashier – cashiers operates the cash register by checking out items, accepting different modes of payment, and issuing change and receipts. The ideal cashier is someone who is approachable, attentive, and polite. Cashiers normally earn minimum wage.

Sales Associate – sales associates are divided into apparel, footwear, lodge sales, general sports, golf, and bike and exercise. Like cashiers, sales associates must also be friendly, attentive, and courteous. Sales associates start out earning minimum wage, with the chance to earn more.

Management – The management team is composed of the department lead, assistant manager, and the store manager. Together, they hire and train new employees, set schedules and tasks, ensure customer satisfaction, oversee shipping and receiving, and communicate with corporate headquarters.

Applicants can begin applying online by applying at the careers page of the official website and waiting for an interview schedule. Entry-level positions will only have to undergo one or two face to face interviews, while management applicants will have to face two or three interviews. After the recruiting team reviews your information and finds you suitable, they will contact you for an interview. The interview will give them the chance to know your qualifications and see if you are suited for the sports retail brand. The Dicks Sporting Goods interview is laid back and will focus on standard questions, like your personal details, employment history, job skills, work ethics, and availability. Since it is a sports retail store, you may be asked your knowledge in sports. Therefore, it is important to brush up on some of popular sports such as baseball and basketball. Coming to your interview prepared will make you more confident and impress your interviewer. Aside from confirming your personal and employment details, the interviewer will also ask you the following questions: Have you ever asked customers to sign up for store credit cards or rewards programs? When have you worked as part of a team to accomplish a common goal? How would you define passion? Why do you want to work for Dicks Sporting Goods? How do you define customer service? You may also be asked situational questions to gauge how you would react to common store situations. In your answers, always prioritize customer service: What would you do if you caught a shopper stealing? Can you describe a time when your work was criticized and how did you handle it? A customer is unhappy with a purchase. How do you handle it? Have you ever had trouble with a boss, co worker, or customer? Can you describe a time when you had to deal with almost impossible demands? Taking the time to think of the best answer saves you from embarrassment through fumbling and stuttering. As much as possible, try to prepare answers to possible questions beforehand to have enough time to think of the best response. Talk about your experiences in retail if you have any. Dicks Sporting Goods is looking for applicants who are familiar with customer care and who have experienced challenges. You may also talk about your favorite athlete and recent sporting events to highlight your knowledge in sports. When it comes to your interview, share stories and experiences that show how passionate and diligent you are. On top of questions on customer service skills and employment history, interviewers may ask how you handle employees, day to day operations, and inventory. Show a lively personality and an outgoing attitude throughout the interview, as hiring managers look for friendly and cheerful employees. Most importantly, interviewees should be knowledgeable and have a real desire for sports to start their Dicks Sporting Goods employment. A simple dress shirt, slacks, and leather shoes are good options for men, while women may wear a blouse with slacks or a skirt to show professionalism. It is important to keep in mind that Dicks Sporting Goods likes cheerful and passionate individuals who can provide exceptional service to its valued customers.
