What a great site! He was truly one of the best fine artists "real" artists we ever knew. I seem to remember Vance mentioning that you were doing a book with your poems and his art, and I hoped to see it when it was finished. This website is wonderful and I am so glad you are doing it. You might have wondered what it was that we had with Vance, besides arguing with him about whether or not there was an after life, which I trust he found out does exist. I was brought up by artists and there were some very "weird" stories about my "wild" grandfather when I was growing up, so Vance was just a true artist to me. It was expected that he was different. His art was absolutely amazing! Some of the most cherished memories Thom and I have, of the times we spent with Vance over the years we knew him, were the times we went over to his house and sat there with him all night watching him paint or do pastels! He loved to work at night, and we loved watching him create art. The beauty he created on the canvas was magical. We learned so much from him about creating abstract art and he was the inspiration for many of my ceramics works. He used to visit my studio and critique my ceramic art, and show me how to "loosen up" the application of oil colors which I applied to some of my large vessels. He started hanging around with different people and got his first illness right after that. He had been forced out of his beautiful home, and we heard he lived in an apartment in Carefree someplace. A couple of weeks later, we got a call from him, and he told us of the bad news that the doctors had given him. His friends had changed and our relationship had become very polite and distant. I know we will see him again in the big after-life party, so I am happy about that. I am sending the site url on to some other friends who knew him. If you would like a photo of the pastel that we have, let me know and I will take a digital photo and send it to you. I am glad we are staying in touch. Much love and many blessings, Sydne.
