The author, the former editor of the Darien News and the county historian, has written a heavily footnoted history in a chronological format. It covers the rice and cotton plantations, its owners and land use practices and the Civil War. It includes many high quality illustrations and maps and 56 appendices. He brings you into each generation he writes about. You almost feel the wind on your face, and the sea at your feet, with his descriptions. He goes beyond name, date, and place. He brings you to a point where you feel you are living the times. He not only goes into detail about a person, he goes beyond that person, to someone who was touched by that person, and recounts it. Therefore, we learn about them from two points of view. We learn what he finds by exploring a "paper trail", and we learn about what he finds from the things that have been passed down. I will tell you I have never been as impressed about a book written about a town or place, or people, the way his book impressed me. His book made me want to go out and "explore" I have learned more about the "out of the way places" here, in McIntosh Co GA, in his book, than anywhere else. His books are also extremely helpful where Genealogy in being researched. The Best Historical compilation for the coastal area! It is by far the best book on coastal Georgia.
