What is a Group? Groups of people are composed of individuals. Yet beyond these individual people, a group is a field: To understand yourself you need to explore your inner experiences. Likewise, if multi-leveled organizations want to know themselves, they need to explore open forums to understand their various parts. Open Forums in my definition are structured, person-to-person, or cyber-space, democratic meetings, in which everyone feels represented. Furthermore, they are facilitated in a deeply democratic manner, which means the deepest feelings and dreams can also be expressed. Thanks to the Yachats Academy of Arts and Sciences for the invitation. Wilma Jean Tucker for having created an open forum on race issues in Oakland, California in Oakland was one of the few places that did not break out into riots after that trial. Our hope is that learning to process large open public forums on difficult, historical topics, may contribute to a better world for everyone. See below the San Francisco Chronicle article by Mr Don Lattin who reported on that forum because the newspaper article was difficult to scan, the text is reproduced from the original. This is the largest such organization in the UK representing a vast and diverse number of counselors, psychologists and practitioners. Impressions from the Transforming Times Forum November The Psychotherapist, 41 , Schlesinger a few years back about Processwork and organisational education. The most capable people often create the most serious obstacles to progress. The path to effective organisational change lies in the Deep Democracy of Open Forums. Process Work transcends the limits of procedural governance and bureaucracy. This interview refers to a large open city forum in Portland, Oregon several years ago. That forum was created by the Process Work Institute of Portland. Amy and Arny were co-facilitators. The theme was about the relationship between the Oregon Citizens alliance, a conservative Christian political activist organization and Lesbian and Gay Rights. A heartwarming and hopeful community-worldwork report created by the Haida Community, under the direction of Patty Daniels from the Gowgaia Institute at Haida Gwaii, the Queen Charlotte Islands off the west coast of Canada. We are so very thankful to all the Haida people for what we learned and experienced there. Mind and Body Experience shows neglecting a part of yourself makes it appear as an inner problem, outer anxiety or body symptom. What you can do: Use awareness, accept your diversity of images and dreams II. Encourage medicine and psychology to cross their boundaries and come together to match your inner experience. World Problems If you or your group marginalizes a person or feeling, that person or feeling becomes a problem later on, or a group which attacks yours. Consider how you are the other. Encourage democratic theory and practice to deepen by using awareness methods. Transform Groups into Democracies. Very few of us are democratic enough to give equal representation to all our inner and outer parts. What you can do. Use awareness, notice your feelings, and become more deeply democratic. What this means and what you can do: Ask yourself why you sometimes want to wipe out the human race. Consider SARS disease as a ghost role, a nonlocal weapon of mass destruction. Become a shaman and play that role and make it meaningful to ameliorate its consequences. Process oriented ecology and earth-based psychology Gaia by Amy. We have been researching the connection between the experiences and feelings people seem to have always had about the living quality of the earth, e. How exactly did we get disconnected from the earth? While the issue of environmental abuse is not new, ecological research dealing with changes at the surface of our planet is a new, trans-disciplinary study. According to our research and communication with centers for ecological studies in the United States, it seems there is at present no clear model for planetary processes that include human psychology, conflict resolution, economic analysis, reduction of war machinery, etc. We are pondering the danger of global warming, the influence of human action, and volcanoes on global warming. We are pondering genetic manipulation getting into the hands of warring cultures. It is going to be easier in the future not only to produce medicine but genetically organized diseases. On the consensus reality level, reducing conflict, controlling overpopulation, reducing environmental destruction can help if we learn how to get along with one another. Once again; we need more research and practice in how to deal with conflict. Earthwalker offers the everyday mind new possibilities. The gnome is suggesting a tip about innerwork. Meditate and feel the earth around you. Then ask the earth to show you which direction it wants you to walk in today. This answer might seem irrational to your everyday mind. Keep your doubts in mind, but let your body and the earth move you in the direction the earth implies. Move in that direction until you know sense your own earthwalker-ability and what it suggests for your path today. It seems likely that our Aboriginal friends and ancestors, the world over use and used the Earth as one of their main guides in life. That is, this ability is everywhere. For us, this sixth sense is important information. Download article Worldwork articles and interviews Mindell, Amy. In this article, Amy Mindell comes out of the closet with her politics of dreaming. Written for the intellectual and also for the artistic mind, focused as well on the general public, Amy clearly makes her point. The world is run without awareness or consciousness of the deepest, most creative parts of our souls. That is, Dreaming is an organic and necessary element of all world process. Dreaming changes group atmosphere, deepens interactions and creates sustainable change. From protest music to Mardi Gras, from healing rituals to theater, all over the world and throughout time people have turned to special transformative and artistic modalities for greater understanding and inspiration. In this article I show how dreaming in community process can help navigate more fully community tensions, bring about more sustainable resolutions, and contribute to healing the historical split between these two diverse yet central approaches to community life.
