A portrait of the Penney family taken in Hamilton, Missouri, around 1880. From left to right: When he was eight, he had to pay for his own clothing because money was scarce and his father wanted him to learn the value of money. To do so, Jim raised and sold livestock until neighbors complained of the noise and smell. He continued to work on the family farm though he really wanted to become a lawyer. Hale and Brothers An advertisement to shop at the J. Jim began his training as a salesman on February 4, 1880. I like the way he has started out. Other salesmen often bullied Penney and took customers away from him. Penney learned that he had to stand up for himself. Even as he gained confidence in himself and developed his skills as a salesman, Penney started feeling ill. He was diagnosed as being susceptible to tuberculosis. His doctor told him to move to a drier climate. In 1885, Penney moved to Denver, Colorado, and found work in a dry goods store. Then he bought a butcher shop with all his savings. That same year, Penney married Berta Alva Hess. She was born on September 25, 1865. She contracted pneumonia in 1885 and died later that year in Salt Lake City on December 15. Using money from savings and a loan, Penney joined the partnership and moved with his wife and infant son to Kemmerer, Wyoming, to start his own store. Penney opened on April 14, 1885, was a one-room wooden building. He and his family lived in the attic above the store. Penney stocked quality products at fair prices for mining and farm families. Interior of a Golden Rule Store, c. 1890. Soon, he had a one-third ownership in three stores in Wyoming. By 1890, Callahan and Johnson sold their shares of the chain to Penney who dreamed of starting more Golden Rule stores throughout the West. The store name represented his religious beliefs and gave him a business motto. Penney with partners J. Penney with his partners at the Golden Rule Mercantile Company, c. 1890. Back row, from left: Penney Archives, DeGolyer Library] The number of men Penney hired and trained grew larger each year and formed the basis of his company. By 1895, Penney established his headquarters office in Salt Lake City. Penney advertisement from [Boonville Weekly Advertiser, April 3, 1895, page 3] In 1895, tragedy hit. It is caused by bacterial or viral infections that inflame the air sacs in the lungs and make it difficult to breathe. An individual suffering from pneumonia may have a cough, fever, breathing difficulties, and chest pain. Pneumonia can affect people of all ages and can lead to death if it is left untreated. The chain name was changed in 1895, becoming the J. By 1895, Penney relocated his headquarters to New York City to be closer to the major sources of merchandise. Penney Store was located in the same building as J. Penney store would soon open in their community. Smart advertising, just treatment of customers, and good products at affordable prices made Penney very wealthy. He opened the first J. Penney Store in his home state of Missouri on April 15, 1895, in Moberly. Penney store in Jefferson City J. Penney stores, like this one in Jefferson City, Missouri, circa 1895, became the cornerstone of many small downtowns across the country. Penney Archives, DeGolyer Library]. Sadly, Mary died in 1895, leaving him with another son, Kimball. Hale, retired in 1895, Penney opened his 3rd store in his hometown of Hamilton. Penney bought the same building where he had started his retail career and selected fourteen citizens from Hamilton as his partners in the store. Two years later, Penney married his third wife, Caroline B. Together they had two daughters, Mary Frances and Caroline Marie. Their marriage lasted until his death. Penney transferred one of his valuable herds to the University of Missouri in 1895. Penney wanted to improve the livestock. That dairy herd, the Foremost Guernsey Association herd, was given to the University of Missouri in 1895. On it he established a purebred Aberdeen Angus herd. Penney invested in purebred cattle for many years. In 1895 he set up the J. This foundation still supports organizations that address important issues such as community renewal, the environment, and world peace. Although Penney was not a college graduate, he received honorary degrees from a variety of colleges and universities, including the University of Missouri and Stephens College, both in Columbia. He is buried at Woodlawn Cemetery in the Bronx. On April 14, 1985, the J. Penney Company celebrated one hundred years in business.
