The Catholic Church authorizes the use of exorcism for those who are believed to be the victims of demonic possession. In Roman Catholicism, exorcism is sacramental [1][2] but not a sacrament, unlike baptism or confession. Its efficacy depends on two elements: The ritual assumes that possessed persons retain their free will, though the demon may hold control over their physical body, and involves prayers, blessings, and invocations with the use of the document Of Exorcisms and Certain Supplications. Solemn exorcisms, according to the Canon law of the Church, can be exercised only by an ordained priest or higher prelate, with the express permission of the local bishop, and only after a careful medical examination to exclude the possibility of mental illness.

History The first official guidelines for exorcism were established in 1983. They were later revised by the Vatican in 1999 as the demand for exorcisms increased. In the 15th century, Catholic exorcists were both priestly and lay, since every Christian was considered as having the power to command demons and drive them out in the name of Christ. These exorcists used the Benedictine formula "Vade retro satana" "Step back, Satan" around this time. By the late 19th century, Roman Catholic exorcisms were seldom performed in the United States, but by the mid-20th century, popular film and literature revived interest in the ritual, with thousands claiming demonic possession. Maverick priests who belonged to fringe groups took advantage of the increase in demand and performed exorcisms with little or no official sanction. In subsequent years, the Church took more aggressive action on the demon-expulsion front. The practice of exorcism without consent from the Catholic Church is what prompted the official guidelines from 1983 to be amended. The amendment established the procedure that clergy members and each individual who claims to be impacted by demonic possession must follow. This includes the rule that the potentially possessed individual must be evaluated by a medical professional before any other acts are taken. The primary reason for this action is to eliminate any suspicion of mental illness, before the next steps of the procedure are taken. Since demonic possession was extremely rare, and mental health issues are often mistaken for demonic possession, the Vatican requires that each diocese have a specially trained priest who is able to diagnose demonic possession and perform exorcisms when necessary. Despite that fact, every diocese is required to have at least one priest that is an exorcist, or is trained to perform exorcisms. As the demand for exorcisms has increased over the past few decades, the number of trained exorcists has also risen. In prior times, exorcists were kept fairly anonymous, and the performance of exorcisms remained a secret. Some exorcists attribute the rise in demand of exorcisms to the rise in drug abuse and violence, which leads to the suggestion that such things might work hand in hand. Many times a person just needs spiritual or medical help, especially if drugs or other addictions are present. The specially trained priest and medical professionals will be able to work together to address the patient, and be able to determine what type of illness the patient is suffering from. After the need of the person has been determined then the appropriate help will be met. In the circumstance of spiritual help, prayers may be offered, or the laying on of hands or a counseling session may be prescribed. The exorcist might not perform an exorcism if he does not know the person.

Process of the exorcism In the process of an exorcism the person possessed may be restrained so that they do not harm themselves or any person present. The exorcist then prays and commands for the demons to retreat. Exorcists follow procedures listed in the ritual of the exorcism revised by the Vatican in 1999. Seasoned exorcists use the Rituale Romanum as a starting point, not always following the prescribed formula exactly. If the exorcist stops the rite, then the demon will pursue him which is why the process being finished is so essential. The Making of a Modern Exorcist, first edited in 1983 and then in 1999, which Both secularism and superstition have popularised some very distorted ideas about exorcism. This booklet, written by an experienced exorcist, looks at its origin in the Gospels and its practice in the Church today.

Christ Exorcising a Mute by Gustav Dore , In Christianity , exorcism is the practice of casting out demons. In Christian practice the person performing the exorcism, known as an exorcist , is often a member of the Christian Church , or an individual thought to be graced with special powers or skills. The exorcist may use prayers and religious material, such as set formulas, gestures , symbols , icons , amulets , etc. Protestant Christian exorcists most commonly believe the authority given to them by the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit the Trinity is the source of their ability to cast out demons. Therefore, practitioners regard exorcism as more of a cure than a punishment. The mainstream rituals usually take this into account, making sure that there is no violence to the possessed, only that they be tied down if there is potential for violence. The statue of Saint Philip of Agira with the Gospel in his left hand, the symbol of the exorcists, in the May celebrations in his honor at Limina , Sicily The Catholic rite for a formal exorcism, called a "Major Exorcism", is given in Section 11 of the Rituale Romanum. The exorcist recites prayers according to the rubrics of the rite, and may make use of religious materials such as icons and sacramentals. The exorcist invokes God "specifically the Name of Jesus "as well as members of the Church Triumphant and the Archangel Michael to intervene with the exorcism. According to Catholic understanding, several weekly exorcisms over many years are sometimes required to expel a deeply entrenched demon. Of the four Vedas holy books of the Hindus , the Atharva Veda is said to contain the secrets related to exorcism, [14] magic and alchemy. Vaishnava traditions also employ a recitation of names of Narasimha and reading scriptures, notably the Bhagavata Purana aloud. According to Gita Mahatmya of Padma Purana, reading the 3rd, 7th and 9th chapter of Bhagavad Gita and mentally offering the result to departed persons helps them to get released from their ghostly situation. Kirtan , continuous playing of mantras, keeping scriptures and holy pictures of the deities Shiva , Vishnu , Hanuman , Brahma , Shakti , etc. It is also mentioned in the Hanuman Chalisa. It is believed that just uttering the name of Lord Hanuman makes the evil forces and devils tremble, in fear. The main puranic resource on ghost and death-related information is Garuda Purana. Exorcism in Islam In Islam, exorcism is called ruqya. It is used to repair the damage caused by sihr or black magic. Exorcisms today are part of a wider body of contemporary Islamic alternative medicine called al-Tibb al-Nabawi Medicine of the Prophet. The Throne Verse Arabic: In some cases, the adhan call for daily prayers is also read, as this has the effect of repelling non-angelic unseen beings or the jinn. That is because these people will enter Paradise without being called to account because of the perfection of their Tawheed, therefore he described them as people who did not ask others to perform ruqyah for them. Hence he said "and they put their trust in their Lord. The book is written in Hebrew and was translated into English. The Jewish exorcism ritual is performed by a rabbi who has mastered practical Kabbalah. Also present is a minyan a group of ten adult males , who gather in a circle around the possessed person. After it has been shaken loose, the rabbi begins to communicate with it and ask it questions such as why it is possessing the body of the possessed. History of Taoism In Taoism , exorcisms are performed because an individual has been possessed by an evil spirit for one of two reasons. The individual has disturbed a ghost, regardless of intent, and the ghost now seeks revenge. An alive person could also be jealous and uses black magic as revenge thereby conjuring a ghost to possess someone. Historically, Taoist exorcisms include chanting, physical movements, and praying as a way to drive away the spirit. Rituals such as these are considered of low order during these festivals. They are more for entertainment than a necessity during festivals. The leaders of the exorcisms create a dramatic performance to call out the demons so the village can once again have peace. The leaders strike themselves with a sharp weapon so they bleed. Blood is considered to be a protector, so after the rituals, the blood is blotted with a tissue and put on the door of houses as an act of protection against evil spirits. The temples and monasteries throughout Tibet hold grand religious dance ceremonies, with the largest at Potala Palace in Lhasa. Scott Peck , a believer in exorcism, generated significant debate and derision. Much was made of his association with and admiration for the controversial Malachi Martin , a Roman Catholic priest and a former Jesuit , despite the fact that Peck consistently called Martin a liar and a manipulator. They happen mainly in charismatic and Pentecostal churches, and also among communities of West African origin. Frequently, the people exorcised are mentally disturbed. If psychiatric patients do not get better after exorcism, they may believe they have failed to overcome the demon and get worse. Louviers possessions , Aix-en-Provence possessions , and Loudun possessions Martha Broissier was a young woman who was made famous around the year of for her feigned demonic possession discovered through exorcism proceedings. After being rejected, he gave her potions to make her love him which occasioned strange developments in her health and proceeded to continuously give her some other forms of medicament. The maladies which she suffered were incurable by the various physicians that attended her and eventually led to a recourse of exorcisms as prescribed by several physicians that examined her case. They began to exorcise her in September, During the exorcisms, the demon that possessed her made detailed and fluid responses in varying languages including French, Greek, Latin, Hebrew and Italian and was reportedly able to know and recite the thoughts and sins of various individuals who examined her. She was further also able to describe in detail with the use of various languages the rites and secrets of the church to experts in the languages she spoke. There was even a mention of how the demon interrupted an exorcist, who after making a mistake in his recital of an exorcism rite in Latin, corrected his speech and mocked him. Robbie was taken into the care of Rev. Edward Hughes , who performed the first exorcism on the teen. Walter Halloran , S. The documentary movie Exorcism of Anneliese Michel [55] in Polish, with English subtitles features the original audio tapes from the exorcism. The two priests and her parents were convicted of negligent manslaughter for failing to call a medical doctor to address her eating disorder as she died weighing only 68 pounds. After a long trial, five family members were convicted and sentenced to non-custodial sentences.

There weren't many exorcism stories (for exorcism stories, please refer to Fr. Gabriel Amorth's books), but I thought this book did a good job of tying in the phenomena of possession with biblical text and Church tradition.

Kinds of Demonic Influence. Causes of Demonic Influence. Degrees of Demonic Influence. Christ gave his disciples the power to expel demons. The Church exercises this victorious power through faith in Christ and prayer, which in specific cases can take the form of exorcism. He who believes and is baptised will be saved; but he who does not believe will be condemned; and these signs will follow those who believe: Exorcism has a particular place in the work which Christ has entrusted to his Church and must be understood in the light of that whole work. The sun and stars were not created until the fourth day and the light of the first day may have been that of the angels " and the separation of the darkness the fall of a third of them described in the Apocalypse St Paul, speaking of himself, wrote: The second heaven seems to mean the created spiritual home of the angels, from which they adore God and are sent as guardians and messengers to our world. Since the fallen angels are b. It was human sin that made them so. Both angels and men were created good and the greatest gift of this goodness is the power to love God freely. By its nature this gift had to be exercised in order to become permanent. From the leader of those angels who had rejected that love before us came our moment of decision: The power of the angels, although infinitely less than that of God, is much greater than that of man without God. Choosing to disobey God, we have put ourselves in the power of the fallen angels. In Genesis 3 the Devil, in the form of the serpent, is seen clearly. When Christ the Light came into the world, the demonic spirits could no longer remain hidden. He challenged the Devil in the wilderness and there rejected all his temptations, thus constituting in himself a new humanity, confirmed in the power of loving God freely b. He taught in the synagogue at Capernaum and, from one of the congregation, an evil spirit, hitherto hidden, screamed and was cast out Mark 1: So it is throughout the Gospels " and this Light, Christ has entrusted to the Church. How grave a responsibility it is, not to conceal once more what cost him so much to reveal! In the New Testament the fallen angels are also called the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places, the elemental spirits of the universe, cosmocrats, powers, dominions, thrones, names, princes, lords, gods, angels, unclean spirits, evil spirits and demons. Sometimes one or other of them is described according to his work e. Similarly, Jesus first speaks to the Gadarene demons in the singular: Those legionaries are, no doubt, the slaves of their spokesman, their captain, just as he, possibly through other intermediary ranks, is a slave of Satan. Sometimes during an exorcism, the evil spirit will say something like: During his ministry Christ did many exorcisms e. Eight are mentioned individually Matthew 9: His exorcisms of individual demons led up to his great exorcism of the ruler of this world and his creation of a new world, by his death on the Cross, his Ascension, his Gift of the Holy Spirit and his saving work in the Church: If any of those disciples were among the seventy sent out soon after, it is encouraging that they had learnt from their failure, for they returned in triumph and Jesus said to them: Behold, I have given you authority to tread upon serpents and scorpions and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall b. All things have been delivered to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father or who the Father is except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him. The ministry of exorcism in the Church flourishes in proportion to the living faith of her members in the word of God. That is the key to the other great themes of the Council: So far it has been largely frustrated by a resurgence of biblical modernism " disbelief in the historicity and inerrancy of the Scriptures. A century ago St Pius X saw clearly its demonic nature and cast it out of the Church; but in the past 40 years it has flooded back. In his book, Jesus of Nazareth, Pope Benedict shows us what is required: Kinds of Demonic Influence Indirect Rule through Sin Fallen man is self-centred; we orbit around ourselves instead of around God; and in this state we are in enemy territory. This is his ordinary mode of action 1 John 3: By love God draws us to love him freely in return 1 John 4: Spirit has the power of uniting with spirit; the fulfilment of our human spirit is union with the Holy Spirit Romans 8: The Devil, by deception and psychic violence, seeks to imprison us in his own separation from God John 8: If an evil spirit tempts us to sin, how, if we yield to that sin, should we not be united with that spirit? The spiritual war is over the free decisions of our human will. After the deliverance of the Gadarene demoniacs Luke 8: What is this but another possession of the Devil?
