The Different Types Of Bedroom Curtains Fabrics Curtains have a huge role to play in either perfecting the look of your bedroom or spoiling it, there are huge remarkable varieties of fabrics manufactured nowadays for you to choose what fabric spark your interest the most, countless choices that include natural and manmade types of fabrics.

Panels of tactile, colorful fabric can be installed on padded foam boards, cut pieces of foam, plywood, mounted in frames or hung from the ceiling. Use fabric panels to give your bedroom a chic, designer look that can be customized to fit any decorating style. Fabric panels are a good choice for rental properties when paint or wallpaper is not an option. An old, distressed window frame filled with vintage quilt panels adds character and charm to a cottage or shabby chic bedroom. Hemp, jute, bamboo or grasscloth fabric panels work well in an eco-friendly or nature themed room. Shiny, metallic fabric panels in hues of gold, bronze and copper are striking accents in an ultra-modern bedroom. Silk and satin can provide a feeling of luxury in an upscale, formal room. Add dramatic flair in a Victorian-style bedroom with plush velvet and feminine lace panels. Look for complementary patterns and motifs. Eclectic or ethnic-themed rooms can be enhanced with colorful Moroccan fabrics, Indian saris or ikat fabrics. Gather fabric swatches from stores or websites that sell fabric and tack them to your walls. Observe the fabric in different lighting and pick the textures, patterns and colors that look the best with your existing decor. Fabric Panel Boards and Frames Fabric panel boards are simple and economical and can be put to a range of uses from wall art to message boards to head boards. Fabric should be 1 to 2 inches larger than the board on all sides, Staples, glue or strong tape secures the fabric to the back of the board. The method you use to hang the panel on the wall depends on its use and weight. A lightweight, purely decorative piece can be mounted with double-sided removable wall tape, while a heavy, padded panel mounted on wood for use as a headboard might require a French cleat with mount attached to wall studs. Fabric can also be wrapped around a wood frame, similar to canvas art, or it can be placed inside a frame, such as a vintage window sash or brass art frame. Fabric Inserts Fabric can be applied directly to the wall for a look similar to wallpaper. Recessed panels and architectural molding provide a built-in frame for decorative fabric panels. An acrylic-backed fabric works best if using clear, premixed vinyl wallcovering paste. The starch can be applied to the wall with a paint roller or sponge. After the fabric has been applied and the starch has dried, excess fabric can be trimmed with a utility knife. The fabric can easily be removed later by soaking it with water and gently peeling it off the wall. This is a good option for those who rent or may want to change the look of the room often. Hanging Fabric Panels You can hang fabric panels from the ceiling to divide the room or cover an open storage area such as a closet. Using sheer panels between separate areas helps you divide the space while retaining an open, spacious feeling. Hanging panels also provide a feeling of depth. Fabric can be installed from wall to wall to create a luxurious accent wall behind the bed. Fabric installed on the ceiling can create a tent-like effect or be used to diffuse light. Ceiling mount curtain rods and ceiling mounted rails are the type of hardware you need to hang fabric panels. You can also find curtain wire kits or use hook-and-loop tape to secure fabric to walls or ceilings. Design Ideas Make a grouping of fabric panel boards using boards of different sizes. Hang the boards both vertically and horizontally and use varying shapes such as rectangles and squares. Decide on a unifying theme for the fabric such as monochromatic colors, black-and-white patterns, similar patterns in varying sizes or a design theme such as dragonflies, Paisleys or stripes. A large fabric panel board placed behind the head of the bed can serve as a headboard. Use a curtain rod to hang a long piece of fabric on a narrow wall for a dramatic accent. Drape large fabric panels from the ceiling, over the head of the bed, pulled back and then down the wall behind the bed. Loose swags of fabric hanging from the ceiling in a wavelike pattern filters the overhead light and softens the room. In fact, French Country decor works perfectly in a bedroom as it elicits the sense of comfort and relaxation. The style in itself borders on elegance but seldom hits the mark of being pretentious. It is a step up from Shabby Chic but it does have some of the well loved and weathered traits with hints of pastels mixed in. Hues, patterns, and textures will be important considerations when choosing French Country bedding. The French are big on complimentary textures that fit the task of design. The bedding "sheets, quilts and shams" are complimentary in color but while the sheets are crisp, light and soft, the quilts are often double-stitched, highly patterned and heavy. The actual bed that these sets look best on are chipped white painted iron or ornately carved wooden head and foot boards. The French have thought this through "the bed itself needs to be secure as it will be your refuge for the next eight hours" while the bedding needs to embrace you softly so that you enjoy the most comforting rest. Past The French Country Bedding Bring other elements of the room into match the bedding and you can easily pull off the look. Airy white curtains or tablecloths "nylon sheers are comparable in density but not in their ability to let the summer breezes blow through the room. Consider lace on the windows and tables, then be sure to place white pottery vases of colorful bloom heavy flowers on top of every surface. Personally I moved into the French Country style because it was so fresh. It was also incredible easy to transform my tired primitive and rustic pieces into this style. My chipped paint furniture stayed in the room after getting a quick coat of white wash to brighten them up and fresh linens, pillow coverings and rugs were added. Paint is truly one of the easiest ways to update a room and it is the least expensive way to change the look of a space. Examples! This room almost made it to my house. It is very close to the sun-inspired French Country but the furnishings, the bed skirt and the curtains are all wrong. However the pattern and the weight of the quilt are perfect. If you want to see more from this line, it is showcased online. The first room you saw at the top of this page is mine. Take note of the patterned quilt, the natural look flooring, the painted white bed frame and my one painted wall in a French Country bedding inspired, yellow. This bed was my second choice as it has the chippy white paint texture that I love so much.

Furniture-as-Headboard Ideas Take furniture and home accents and give them new life as a headboard. Some furniture-as-headboard ideas include: Floating Furniture as a Headboard Collect this idea If you have the space, float a dresser, cabinet or desk in the room with enough space to open the drawers on one side and with the back of the furniture piece as your headboard. The best part is that you can sit lamps or other objects on the dresser to shine over you when reading in bed. Area Rug as a Headboard Collect this idea Add a soft touch of texture to your bedroom by hanging a rug on the wall as a headboard alternative. Geometrically-patterned screens or room dividers create the most contemporary impact. Fabric Headboards There are many types of headboards you can create using fabric. To give your headboard a finished look there are several ways to create an easy, simple one: Headboard ideas that are contemporary include creating a long headboard panel that not only frames your bed, but your nightstand, too, like the room in the image above. Narrow Vertical Panel Fabric Headboard Collect this idea Another non-traditional way to create a cool, modern headboard is by using the panels unconventionally. Hang the panel vertically instead of horizontally. Group two narrow, vertical panels with a gap in-between. The headboard design above is not only different, but changes with the bedding. The homeowners remove the coordinating striped runners and replace them with new ones that go with the fresh, new bedding. Have the shop cut it for you on squares or rectangles of your choice. For a unique look, use different sized shapes and varying color fabrics to create a custom mosaic-effect headboard. Corner Fabric Headboard Collect this idea If your bed is up against a corner, add a low-profile headboard to two walls creating a corner headboard. For an elegant, finished look like the room above, add a modern, tailored bed skirt in the same headboard fabric to your bed. Artistic Headboards Create a headboard that is bold and artistic with the following headboard ideas. If you want to give your room a contemporary look, go with a big scale. That means building your headboard up to the ceiling or using oversized art. Use a collection of smaller art store canvases to create an artsy gallery headboard wall. Paint them in a semi or high-gloss, bold color for a contemporary look, like the bedroom shown below. You could also use recycled cardboard boxes if pre-stretched canvases are expensive. Paint the sides in a contrasting color to add dimension. A Pillow Headboard Collect this idea Our final suggestion takes the pillows off your bed and mounts them on the wall.
