

1: To Complete the Suffering of Christ - Catholic Stand

A Christian may be said to fill up that which remains of the sufferings of Christ, when he takes up his cross, and after the pattern of Christ, bears patiently the afflictions God allots to him. Let us be thankful that God has made known to us mysteries hidden from ages and generations, and has showed the riches of his glory among us.

Nevertheless, I think that if one could take just a little time here to uncover its meaning, he would find a valuable lesson for the season of Lent. The nagging question is: What could still be lacking in the suffering of Christ? He suffered to the fullest extent, and for all mankind. When He died and rose from the dead, he defeated sin and death and won for us all the grace we need to be saved. But, there is still something lacking. What is still required is the application of the grace of the Cross upon us. The overabundant fount of grace that Jesus won for us is of no benefit if there is no way for us to drink from that fount, to receive or gain access to that grace. So, we have thus far established what is lacking. The grace of the Cross must still be applied to us. Paul tells us in the passage from Colossians that one way to make up for what is lacking is by taking up our Cross just as Jesus Christ took up His. Suffering for the sake of the Body is meritorious. It is a good deed that is rewarded by grace, and all such deeds serve to build up the Body of Christ. This explains why St. Paul would rejoice in his suffering, and see this as something that he did for the sake of the Church. If one is to follow St. What bit of sacrifice or suffering can I offer up for those who need it? It could be something as simple as parking in the farthest spot and offering up the small sacrifice of a long walk in the rain or snow for those who are homebound or who cannot walk at all. This world is filled with suffering. Sometimes we may choose willingly to take it on. Other times it is unavoidable and beyond our control. All of it can be patiently endured for the sake of the members of the Body of Christ. In this season of Lent, may we all follow St.

2: St Andrew Q&A: "What is lacking in the afflictions of Christ"

"I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake filling up that which is lacking in the afflictions of Christ." Christ wills to have a personal presentation of his sufferings to the world. And the way he means to offer himself as a sufferer for the world to the world is through his people who, like him, are willing to suffer for the world.

Who, which, what, that. The first person singular present indicative; a prolonged form of a primary and defective verb; I exist. The, the definite article. Including the feminine he, and the neuter to in all their inflections; the definite article; the. From a compound of ek and a derivative of kaleo; a calling out, i. Paul dwells on his own mission to set forth the universal gospel to the Gentiles. In the Ephesian Epistle this declaration is made a direct introduction to practical exhortation comp. In both cases he dwells on the committal to him of a special dispensation; in both he rejoices in suffering as a means of spiritual influence; in both cases he declares the one object to be the presentation of each man perfect before Christ. The sentence starts with emphatic abruptness, "Now at this moment I rejoice" just as in 2Corinthians 7: In all the three Epistles of the Captivity this same rejoicing is declared in himself and urged on his brethren. For the same cause do ye also joy, and rejoice with me. Here, however, this idea is expressed with far greater emphasis. Fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ. Now, 1 the "afflictions of Christ" is a phrase not used elsewhere; for "affliction" properly, hard and galling pressure is the ordinary burden of life, and is generally spoken of only as coming on His servants. But, like the common phrase "the sufferings of Christ" 2Corinthians 1: It is true, as has been thoughtfully suggested see Chrysostom and others on the passage that we are to count as His the afflictions of His Church; but still, even if we are to include these indirect afflictions, we cannot possibly exclude the direct. See the passages quoted by Dr. Lightfoot in his note on this verse. This is, indeed, nothing but a clearer and more striking expression of the truth conveyed in 2Corinthians 1: But, 3 looking to the meaning and use of the word "afflictions," we note that "the afflictions of Christ" must be His sufferings on earth considered simply as a part--though immeasurably the chief part--of the burden of humanity in a sinful world, They represent, not the Cross of Atonement, on which He alone could suffer--and in which any reader of St. Paul must find it absurd to suppose that he would claim the slightest share--but the Cross of struggle against sin even to death, which He expressly bade us "take up if we would follow Him. In the former light St. Paul says, "The world is crucified to me, and I to the world" Galatians 6: Paul suffers in his natural body for the mystical Body of Christ. The abruptness of expression indicates a sudden outburst of feeling comp. And am filling up in my turn the things that are lacking of the afflictions of Christ Mark Paul, a distinct and pointed reference of its own. Christ, the Head, had borne his part, now the apostle in turn fills up his part, in the great sum of suffering to be undergone on behalf of the body of Christ see parallels. The verb being so understood, then, with Lightfoot, we infer that "the afflictions of Christ" a phrase peculiar. Affliction is a common term for all that Christians suffer as being in "this present evil world" 2 Thessalonians 1: Such suffering is common to the Master and his servants John These afflictions are "the sufferings of the Christ" in their ministerial as distinguished from their mediatorial aspect. Paul and the whole New Testament, that the sacrifice of Christ is the sole meritorious ground of salvation for all men, leaving nothing to fill up vers. It is worthy of note that, unless it be in the Epistle to the Hebrews, St. Paul never uses the words "suffer," "suffering" much less "affliction" in connection with the atoning sacrifice. He dwells rather on the objective fact itself - "the death," "the cross," "the blood. Gloag, in the Expositor, first series, vol. In my flesh 2 Corinthians 4: On behalf of his body, which is the Church ver. The interests of the Church demanded his sufferings. They are "for you" Colossian Gentiles ; but, in his view, the full possession of the gospel by the Gentiles and the existence of the Church itself were vitally bound up together Ephesians 2: If "Christ loved the Church, and gave himself for her" Ephesians 5: The magnitude of the interests involved are measured by his greatness whose body the Church is vers. On "body," see note, ver. Matthew Henry Commentary 1: But He suffered for the redemption of the church; we suffer on other accounts; for we do but slightly taste that cup of afflictions of which Christ first drank deeply. A Christian may be said to fill up that which remains of the sufferings of Christ, when he takes up his cross, and after the pattern of Christ, bears patiently the afflictions

God allots to him. Let us be thankful that God has made known to us mysteries hidden from ages and generations, and has showed the riches of his glory among us. As Christ is preached among us, let us seriously inquire, whether he dwells and reigns in us; for this alone can warrant our assured hope of his glory. We must be faithful to death, through all trials, that we may receive the crown of life, and obtain the end of our faith, the salvation of our souls.

3: Colossians - Bible Gateway

Look at it again: "Now I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am filling up what is lacking in Christ's afflictions for the sake of his body, that is, the church." Here are a few of the interpretive possibilities, concluding with the two I find most convincing.

This post is really just a personal rejoinder to Joel. The article offers a solution to this puzzling verse, and not one that I had come across before. The theological problem is immediately apparent. How could he be so presumptuous as to imagine that he could remedy the matter? There are two prefixes added to it. The ana has not much more than an intensive force, but White thinks that the anti makes a much more significant semantic contribution. Clark notes that wherever the doubly prefixed form appears, its usage conforms to the following parameters: Both Kremer and Clark insist that the word necessarily implies that 1 the missing amount is being supplied in full; and 2 it comes from a source distinct from that of the initial contribution. They correspond to the three possible locations for the deficient sufferings: Paul, the church, or Christ. Paul means, rather shockingly, that there really is something lacking in the sufferings of Christ and that he can and perhaps only he can make good that deficiency. But Joel thinks that the third option can be made to work, only with an interesting twist. So the thesis is this: I am not yet persuaded, however, that I need to abandon my own view, which is I think a variation on the first of the three interpretations that Joel reviews. I think that Paul is talking about his own sufferings, only with a twist. I still think this argument holds good, though no doubt it could be improved on. He means that he has not yet suffered to the extent that Christ suffered. That Paul thought of himself as imitating or emulating the sufferings of Jesus is apparent from other passages. The most significant parallel, however, is Philippians 3: Paul is not talking about a general resurrection of the dead here, in my view. He is talking about a resurrection of the martyrs at the parousia, and if the parousia happens before he dies, he will be cheated of resurrection. I find it difficult to think that Paul would have regarded the fact that Christ did not himself suffer as part of a mission to the Gentiles as a lack or deficiency. But the significance of Jesus for the Gentiles lay entirely in his resurrection, lordship and parousia cf. There seems no good reason for Paul to stress the point that Jesus had not himself directly suffered in this regard. The eschatological context is important, but I would put the stress on the expectation of kingdom, the confession of Jesus as Lord by the nations, rather than on the extension of salvation to the Gentiles, which I think is secondary. Paul no doubt thought of his own experience as paradigmatic in this respect, albeit in a secondary sense. But it is clear too that he believed the churches in general would have to suffer with Christ, in the hope of being vindicated with Christ, if the eschatological outcome was to be achieved. So we read in 1 Thessalonians 1:

4: What is lacking in Christ's afflictions (Colossians )?

Filling up the Suffering of Christ; Part 1 Col - Who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his body's sake, which is the church: Do we embrace our suffering as a means of fulfilling this scripture as Apostle Paul did to fill up that which is behind of the.

This site is a forum for St. Andrew parishioners to ask ANY appropriate questions about the Catholic faith, related or unrelated to my posts. All comments have to meet my approval before they are posted. This is a site for positive and inspiring comments that will benefit people. Thanks, and may you know the peace of Christ! Tuesday, October 14, "What is lacking in the afflictions of Christ" Anon asked the following: I thought Christ accomplished all necessary for salvation. St Paul does speak to his audience about their sufferings and how Christ will take it and do ongoing works of salvation. So, is our suffering what St. Paul is talking about as this completion? Yes, Anon, we, the Church, complete it. God allows us to suffer so that, among other reasons, we will complete the afflictions of Christ. We are allowed the incredible gift of sharing in the Cross of Christ so that we will complete it. Elsewhere in his letters, St Paul writes that Christ is the head, the Church is the body. We, as the Body of Christ, complete the suffering of Christ, our Head. God gives us the opportunity to offer our suffering up for the salvation of others in the same way that Christ offered himself up for the salvation of all. Your sufferings are added because they were lacking. You fill up a measure, you do not pour something that overflows. You suffer as much as needed to be added from your sufferings to the total suffering of Christ, who suffered as our head, and suffers in his members, that is, in ourselves. Each one of us in his own measure pays his debt to what may be called this commonwealth of ours. In proportion to our store of strength we contribute as it were a tax of suffering.

7: Filling Up the Sufferings of Christ PowerPoint Presentation, PPT - DocSlides

So when Paul says, "By my sufferings I fill up what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ," what he means is that the one thing lacking in the sufferings of Christ is the offer of those sufferings in person to those for whom he died. So in essence he is saying, "Alright, I will take the message of the cross" where Christ suffered for lost.

Filling up the Afflictions of Christ 1: Sam Storms Colossians 1: Look at it again: Paul is not saying that the redemptive sufferings of Jesus on the cross are deficient or incomplete or need to be supplemented by something that Paul or any of us might supply. I say this for several reasons. Whereas the persecution and abuse he experienced on the earth were part of his messianic calling and qualified him to serve as our savior see esp. Second, some have said that Paul is referring to the afflictions he endures "for the sake of Christ" in order to glorify him and advance the cause of the kingdom. Third, others appeal to a typological meaning. Paul, they argue, thought of his sufferings as being like those of Christ. The sufferings of Jesus were a type or prefigurement of what all Christians would encounter. Again, this is true enough, but fails to explain the "lack" in what Christ suffered or how Paul filled them up. Fourth, there is the eschatological view. Here, the afflictions of Christ refer not to what Jesus suffered but to those trials and tribulations that immediately precede the end of the age, what some have called the "Messianic woes. That limit, that quota, as it were, of messianic woes has not yet been reached or filled up. There is, therefore, a lack or deficiency which Paul by his suffering hopes to fill. The sufferings of the apostle, together with the sufferings of all believers, contribute to the sum total of these afflictions. The final two views are more likely than any of the first four. I often find myself vacillating between them. The fifth option has been defended by John Piper Desiring God: Meditations of a Christian Hedonist, What is lacking in the afflictions of Christ is not that they are deficient in worth, as though they could not sufficiently cover the sins of all who believe. They must be carried by the ministers of the Word. In other words, the sufferings of Jesus fully satisfied the wrath of God, but there is lacking "a personal presentation by Christ Himself to the nations of the world. The amazing think about this text is how Paul envisions himself and others filling up this lack. It is in his "flesh"! In other words, "God intends for the afflictions of Christ to be presented to the world through the afflictions of His people. Our calling is to make the afflictions of Christ real for people by the afflictions we experience in bringing them the message of salvation. Since Christ is no longer on the earth, He wants His body, the church, to reveal His suffering in its suffering" Sixth, and finally, it may be that in some sense Paul is experiencing afflictions in the place of Jesus, afflictions that Jesus otherwise would have endured were he on earth. By doing so Paul is convinced that he is providing an example of endurance and faith that will encourage and be of benefit to the Colossians. The key to this final option is the concept of a spiritual union that exists between Christ and his people. Everything done to the body of Christ, the church, is done to Christ himself, and vice versa. The afflictions of Paul were the afflictions of Christ: Thus, we are the objects of it in his place. The world hated and afflicted Jesus without ceasing. But since he is not here, their arrows of persecution, meant especially for him, strike his followers. By virtue of our spiritual union and identity with him, as well as our commitment to him, we endure the persecution and affliction which he otherwise would experience. What the world believes is lacking in his suffering, we fill up. We bear the afflictions which are still intended for him see especially John In this way we are seen to be his own. In this way others see him, through us, in his love for sinners. In this way we "share his sufferings, becoming like him in his death" Phil. For the sake of his body, the church, Sam.

8: What does Colossians mean?

Now I joy in the sufferings that I suffer for you, and fill up that which I lack of the passions of Christ in my flesh, for the sake of his body, which is the congregation. NRSV I am now rejoicing in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am completing what is lacking in Christ's afflictions for the sake of his body, that is, the church.

Of this you have already heard through the word of truth, the gospel, c 6that has come to you. Prayer for Continued Progress. But now it has been manifested to his holy ones, m 27to whom God chose to make known the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; it is Christ in you, the hope for glory. Awareness of their calling helps this group to be faithful brothers and sisters in Christ, i. The apostle, recalling his own prayers for them and the good report about them he has received Col 1: To encourage them he mentions the success of the gospel elsewhere Col 1: On faith, love, and hope Col 1: Paul expects a mutual interaction between their life according to the gospel and this knowledge Col 1: Christians share the inheritanceâ€in light with the holy ones, here probably the angels Col 1: Redemption is explained as forgiveness of sins cf. They present Christ as the mediator of creation Col 1: There is a parallelism between firstborn of all creation Col 1: While many of the phrases were at home in Greek philosophical use and even in gnosticism, the basic ideas also reflect Old Testament themes about Wisdom found in Prv 8: See also notes on what is possibly a hymn in Jn 1: Whereas the man and the woman were originally created in the image and likeness of God see also Gn 1: His further role is to reconcile all things Col 1: He sees the effects of the cross in the redemption of human beings, not of cosmic powers such as those referred to in Col 1: Paul also urges adherence to Christ in faith and begins to point to his own role as minister Col 1: It teaches the God-given wisdom about Christ Col 1: Even in those communities that do not know him personally Col 2: He hopes that his apostolic authority will make the Colossians perceive more readily the defects in the teaching of others who have sought to delude them, the next concern in the letter.

9: Do We Fill Up Something That is Lacking in the Cross?

Now I rejoice in [my] sufferings for you, and I fill up in my flesh that which is lacking [as regards] the sufferings of Christ, for [the sake of] His body, which is the church. What he is doing is clearly a form of penance, i.e. mortifying his body.

Elliott What does Paul mean when he says, "I A Startling Statement In Colossians 1: For the first 23 verses of Colossians, Paul has been telling believers that Jesus Christ is everything. Jesus Christ has provided a full, complete, and perfect salvation. We have redemption through His blood. He has made peace through the blood of His cross. Because of His atonement we are now positionally holy, blameless, and above reproach in the sight of God. Because of His resurrection from the dead we shall be presented before the throne of God actually holy, blameless, and above reproach at the Last Day. As Paul puts it later in chapter two, "You are complete in Him. What does he mean? If you look at what Paul says in this verse in isolation from the rest of the Word of God, you can go way off the track in your thinking about how you are saved and how you are supposed to live. How Some Misinterpret It You will find the wrong view of this passage deeply embedded in the doctrine of the Roman Catholic church. An official doctrinal statement of the Roman church says this: Christ desires for us to participate in his Passion, and thus suffering within the Body of Christ has a redemptive role. Because baptized Christians are part of the mystical Body of Christ, Jesus Christ the head of the body asks its members to participate not only in his resurrection and grace, but also in the suffering of his Passion. Paul firmly evinces this doctrine [in Colossians chapter one, verse twenty-four]. It only means that we are chosen to offer up our sufferings for the expiation of [that is, making a compensatory payment to God for] the temporal punishment deserved by our sin and the free participation in the life of Christ. Christ merits our redemption and forgives our sins but the punishment and penance for our selfish actions must still be. Thus the body of Christ, the Catholic Church, offers the collective suffering of its members for the expiation of temporal punishment and follows in the Passion and sufferings of the Head of the body of Christ, Jesus Christ. But it does nothing of the sort. This is not justification by faith, it is justification by works. The Roman Catholic church says that Colossians 1: The Roman Catholic church teaches that the death of Christ restores you to grace, but that you must add your sufferings to the sufferings of Christ in order to remain in a state of salvation. The Roman Catholic church says that a person has to add his payment for his own sins to the payment of Christ, in order to satisfy the justice of God. It is a false gospel. This teaching makes people think they are working their way toward Heaven, when all the while they are slogging toward Hell. It makes people think that they can add something to what Christ has done - and indeed must add something to what Christ has done - in order to be saved. That is absolutely wrong, wrong, wrong. What It Actually Means Let me explain why. The explanation begins by telling you exactly what Paul is saying in Colossians 1: The word that Paul uses for the "afflictions" of Christ is the Greek word thlipsis. The word means, literally, "to be pressed together. It is always translated as "tribulation" or "affliction" or being "burdened" or having "trouble. And not only that, but we also glory in tribulations [thlipsis], knowing that tribulation produces perseverance. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also abounds through Christ. It is used to speak of the afflictions that Christ endured before the Cross, not on the Cross. Let me point you to several verses that speak of this: And having been perfected [that is, proven to be qualified], He became the author of eternal salvation. When you suffer for the sake of righteousness, when you endure afflictions, when you endure persecutions, when you suffer the insults of the unsaved, when you are grieved by their blasphemies against Christ, when you endure any kind of physical, emotional, or spiritual tribulation imaginable - does that add one thing to the sufferings of Christ on the cross? Does that help to pay for your redemption? It simply means that you are a member of the Body of Christ, and the Body of Christ suffers for the sake of righteousness in this world, just as the Lord Jesus Christ Himself suffered for the sake of righteousness when He was in this world. Paul is speaking here of the sufferings that Jesus endured during His earthly ministry. And those sufferings were necessarily for a limited period of time, because He then went to the Cross. But Paul is saying that those sufferings continue in the servants of Christ, in the body of Christ, as the Church fulfills the Great Commission to go into all the world and preach the Gospel, and to make disciples from among all nations. All the saints down through the centuries are partakers of these sufferings, when we are faithful to our calling to proclaim the Gospel and seek to win men for Christ. The sufferings of which Paul is speaking in Colossians 1: The word that is used here never denotes that, anywhere in the Bible. An entirely different word is used in the Greek. And our hope for you is steadfast, because we know that as you are partakers of the sufferings, so also you will partake of the consolation. Our citizenship is in Heaven Philippians 3: Just as our forebears in the faith "confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth" Hebrews Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul, having your conduct honorable among the Gentiles [i. Are you living your life in such a way that you are participating in that heritage? Are you taking a stand for Christ? Are you a living witness for Christ? Are you living before God in a manner that is fitting for a believer? Are you practicing Christian liberty as the Bible says you are to practice it, which means submission to Christ and not doing whatever you please? Are you seeking to be fruitful in every good work, no matter what other people may think or say, or even do to you? Are you willing to speak out against the deceptions of false teachers even though you know it may bring criticism and even ostracism? Are you seeking to develop Christ-like character? Are you letting the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom? Do you seek to have a godly Christian home, and right relationships within the home between husband and wife and between parents and children, and making the sacrifices that these things involve? Do you have a proper Christian attitude as an employee in the workplace? Are you doing the best job you possibly can for your employer and for your customers, no matter what? Do you understand that your ultimate head, the authority in all these relationships, the One you ultimately answer to, is the Lord Jesus Christ. For the same reason, do you deal fairly with your employees or subordinates in the workplace? Are you laboring in prayer for your fellow believers? Are you seeking to have fellowship with others in the body of Christ, to be identified with the Body of Christ, no matter what others may say or think? All of these things involve filling up what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ. May each of us be willing to do our part - not in order to add anything to the sufferings of Christ for sin, but to "follow in His train" as members of the Body of Christ, aliens in this world awaiting our heavenly home.
