Equalization by County Board of Equalization Article 1. Generally Section It shall continue to meet for that purpose, from time to time, until the business of equalization is disposed of. Further, this subdivision shall not apply to applications for reductions in assessments of property where the applicant has failed to provide full and complete information as required by law or where litigation is pending directly relating to the issues involved in the application. The value so determined by the county board, plus appropriate adjustments for the inflation factor, shall be entered on the assessment roll for the fiscal year in which the value is determined. Mission Housing Development Company v. City and County of San Francisco, 59 Cal. Assessment made within regular period. More likely, there is a four-month period in every calendar year in which assessments are made in the normal course of events, and as to an assessment made during that period, regardless of the tax year involved, a taxpayer would have until September 15 to file an application for reduction of assessment. Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company v. Orange County, Cal. Determination after two years. Napa Savings Bank v. Napa County, 17 Cal. Board of Supervisors, Cal. Napa County, supra; Henne v. Los Angeles County, Cal. Irregularity in the time of meeting of the board of equalization cannot be urged against the validity of an assessment by one who, upon demand made by the assessor, has refused to give under oath a statement of his assessable property, and therefore could not have had his assessment reduced. There is a denial of procedural due process of law when an application is heard by less than a majority of the board, Bandini Estate Co. Los Angeles County, 28 Cal. Universal Consolidated Oil Co. However, mere informalities in the proceedings do not invalidate them. Nature of determination by county board. Thus, a claim for refund filed pursuant to Section on November 19, , was not timely for taxes paid prior to November 19, Orange County, Cal. Section c is mandatory, not "directory". Lake County, Cal. Taxpayer was entitled to have its opinion of value as to its property, as stated in its application, inserted on the roll for the tax years 1993 through 1999, during which it awaited a hearing. Flight Safety International, Inc. Assessment Appeals Board, Cal. A class action alleging that taxpayers who had filed timely applications for reduction of their assessments and whose applications were not finally determined in two years were entitled, under subdivision c, to have to pay taxes only on the amounts set forth in their applications and to have the assessment rolls reflect those values is not a prohibited class claim for property tax refund. The action would merely result in an order requiring compliance with the subdivision. Under property tax rule, the local taxing authority must give written notice identifying any litigation that extends the two-year period. The written notice defines and measures the tolling period. Under the rule, the time tolled is only that time from the giving of written notice. Assessment Appeals Board, 22 Cal. Assessment Appeals Board, 49 Cal.

Alison Lawrence States are rethinking how they respond to drug crimes. Legislative action has focused on preserving costly prison space for the most serious offenders and authorizing treatment-based alternatives for others. Trends have included amending criminal penalties and providing funding and oversight to ensure effective community supervision and treatment options. Changes being made are supported by research and public sentiment. There is a growing body of research that finds longer prison sentences do not mean less crime. Research also has identified the programs and supervision strategies that reduce recidivism while holding offenders accountable. A national poll of registered voters found overwhelming support for policy changes that provide more effective and less expensive alternatives to prison. A poll of crime victims similarly found that six in 10 prefer shorter prison sentences and more spending on prevention and rehabilitation rather than prison sentences that keep offenders incarcerated for as long as possible. Criminal Penalties More than a third of states have amended drug penalties in the past five years. States have lowered penalties for possession of small amounts of drugs while maintaining or increasing penalties for larger quantities and drug trafficking offenses. One objective of these changes has been to reserve expensive prison space for the most serious offenders while providing treatment-based sentencing options, when appropriate. Makes a first or second conviction punishable only as a suspended sentence. California Reduces drug possession from a felony to a misdemeanor. Delaware H 19 Makes it a class B misdemeanor to possess, use or consume a controlled substance or counterfeit substance, except marijuana. Makes it a class A misdemeanor if there is an aggravating factor. Indiana Decreases, from a felony to a misdemeanor, possession of a scheduled controlled substance. Maryland Creates a separate penalty for drug possession punishable as a misdemeanor. Minnesota S Creates the offense of possession of trace amounts of drugs as a gross misdemeanor and applies it only to those defendants with no prior drug convictions. Mississippi H Makes simple possession of a schedule I or II controlled substance punishable only as a misdemeanor. South Dakota S 34 Creates the crime of possessing, selling, or distributing certain substances intended for the purpose of intoxication as a class 1 misdemeanor; other possession offenses are felonies. Utah H Reduces penalties for first and second convictions of possession of a controlled substance from 3rd degree felony to class A misdemeanor. Recently, many states have revised some mandatory penalties, especially for nonviolent and drug offenses. Iowa and Maryland have made their changes retroactive. Notable Laws Relaxing Mandatory Minimums California Removes the mandatory life sentence for a nonviolent, non-serious offense under the three strikes law. Georgia H Authorizes the court to depart from the mandatory minimum sentence for certain drug trafficking offenses if the judge concludes that the defendant was not a leader of criminal conduct, did not possess or use a weapon and has no prior felony convictions, the offense did not result in death or serious injury, and the interests of justice will not be served by imposition of the mandatory minimum sentence. Iowa H Allows nonviolent drug offenders to be considered for parole after serving 50 percent of the mandatory minimum term. Requires the court to determine, at the time of sentencing, if the offender will be eligible for earlier consideration based on criminal record, a validated risk assessment and negative impact of the offense on victims or the community. Makes the reduced time served for nonviolent drug offenders retroactive. Maryland H Authorizes the court to depart from specified mandatory minimum sentences for repeat offenders of crimes generally involving the manufacture, sale, and distribution of controlled substances. Requires the court find that the mandatory minimum would result in substantial injustice to the defendant and that the sentence is not necessary for the protection of the public. Maryland S Repeals mandatory minimum penalties for certain repeat drug offenders. Applies the changes made to mandatory minimum sentences in H retroactively by allowing offenders to apply to the court for reconsideration. Minnesota Removes mandatory minimum prison terms for low-level drug crimes committed by a repeat offender. Oklahoma H Authorizes the court to depart from certain nonviolent mandatory minimum sentences when the minimum is not necessary for the protection of the public and imposition would result in substantial injustice to the defendant; or when the minimum is not necessary for the protection of the public and the defendant is eligible for an alternative sentence program based on a risk and needs assessment. South Carolina Removes the requirement that sentencing under two and three strikes provisions are mandatory. Funding Community supervision and treatment can support a risk- and resource-sensitive system that holds offenders accountable, reduces recidivism and reserves prison space for the most serious offenders. States have allocated resources to supervision agencies to focus intensive supervision and treatment on offenders with the greatest crime-related needs, such as drug addiction. Colorado, Kentucky and Maryland are among states that have directed savings from reduced prison populations be used to fund drug treatment. In , Kentucky S and Maryland H both directed prison savings be used for offender treatment. Oversight Legislatures continue to address treatment needs and accountability measures for the high proportion of people in the criminal justice system who exhibit mental health and substance abuse disorders. Drug diversion programs and problem-solving courts are prevalent alternatives to incarceration for offenders with substance abuse needs. Increasingly states are taking action to ensure that these programs are delivered in a way that that has been proven by research to reduce recidivism. Since , nearly 20 states have codified best practices or created oversight for treatment diversion options.

It has often been noted that sentence-final discourse particles (SFPs) bear a peculiar relationship to intonation. The types of meaning they carry, for example, overlaps to a large extent with the types of meaning often carried by intonational forms.

DELIBERATIONS HELD ON May 9th, 12th, 19th and the FINAL SESSION AND SENTENCE AND RECANTATION. Wednesday, May 9th, We, the Judges, being in the great Tower of the Castle of Rouen, assisted by the reverend Fathers, Doctors and Masters whose names follow: the Reverend Father Abbot of Corneille de Compiègne, Jean de Chatillon, Guillaume Erard, André Marguerie, Nicolas de Venderes, Guillaume.

We did require and warn her: To speak the truth to Us on divers and numerous points on which she had hitherto refused to reply or had replied untruthfully, the which are established in the highest degree by informations, proofs, and grave presumptions. A great number of these points was read and shown to her. Then she was told that, if she would not tell the truth, she would immediately be put to the torture, the instruments of which were here, in this same tower, under her eyes. There also were present the executioners, who by Our order had made all the necessary preparations for torturing her, in order to bring her back by this means into the way and knowledge of the truth, and thus to procure for her salvation both of body and soul, which she did expose to such grave peril by her lying inventions. To which Jeanne replied in this manner: I knew by my Voices it was he. I asked counsel of my Voices if I ought to submit to the Church, because the Clergy were pressing me hard to submit, and they said to me: I asked of my Voices if I should be burned, and my Voices answered me: Nevertheless, he dare not say the contrary to what I have said thereon. Saturday, May 12th, in the abode of Us, the Bishop, We, the Judges, having taken our seats, assisted by the venerable Doctors and Masters whose names follow: We, the Bishop, did make known to the Assessors what had taken place on the previous Wednesday, and ask their counsel on what should be now done; We did in particular consult them on the question of submitting Jeanne to the torture. Nicolas Loyseleur considered it "a salutary medicine for her soul," but nevertheless agreed that it should not be adopted. On April 29th, the University was solemnly convoked at Saint-Bernard to consider the question; on May 14th, the deliberation of the Faculty of Theology and the Faculty of Decrees was submitted to all the Faculties, solemnly assembled for that purpose, and adopted by the University as its own. In presence of the above named, We, the Bishop, said: For a long time, We have been receiving a very considerable number of Resolutions and opinions, coming from notable Doctors and Masters, on the subject of the assertions made and confessed by Jeanne. We might awhile since have proceeded to the conclusion of the Process, basing Ourselves on these Resolutions, because these Resolutions were assuredly quite sufficient. But in order to testify all honor and all respect towards our Mother, the University of Paris; to have on the matter a more full and complete elucidation; to give to consciences more guarantee and surety: We did decide to send the assertions in question to Our Mother the University of Paris, and principally to the Faculties of Theology and of Decrees; and to beseech the deliberation of the Doctors and Masters of the said University, principally of the said two Faculties of Theology and Decrees. The University - in particular, the said two Faculties - being ardently enflamed with zeal for the Faith - have maturely and solemnly given their opinion upon each of the assertions, and have sent them to Us in the form of a Public Instrument. This statement ended, We gave orders that the Resolutions contained in the said Instrument should be read. Afterwards, upon the reading of the Resolutions of the said two Faculties and the said University, each of the Doctors and Masters present did give and explain his opinion: The opinion of all is in conformity with the Resolutions of the University and of the two Faculties; and it did bear not only on the qualifications to be given to the assertions comprised in the Twelve Articles, but also on the manner of proceeding which shall be followed finally. Here follow the deliberations of the Doctors and Masters; [agreeing with the Resolutions of the University, and advising that Jeanne should be again charitably admonished and warned before a final sentence be pronounced. We decided that Jeanne should be again warned to return into the way of truth and salvation of soul and body. Besides, and in accordance with the excellent deliberations which had just taken place, and with the counsels full of sense just enunciated, We decided that We will, after this last monition, pronounce the closing of the Process and give a day for the announcement of the sentence. We did cause the said Jeanne to be brought before Us, because We judged it profitable to show her the points on which the Faculties of Theology and Decrees of the University of Paris have declared that she had erred and fallen short; We have judged it profitable also to make known to her the omissions, crimes and errors which, in the terms of the Resolutions of each of these Faculties, exist on each of these same points; and afterwards, to warn her, or cause her to be warned, to abandon these errors and shortcomings: Above all he did exhort her to reflect well on the gravity of the error contained in her refusal to submit to the Church Militant. And he concluded by thus speaking to her: Four times have been made known to you the perils which endanger your soul and body, if you do not at last consent to correct yourself and your sayings by submitting to the Church, yourself and your deeds, and by accepting her judgment. And although many others might long since have declared the Case heard and have given judgment upon you, nevertheless my Lords your Judges, enflamed with zeal for the salvation of your soul and body, desired, in order to have their advice, to send your sayings and deeds to the University, that light of all Science, that extirpator of all error. The resolutions of the University of Paris have come to your Judges. They have then decided, always in the hope of your salvation, to admonish you once again, to again call your attention to your errors, your scandals and all the faults that you have committed in such great number. Do not allow yourself to be separated from Our Lord Jesus Christ, Who had created you to be a sharer in His glory; do not choose the way of eternal damnation with the enemies of God, who daily set their wits to work to find means to trouble mankind, transforming themselves often, to this end, into the likeness of Our Lord, of Angels and of Saints, as is seen but too often in the lives of the Fathers and in the Scriptures. The belief which you may have had in such illusions, put it away from you. Believe rather in the words and opinions of the University of Paris and other Doctors, who, knowing the law of God and Holy Scripture, decide that no faith should be placed in such apparitions, nor should faith be placed in any extraordinary apparitions, in any novelty which is not supported by Holy Scripture, by a sign, or by a miracle. This you ought to have done: If your King had given you a treasure to guard, forbidding you to receive any one, whoever it might be, should you not refuse to receive one who presented himself to you, saying he came by order of the King, unless he brought you a letter or some certain sign? For the Church it is the same thing: You ought not to have put faith in those whom you say came to you; and we also, we ought not to believe in you, since Our Lord had expressly commanded the contrary. But what will you say of yourself, you, brought up in the Faith of Christ, if you do not obey the officers of Christ that is to say, the Prelates of the Church? What judgment will you give on yourself? Cease, therefore, to hold this damnable speech, if you love God, your Creator, your Spouse, and your Salvation: The honor of God and the salvation of your body and soul must be preferred before all. All is perishable, save only what I tell you to do. If you do it not, you separate yourself from the Church and from the Faith to which you have sworn in Holy Baptism; you detach yourself from the authority of the Church, from the Church which is led, ruled, and governed by the authority of the Spirit of God. Did not God say to the chiefs of the Church: But if you do not, if you persist, know that your soul will be overwhelmed by damnation, and I fear for the destruction of your body. If I were condemned, if I saw the fire lighted, the faggots prepared, and the executioner ready to kindle the fire, and if I myself were in the fire, I would not say otherwise, and would maintain to the death all I have said. In consequence, We did proceed to close the Process, following the formula contained in a schedule which We, the Bishop, held in Our hands, and which was thus expressed: In the Square of Saint-Ouen were two platforms on each side of the south door of the Church: Jeanne and Maitre Erard, the preacher, occupied one; the Bishop of Beauvais, together with a great number of Assessors, filled the other. In those days, and up to comparatively recent times, a cemetery occupied this site, which is now a garden. There was ample space for a large crowd to collect on the gently sloping ground facing the south door. We did have with us: Jeanne was placed opposite to Us on a scaffold or platform prepared for this purpose. This Doctor began by taking for text that Word of God in St. Finally, he admonished and exhorted her and all the people by the most edifying teaching. In concluding, he spoke to her in these terms: As to my submission to the Church, I have answered the Clergy on this point. I have answered them also on the subject of all the things I have said and done. If there be any fault found in them, the blame is on me, and no one else. She was admonished on this to the third monition. But as this woman would say no more, We, the Bishop, did then begin the reading of Our sentence as follows: All the pastors of the Church who have it in their hearts to watch faithfully over their flock, should, when the perfidious Sower of Errors works by his machinations and deceits to infest the Flock of Christ, strive with great care to resist his pernicious efforts with the greatest vigilance and the most lively solicitude, and above all in these perilous times, when so many false prophets are come into the world with their sects of error and perdition, according to the prediction thereof made by the Apostle. Their diverse and strange doctrines might cause the faithful in Christ to stray, if Holy Mother Church, with the aid of whole-some doctrine and canonical sanction, did not study with great zeal to refute their inventions and errors. Therefore, because that before Us, Pierre by the Divine Mercy Bishop of Beauvais, and before Us, Brother Jean Lemaitre, Deputy in this City and Diocese for Maitre Jean Graverend, renowned Doctor Inquisitor in France for the Evil of Heresy, specially appointed for this in this Case; because, before Us, competent Judges, you, Jeanne, commonly called the Maid, have been indicted and cited in a Case of Faith, on account of thy pernicious errors; after having seen and examined with great attention the whole series of the Trial. There is no note as to when Jeanne interrupted the Bishop. The Latin gives no hint. Our sentence had thus been already read, in great part, when Jeanne did begin to speak and said:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same as follows: Chapter 64H of the General Laws is hereby amended by inserting after section 6 the following section: If the general court fails to adopt the joint resolution required by this section, the commissioner of revenue shall not later than July 1, designate a 2-day weekend in August of that year as the annual sales tax holiday. The general court or the commissioner of revenue shall, when choosing the sales tax holiday, take into consideration all religious or secular days of observation occurring during the month of August; provided, however, that the commissioner shall designate such days so as to maximize the economic benefit to the commonwealth. The second paragraph of clause 50 of said section 6 of said chapter is hereby amended by striking out the first sentence as most recently amended by section 8. Clause 52 of said section 6 of said chapter , as most recently amended by section 13, is hereby further amended by striking out the first sentence and inserting in place thereof the following sentence: The second paragraph of section 16 of said chapter , as so appearing, is hereby amended by striking out the first sentence and inserting in place thereof the following sentence: Said second paragraph of said section 16 of said chapter is hereby further amended by striking out the first sentence, as amended by section 15, and inserting in place thereof the following sentence: The General Laws are hereby amended by inserting after chapter L the following chapter: For the purposes of this chapter, the following words shall have the following meanings, unless the context clearly requires otherwise: A elected coverage under subsection j of section 2 of this chapter and B reported earnings to the department of revenue from self-employment that meet the financial eligibility requirements of subsection a of section 24 of chapter A, as if the individual were an employee; or iii a former employee who has: A common ownership of real or personal property; B common householding; C children in common; D signs of intent to marry; E shared budgeting; and F the length of the personal relationship with the covered individual; or ii has registered as the domestic partner of the covered individual with any registry of domestic partnerships maintained by the employer of either party, or in any state, county, city, town or village in the United States. A covered individual shall not be eligible for medical leave for more than 20 weeks in a benefit year. A covered individual shall not take more than 26 weeks, in the aggregate, of family and medical leave under this chapter in the same benefit year. Nothing in this section shall prevent a covered individual from taking a medical leave during pregnancy or recovery from childbirth if supported by documentation by a health care provider that is immediately followed by family leave, in which case the 7 day waiting period for family leave shall not be required. Leave under clause iii of paragraph 1 of subsection a or under paragraph 2 of said subsection a or under subsection b , may be taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule by an employee when medically necessary. Leave under clause ii of said paragraph 1 of said subsection a may be taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule by an employee. B Leave under paragraphs 1 or 2 of subsection a , or under subsection b of this section may be taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule by a self-employed individual or former employee. C The taking of leave intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule pursuant to this paragraph shall not result in a reduction in the total amount of leave to which the covered individual is entitled under this chapter. An employer shall not be required to restore an employee who has taken family or medical leave to the previous or to an equivalent position if other employees of equal length of service credit and status in the same or equivalent positions have been laid off due to economic conditions or other changes in operating conditions affecting employment during the period of leave; provided, however, that the employee who has taken leave shall retain any preferential consideration for another position to which the employee was entitled as of the date of leave. Any leave provided under a collective bargaining agreement or employer policy that is used by the employee for a covered reason and paid at the same or higher rate than leave available under this chapter shall count against the allotment of leave available under this chapter. The employer shall give employees written notice of this requirement. Employees who take leave under this chapter while ineligible for leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act of may take leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act of in the same benefit year only to the extent they remain eligible for concurrent leaves under this chapter. He was active in the Young Republicans and was student body president. Attorney for the Southern District of Alabama beginning in 1981, President Reagan nominated him to be the U. Attorney for the Southern District of Alabama. The prosecution stirred charges of selective prosecution of black voter registration. The defendants, known as the Marion Three, were acquitted of all charges by a jury after three hours of deliberation. Historian Wayne Flynt told The Washington Post he regarded concerns about tactics employed in the election and by Sessions in particular as legitimate, but also noted Sessions had no history of advocating for black voter rights before 1981. One of those lawyers, J. Sessions said he did not recall making that remark and he did not believe it. Sessions later said that the comment was not serious, but did apologize for it, saying that he considered the Klan to be "a force for hatred and bigotry". Department of Justice Civil Rights Division sent the office instructions to investigate a case that Sessions had tried to close, Figures and Sessions "had a very spirited discussion regarding how the Hodge case should then be handled; in the course of that argument, Mr. Kowalski, however, testified that he believed "[Sessions] was eager to see that justice was done in the area of criminal civil rights prosecutions. Figures testified that two assistant prosecutors had also heard Sessions, including current federal judge Ginny Granade. Figures claimed the charge was retaliation for his role in blocking the Sessions nomination. Sessions denied this, saying that he recused himself from the case. Figures was ultimately acquitted. Attorneys at the time. Attorney], I signed 10 pleadings attacking segregation or the remnants of segregation, where we as part of the Department of Justice, we sought desegregation remedies". In her letter, she wrote that "Mr. Sessions has used the awesome powers of his office in a shabby attempt to intimidate and frighten elderly black voters. A majority was required for the nomination to proceed. The nomination was withdrawn on July 31, 1981. District Court in Mobile who had worked with Sessions later acknowledged the confirmation controversy, but stated that he observed Sessions as "a lawyer of the highest ethical and intellectual standards". The harsh criticism he had received from Senator Edward Kennedy, who called him a "throw-back to a shameful era" and a "disgrace", was considered to have won him the support of Alabama conservatives. That same year, the Gay Lesbian Bisexual Alliance sued the state of Alabama after the Alabama Legislature attempted to deny funding to student organizations that advocated on behalf of homosexuality at public universities. District court ultimately ruled the law unconstitutional in Gay Lesbian Bisexual Alliance v. Sessions successfully sought a fourth term in 1985. In 1985, he became the first Republican reelected to the Senate from Alabama since Reconstruction given that his colleague Richard Shelby, who won reelection as a Republican in 1985, had previously run as a Democrat, switching parties in 1985. He also served on the Environment and Public Works Committee.

Blagojevich left with Emil Jones center and Jeffrey Schoenberg right at the Illinois Executive Mansion for a luncheon after Barack Obama launched his campaign in 2008. From 2003 to 2008, Blagojevich served as federal liaison for the Democratic Governors Association. By early 2008, five Republicans campaigned in the primary for the right to challenge him in the general election, with state treasurer Judy Baar Topinka eventually winning the nomination. Blagojevich formally began his reelection campaign for Governor of Illinois on February 19, 2008. While in office, Blagojevich signed much progressive legislation such as ethics reform, death penalty reform, a state Earned Income Tax Credit, a statewide comprehensive smoking ban and expansions of health programs like KidCare and FamilyCare. FamilyCare was ruled unconstitutional. Blagojevich originally campaigned against pork barrel spending, but eventually used it himself to gain more votes for bills. He was criticized by Republicans and many moderate Democrats for using funds from the state pension system in order to fund other spending. Legislation authorizing the program was adopted as part of the fiscal year budget. Congressman Glenn Poshard, to develop a capital construction plan that could pass the Illinois General Assembly. Democratic legislator Jack Franks said that the reason Blagojevich had problems passing laws with the cooperation of the General Assembly is that he did not spend enough time with the legislature. Joe Lyons told reporters, "We have a madman. The man is insane. This measure was being challenged on the show by state legislator Ron Stephens from Greenville, Illinois. It was when he came off looking so silly that he said he thought it was a regular news program. Stewart focused on how Blagojevich had expressed a great desire to tell his side in court, but then did not. Stewart attempted to get a promise that next time, Blagojevich would testify. Stewart played the additional recording, and asked him how that sounded any different. The former governor had no concrete answers. Thompson Center or mortgaging it. Blagojevich was also criticized for his handling of the state budget. During a suspected shortage of the flu vaccine in 2009, Blagojevich ordered 10 million doses from overseas distributors, which the Food and Drug Administration had warned would be barred from entering the United States. Food and Drug Administration. Imported medication would have saved users of the service 25 to 50 percent over domestic drugs. This order was legally challenged. Blagojevich later Morr-Fitz v. Illinois House Speaker Michael Madigan called for a vote on a non-binding resolution on whether the state should impose a gross receipts tax. When it became apparent that the resolution would be defeated, Blagojevich announced at the last minute that supporters should vote against it, although the vote was intended to be a test vote to gauge whether the measure had any support. I feel good about it. On December 8, 2009, all state agencies were ordered to stop conducting business with Bank of America to pressure the company to make the loans. Blagojevich said the biggest U. Blagojevich vetoed three gun bills in 2009, which would have: Deleted records in gun database after 90 days Eliminated the waiting period for someone wanting to buy a rifle or shotgun, when trading in a previously owned weapon Overridden local laws regulating transport of firearms. Blagojevich summarized his reasons for considering Winfrey on various talk shows: To begin with, she was perhaps the most instrumental person in electing Barack Obama president. She is a larger-than-life figure in America and around the world. She has a huge bully pulpit and tremendous support across America. She has a voice larger than all senators combined. And if she was a U. Senator, she would be a voice for the Obama program, which she supports, and she would be in a position to be able to use an unbelievable bully pulpit to be able to get it done. Elaborating further he said: She gets along with everybody. She brings people together. She finds common ground. And she listens. I think she is up there with Will Rogers and Bob Hope and some of our great public personalities of the last century. Lynn Sweet of the Chicago Sun Times agreed with Matthews, writing Winfrey would be "terrific" and an "enormously popular pick. Blagojevich insisted his aides always carry a hairbrush for him. He referred to it as "the football",
