Specific dates change year to year, so be sure to check websites for the latest details. A marketplace brimming with arts, crafts and fine products rounds out the fun. Key Largo and Islamorada Web: Try different variations of mullet – perhaps smoked or in a dip – while being entertained by the strange Buzzard Lope Queen Contest, which draws thousands every year. Goodland at Marco Island Web: Try the freshest seafood, usually in the form of smoked mullet, crab cakes, lobster chowder, lobster salad sliders, fish tacos, gator gumbo, fried shrimp and buffalo shrimp. Kids can enjoy finger foods, as well as games and interactive play zones. Various locations in Key West Web: Right on the beach. Try an eclectic selection of bourbon and whiskeys and learn more about the spirits through seminars and tastings. The event is designed to allow Marathon and Middle Keys commercial fishermen and their families to kick back and enjoy the fruits of their labor in the form of fried fresh catches and spiny lobster, raw oysters, stone crab claws and other delicious shellfish and seafood from the warm Keys waters. Features hundreds of wines, by-the-bite specialties prepared by exceptional chefs from South Florida restaurants as well as a beer garden serving craft beer, ales and lagers. Learn how rum makes delicious drinks, from island-style Polynesia tiki cocktails to more sophisticated rums best served straight-up or on the rocks, and take notes from the RumXP International Rum Expert Tasting Panel as it judges multiple categories of the drink. Downtown Fort Pierce Web: Local restaurants supply the suds-loving crowd with sliders as they compete for the "King of All Burgers" title. And for the vegetarians? Palm Beach Gardens Web: Known as spiny lobsters, the clawless crustaceans offer sweet and tender meat, delicious served cold with lemon and cocktail sauce, warm with drawn butter, chopped and mixed with mayo for salads and sandwiches and broiled with garlic and tomatoes. If this sounds mouthwatering, hit the Lobsterfest. Downtown Key West Web: Each offers a selection of specially priced three-course meals to help guide guests through a gastronomic sampling of great dishes, ranging from steakhouse favorites such as prime rib and truffle-mashed potatoes to lighter ceviche cups and sushi rolls. Various locations in Palm Beach County Web: Downtown Delray Beach Web: Along with the standard market fare, try exotic rarities such as durian and jaboticaba or sample some nut pate or a fruit pie at the raw foods deli. Fellsmere, Indian River County Web: Try several variations of a key lime pie, including in a martini or a margarita, and watch the spectacle that is the key lime pie-eating contest or applaud along as Miss Florida Key Lime Pie is crowned. Downtown Dade City Web: An old-fashioned fish fry – a complete fish dinner with two sides – seems fitting, but the festival organizers also provide other meat and vegetarian options to make sure everyone leaves full. The fun goes beyond the food, with live performances from top country, rock and Latin music artists on weekends. This festival aims to settle the debate – at least until the next year – with its annual three-day competition spotlighting sandwich makers from both regions, working their magic with pork, Swiss cheese and whatever other secret ingredients the competitors slip between slices of fresh-baked Cuban bread. Historic Ybor City, Tampa Web: Complimentary tastings and tours are included. The nostalgic event offers hundreds of craft sodas that you can sample, as well as a classic car show, live entertainment, art and craft vendors, pop-up stores, food options and a kids zone. While oyster lovers get their fill, festival goers will also contribute to a better ecosystem as shells will be gathered for oyster reef restoration projects.

CNN – Seems everywhere has a food festival these days, or at least an excuse to sell overpriced paper bowls of pulled pork in a tent. For the dedicated diner, the standard shindigs are unlikely to satisfy. Or even eaten raw. OK, seagull eggs are nothing to write home about and mountain oysters can be an acquired taste, but what about possum cutlets washed down with gorse wine? Annual Golden Spurtle Cairngorms, Scotland Could the golden spurtle be the ultimate kitchen accessory? The Scots celebrate their superfood with a highly competitive festival at Carrbridge , a village in the Cairngorms National Park. This is the World Porridge-Making Championships, a quintessentially Scottish event that awards one winner a Golden Spurtle -- a wooden stick traditionally used to stir the porridge pot. For reasons lost in the mists of time, or at least the steam from the saucepan, porridge must always be referred to as "they. The finished product must always be eaten from a pottinger, or porridge bowl, standing up. Fussy, perhaps, but this meal and its traditions have kept Scots healthy and hardy for generations -- and even inspired poetry. A highlight is the confetti war, which, this being Switzerland, starts at 4 p. Officially the festival begins at 6 a. Courtesy Watercress Festival This quirky little festival celebrates the humble watercress; a versatile aquatic herb liberally used in traditional English cooking in soups, salads and sauces. On the third Sunday in May the center of the village of New Alresford turns into a street fest where farmers bring local products to sell and celebrity chefs create special meals. Past years have seen recipes such as trout with watercress, beetroot and apple, beef Wellington in watercress and watercress sushi rolls. The early highlight comes around Ecuador produces more high-quality chocolate than any other country, and this is the best place to get a choc hit in the tasting sessions and cookery classes. Eager locals come early, so by 10 a. Bacon Festival Sacramento, California Bacon and beer: With bacon gelato, bacon salad, bacon ramen and bacon tater tots on offer, no wonder the festival is popular. Courtesy Visit Tobago Now in its 18th year, this annual festival in the coastal village of Bloody Bay , on the Caribbean island of Tobago, focuses on dishes using dasheen. This is a root plant of the taro variety, eaten in abundance in the Caribbean because it can be cultivated in flooded conditions. The mid-October festival gets its name from the dasheen itself, which, when ground and cooked turns blue -- not normally a color associated with an edible foodstuff. The weekend-long festival attracts thousands of participants, rich and poor, all keen to cook inventive dishes using the root.

Thousands of food and wine lovers descend on Melbourne each year to indulge in a day celebration of food at over events. Enjoy a multi-course meal in the city's trendiest spots, take a workshop led by world renown chefs or join in The Longest Lunch, a signature event at the festival.

This historically significant time of year has given birth to a plethora of harvest festivals around the world featuring ancient traditions and countless opportunities to see rural winemaking communities at their most active and exciting. Depending on the amount of rain and sun that year harvest can start as early as August or as late as October. Generally, grapes for sparkling wines such as Chardonnay and Pinot Noir are harvested first, to ensure they retain acidity and a low sugar level. These are usually followed by the harvest of white grapes and then the red grapes, which take longer to reach physiological maturation. The latest harvest is usually in December or January, when the temperatures reach -8C, and when the grapes are dehydrated and full of sugars - perfect for the making of dessert wines.

England - Ascot Festival of Food and Wine Raceday Saturday 6th The quintessentially English experience of attending the races at Ascot is made all the more memorable with the addition of fine wines and tantalising local produce. The day features a cooking demonstration from celebrity chef, James Martin, high-profile races and numerous high-quality food and wine stalls to whet your appetite.

Spain - Priorat Wine Festival Saturday 13th Every year, the small village of Poboleda in the heart of Priorat , celebrates this one day wine harvest festival. Lower-key than other events held in major towns, this one-day celebration is an authentic affair steeped in religion, music and dance and is a great opportunity to join with locals celebrating the life blood of this region. Scala Dei is probably the most picturesque of the wineries here. The Les Etoiles des Mougins Festival hosts loads of events for young and old, countless competitions and a swarm of local food and wine producers vying for the custom of visitors. The town has become well-known for its love of food, and renowned chefs from around the country visit to share in classes, food tastings, and skilled culinary demonstrations.

London - Vivat Bacchus: They have invited top South African wineries to pour their best wines in a relaxed walk around tasting which is open to all at a minimal cost. A series of dinners will follow each of the tastings featuring wines from the visiting wineries. The bullfighting in this region is of a far more friendly variety than its real Spanish cousin. The locals get involved in parades, and offer up huge servings of paella, churros and tapas street food for sale. One for the Foodies!

Jerez - Vendimia Festival Tuesday 9th - Sunday 14th Jerez de la Frontera, a major town 60km from Seville is dominated by the Palomino Fino grape which thrives in hot, chalky soil and is used to produce sherry of international repute. The Jerez Vendimia Harvest Festival shows off the area at its very best. The festival itself features a grand, costumed procession, dancing, fireworks, bullfights and all the trimmings of a traditional spanish festival.
