Richmond was part of the lands of the earldom of Richmond, which was intermittently held by the Dukes of Brittany until the 14th century. The prosperity of the medieval town and centre of the Swaledale wool industry greatly increased in the late 17th and 18th centuries with the burgeoning lead mining industry in nearby Arkengarthdale. Landmarks[edit] Richmond Castle Richmond Castle in the town centre overlooks the River Swale and is a major tourist attraction. The cobbled market place is one of the largest in England. For many years, it was the headquarters of Richmondshire District Council, before being closed and sold off in A decline in the fortunes of theatre led to its closure in and it was used as a warehouse for many years. In the theatre was restored and reopened, with a theatre museum added in More recently, the theatre has become the Georgian Theatre Royal and was extended in with the addition of a new block providing services and access next to the original auditorium. Richmond School â€”a large school and sixth form with specialisms in Performing Arts, Science and Mathsâ€”and St Francis Xavier School , which is a smaller, voluntary aided, joint Roman Catholic and Church of England School [25] for boys and girls aged 11â€” There are also three non-sectarian primary schools: The Station food, film and art centre admits , tourists a year. It has a restaurant, cinema, art gallery and heritage centre, as well as a bakery, cheese-maker, micro brewery, ice-cream parlour, fudge house and honey-maker. Nicholas, near Richmond, Yorkshire p. After the station closed, the building was used for many years as a garden centre. It has now been renovated by the Richmondshire Building Preservation Trust and opened in late â€” retitled, simply, The Station â€” as a mixed-use space for community and commercial activities. There are also artisan food makers on the premises: Richmond has a frequent bus service to Darlington and Catterick Garrison, and a wide range of local bus services to nearby towns and villages including Leyburn, Northallerton and Barnard Castle. Legends[edit] At the end of the 18th century, some soldiers found an entrance to a tunnel underneath the castle keep. They could not fit into the tunnel, so they elected to send a regimental drummer boy. The boy was asked to walk along the tunnel and beat his drum so that above ground the soldiers could follow the noise. They did this for 3 miles before the sound stopped unexpectedly. This was never explained until centuries later, when people now believe that the roof of the tunnel collapsed and caved in on top of the drummer boy, whilst drumming along. Today a stone marks the spot the noise stopped. The entrance to the tunnel is still there, but is forbidden for anyone to go in. Today schools celebrate this local legend with children marching through town annually. Legend claims that on some cold winters night, you can still hear the faint sound of the drummer boy beneath the ground, where the stone stands.
