In Game of My Life San Francisco 49ers, Roger Craig, Steve Young, and Jerry Rice recount their respective Super Bowl experiences. John Brodie, Garrison Hearst, R. C. Owens, and Frank Gore are just a few of the players, past and present, who also offer their firsthand accounts.

In the rush-first option offense run by Greenwich he completed only 41 percent of his throws for 1, yards, but ran the ball times for 1, yards. During his senior year, he was co-captain of the football, basketball and baseball teams. In basketball, he averaged 15 points a game. In baseball, he hit. He was and threw a no-hitter against New Canaan High School. College football[ edit ] Young was heavily recruited by the University of North Carolina. He passed for 3, yards and 33 touchdowns in the regular season, and his He also added yards rushing. Young finished his college career with pass completions for 7, yards and 56 touchdowns, along with 1, yards and 18 touchdowns rushing. He was enshrined in the College Football Hall of Fame in He agreed to take his payment in the form of an annuity paid out over 40 years to help the fledgling team. At the time, it was another huge signing by the fledgling league, which had already succeeded in signing both reigning Heisman Trophy winner, running back Mike Rozier of Nebraska and the previous winner, Georgia running back Herschel Walker. Instead, the season rapidly became a fiasco. Before one game, the team bus driver refused to drive the Express to the Coliseum after his paycheck bounced. Young contributed a lot of money, as did some of his teammates, and the driver got them to their game. Young then lined up in the tailback position and took snaps from the shotgun formation because the Express were left with no healthy running backs. He had a respectable year, highlighted by becoming the first pro football player ever to pass for yards and rush for in a single game. In his second season with the Express, owner William Oldenburg went bankrupt, and was forced to turn the team over to the league after being unable to find a buyer. It was reported that Young had insured the contract and would still be paid until The team posted 2â€™14 records in his two seasons with them, going 3â€™16 with him as a starter. The Buccaneers received second and fourth round draft picks in the trade, which they used to draft Miami linebacker Winston Moss , and Arizona State wide receiver Bruce Hill , respectively. Substituting for an injured Montana, early in the first quarter of a game against the Chicago Bears , he threw four touchdown passes in a 41â€™0 victory. In their divisional playoff game against the Minnesota Vikings , he replaced Montana in the second half after the team fell behind On October 30, , Young ran for a yard, game-winning touchdown against the Minnesota Vikings. He started the game out with a yard touchdown pass to John Taylor , after Montana went down with an injury. On October 22, , he posted a perfect passer rating of In his four seasons as a backup, Young had thrown 23 touchdown passes and only six interceptions. He rushed for a career-high yards on just eight carries vs. The 49ers lost the game It was a rough start for Young. Midway through the season, the 49ers found themselves struggling with a 4â€™4 record. In the ninth game of the season, after throwing a franchise record yard touchdown pass to Taylor, Young suffered a knee injury and was replaced by backup quarterback Steve Bono. After a loss in that game and the next, Bono led the 49ers to five consecutive victories, playing so well that coach George Seifert decided to keep him in the starting lineup after Young had recovered. Young then closed out the season by throwing for yards and three touchdowns and also rushing for 63 yards and another touchdown in a 52â€™14 win over the Chicago Bears in a Monday Night Football game at Candlestick Park. Young finished the season with an NFL best Despite missing five full games and most of a sixth, he still threw for 2, yards and 17 touchdowns with only 8 interceptions. The 49ers had slipped from a 14â€™2 record in the previous season to a 10â€™6 record in While 10 wins is usually enough to make the playoffs, this time it was not, and San Francisco ended up not playing in the postseason for the first time since However, the trade never happened. In addition to having to compete with Bono, Montana appeared to be close to recovering from his elbow tendon surgery. San Francisco came close to trading Young to the Los Angeles Raiders , but no deal was finalized and it turned out that Montana would not recover in time to start in the opening game. Montana would not return until the final game of the season, a Monday Night home game against the Detroit Lions. Montana played the entire second half and guided the 49ers to victory. On the fifth play of the opening game at the Giants , he suffered a concussion and was replaced by Bono, who threw two touchdown passes while leading the 49ers to a 31â€”14 win. The following week, San Francisco lost 34â€”31 to the Buffalo Bills , despite a career-high passing yards and three touchdowns from Young, in a game that for the first time in NFL history there were zero punts from either team. Young recovered and led the 49ers on a five-game winning streak, capped off by a win over the Atlanta Falcons in which Young passed for yards and three touchdowns. After missing most of the next game a loss to the Cardinals with the flu, he led San Francisco to victory in all of their remaining games of the season, giving the team a 14â€”2 record. He went on to throw for yards and 2 touchdowns, and rush for 73 yards, in a 20â€”13 divisional playoff win over the Washington Redskins. Young threw for yards, completing He also threw two interceptions, but the final one came with the outcome of the game already decided. Young finished the season with 3, passing yards and rushing yards, along with an NFL best 25 touchdown passes and He was the first quarterback ever to record a triple digit rating in consecutive seasons. However, a rift in the locker room had developed, with players split on whom they wanted at quarterback. But once again, he had a rough start to the season. Over the first four games of , Young, who was hindered by a swollen thumb on his throwing hand, threw eight interceptions, more than he had thrown during the entire season. But after his thumb healed, Young went on an incredible streak over a span of seven games, throwing 16 touchdown passes with only 2 interceptions and a By the end of the year, Young set franchise records for most passing yards 4, , and consecutive passes thrown without an interception , later eclipsed by Alex Smith in while leading the NFL in touchdown passes 29 and passer rating The team slipped to a 10â€”6 record, but advanced to the NFC championship game again by blowing out the New York Giants 44â€”3 in the divisional round. However, once again they were defeated by the Dallas Cowboys, this time 38â€” They started fast, beating the Los Angeles Raiders 44â€”14 on the strength of four touchdown passes from Young, one of four games during the regular season in which he had at least four. After a loss in a much anticipated game to Joe Montana and the Kansas City Chiefs, the 49ers won their next two games before losing to the Philadelphia Eagles 40â€”8 at Candlestick Park, a game in which Young was eventually benched in the middle of an offensive series. Then I throw six in the Super Bowl! The 49ers had the number one offense in the NFL, and were so dominant that Seifert often took Young out of games early if he felt that the 49ers had an insurmountable lead at the time. After an easy victory over the Chicago Bears in the divisional round of the playoffs, the 49ers jumped out to a halftime lead over the Dallas Cowboys in the NFC Championship Game , holding on to win Young threw for two touchdowns, while adding 47 yards and another touchdown on the ground. As a result, he would head to his first Super Bowl as a starting quarterback. The 49ers were heavy favorites to become the first team with five Super Bowl victories. The victory capped off an incredible year for Young, who had one of the best seasons by a quarterback in NFL history. He threw for 3, yards, a then-franchise record 35 touchdown passes with only 10 interceptions, completed In addition to the early playoff exits, Young suffered a series of injuries that forced him to miss several games from to Young entered the season at age 37 and some began to wonder if his skills would diminish because of his history of injuries and a general decline in his game due to age. However, he silenced all critics once again, putting up career numbers in passing yards 4, and passing touchdowns He finally beat Favre and the Packers in the NFC wild card game that year, as he threw the winning touchdown to wide receiver Terrell Owens with three seconds remaining to win the game 30â€” Without the threat of a running game, Young threw three interceptions the last one a Hail Mary pass with under 30 seconds remaining in the game and the 49ers were defeated by the Atlanta Falcons Over that span of seasons from to , Young led the NFL in passer rating twice in and , and led the NFL with 36 touchdown passes in Young was plagued by concussions throughout his career. The concussion he suffered against the Cardinals was reportedly his second in a season that was only three weeks old, and the seventh at least of his career. Young was forced to retire at the end of the year; the team informed him that he would be released if he did not retire. Although Young was offered a job as the Broncos starting quarterback, he retired because of his repeated concussions. He is particularly concerned about certain positions that take frequent hits, such as running backs and linemen.

Each explains "the game of their life",and being a fan for so long,I was able to recall back to many of the game circumstances and memories myself that they tell us. Well written with only one factual error; and that's pretty good considering how many I found in one of Glen Dickey's 49ers books.

We always feel like we got the players to be in the game, regardless of how much someone goes up. Philip Rivers threw for yards and three touchdowns as the Chargers improved to , the first time since that they are. Gordon and Austin Ekeler averaged 5. It is the first time in 11 games that San Francisco had allowed a yard rusher. The Chargers trailed with 4: Caleb Sturgis had three field goals, including one from 21 yards with 7: The last interception came with 2: The Chargers then ran out the clock. Made some great plays, especially in some of the situations. With a lot of guys going in and out, he handled a lot of adversity well and a little chaos due to injuries. His yarder to George Kittle with 2: Los Angeles has missed 10 extra points since the kick was moved back in and is one of eight teams in the league to have missed 10 or more. Rivers, who was 25 of 39, completed passes to eight players with Gordon and Ekeler combining for nine receptions and 81 yards. ### 3: 5 ways 49ers can beat Cardinals in second matchup

Clark, who had been battling amyotrophic lateral sclerosis ALS since he first began feeling weakness in his left hand in September of , was 61 years old. He passed peacefully surrounded by many of the people he loved most. For almost four decades, he served as a charismatic ambassador for our team and the Bay Area. The strength, perseverance and grace with which he battled ALS will long serve as an inspiration to so many. Dwight will always carry a special place in our hearts and his legacy will live on as we continue to battle this terrible disease. In the time since his diagnosis, Clark said he had lost strength in both hands, his midsection, lower back and his right leg while also losing significant weight. In April, DeBartolo hosted a group of about 30 friends and former 49ers to visit Clark at his Montana ranch. We cried, we all got a taste of Dwight, all we wanted to do is see him smile the whole time we all were there and he smiled the whole time. He made us feel good and I know he felt good knowing he had all those teammates there to support him. We lost a great one!!! He showed tremendous courage and dignity in his battle with ALS and we hope there will soon be a cure for this horrendous disease. He was responsible for one of the most iconic plays in NFL history that began our run of Super Bowl championships, but to me, he will always be an extension of my family. I love him and will miss him terribly. Our hearts and prayers are with his wife Kelly, his children and the entire Clark family. That day, he said he simply wanted one more chance to be around the team he loved. Famous sportscaster Vin Scully narrated a video tribute to Clark that was played on the scoreboard, and Hall of Fame quarterback Joe Montana introduced Clark. Jennifer and I are heartbroken over his passing," Montana wrote in a Twitter post Monday night. We are grateful for the decades of love and friendship we shared. Known as "Sprint Right Option," the play became one of the most iconic in league and franchise history. Clark timed his leap and his reach just right and hauled in the pass by his fingertips before landing safely in the right corner of the north end zone. This guy -- he was one of the greatest football players to ever play the game, but also he was a great individual. As the story goes, legendary 49ers coach Bill Walsh discovered Clark when he was at Clemson to scout quarterback Steve Fuller. As Clark was heading out to play golf, he got a call from Walsh asking him to handle receiving duties for Fuller in the workout. Walsh came away so impressed with Clark, who had just 33 catches and three touchdowns in 34 college games, he decided to draft him. Clark spent his entire nine-year career with San Francisco, earning two Pro Bowl berths and a pair of Super Bowl titles. He joined the Cleveland Browns in an executive role in He will forever live on in our memories for The Catch but also for his kind, gentle and courageous spirit. The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Print Last season could not have ended better for San Francisco 49ers fans. Jimmy Garoppolo led the Niners to wins in each of their last five games with authority. This gave the 49er fans the hope they deeply longed for after starting the season with rookie C. This may seem like too much money to invest in one player but in a league where max deals are given for potential, not just performance, this deal makes a ton of sense. He will be the biggest player to watch for the 49ers this season after setting the bar so high for himself with his prior play. He has a record as a starter, so unless he leads the team to an undefeated season, he most likely will be some form of disappointment. They also managed to sign Marquis Goodwin to a three-year extension after having the best year of his career where he had receiving yards and 56 catches. Coming off great rookie seasons tight end George Kittle and slot receiver Trent Taylor will also be weapons for Garoppolo. Kittle and Taylor were both in the top 60 players for catch percentage last season in the NFL. On the other side of the ball, Richard Sherman will be the biggest defensive player for fans to watch. His signing with the 49ers was one of the biggest surprises of the offseason so far, considering his past with the 49ers when he was a star with the Seattle Seahawks. Almost everyone remembers his interview after the Seahawks defeated the 49ers in the NFC Championship where he called the 49ers a sorry team. Sherman is one of the few athletes to negotiate his own contract and not use an agent at all. He is a proven veteran and is coming off an Achilles injury, which is what makes this deal so mind-blowing. Even though Sherman missed seven games last year he still managed to be productive racking up 35 tackles, seven pass deflections, and two interceptions. Which is impressive considering most teams hardly throw to his side. The 49ers did lose leading rusher Carlos Hyde to the Cleveland Browns in the offseason. However, they rebounded by adding speedster running back Jerrick McKinnon who was seeing limited snaps in Minnesota due to sharing touches with Dalvin Cook and Latavius Murray. The best chance for the Niners to be successful using McKinnon is to get him in the gap so he can use his blazing speed. Shanahan will most likely do so by having him run routes out of the backfield much like how McKinnon found most his success in Minnesota where he averaged 8. McKinnon and Matt Brieda were college teammates at Georgia Southern so it should be interesting to see how that chemistry benefits the running back tandem this year. The Niners also added Weston Richburg who is currently considered to be one of the best centers in the NFL and is only When playing in the same division as Aaron Donald, you need as much help up front as you can get. Jared Goff will be much more effective this season after having a whole offseason as the confirmed starter. The Rams defense will arguably be the best in the NFL this coming season. They also added Ndamukong Suh to the incredible defense line they already had. The one extremely scary rumor that has been floating around is that Odell Beckham Jr. Aaron Donald likes to throw humans. They are coming off a season where they managed to finish Seven of their nine victories were by a margin of 10 or fewer points. Wilson is coming off a year where he had a completion percentage of I guess the Brandon Marshall pick up is something to be excited about for Seahawks fans since it is a big target for Wilson to throw to in the end zone. However, Marshall did not live up to his hype in New York and this could be the same story. The Arizona Cardinals are coming off an season and are an unpredictable team due to having a new head coach in Steve Wilkes and a starting quarterback with a big history of injuries in Sam Bradford. If Bradford can stay healthy it will be intriguing to see what Coach Wilkes can do with an offense that features pro bowl running back David Johnson and Cardinals future hall of fame receiver Larry Fitzgerald. The problem for the Cardinals is David Johnson has suffered significant season-ending injuries back-to-back years much like Bradford. The two are scheduled to play on week 17 for the last game of the season, which will probably play a crucial role in who wins the NFC West and gets the playoff berth.
