If you are not having a fairy party then the fairy glitter gel also would make a great summer kids activity. Add 1 tablespoon of glycerin and mix well. Add a few drops of Lavender essential oil and stir. Set aside overnight if cloudy. If you used aloe gel and it did not cloud up continue to the next step. Take the lids off all the bead storage containers but leave the individual containers in the plastic case they came in. Using a small spoon fill each tiny container with the gel. Do not fill them to the brim or they will overflow when you are mixing the glitter in. Just below the lip of the container is good. Snip a corner a bag of glitter. Remove the number of containers for the color you are working with from the case and tap a pile of glitter on top of each one. Stir well with a wooden skewer. Add more glitter if it looks pale in color. The more glitter the bolder the color of glitter gel you will get. Repeat with whatever other colors you plan to make until all containers of Fairy Dust Glitter Gel are made. Snap the lid on the container to store or add stickers to the top as I did. This is not meant to be used on the face, near the eyes or mouth. If using aloe vera gel you may not see the cloudiness that I did. If you want to omit the lavender essential oil you can. Open only one color of glitter at a time and only work with the containers meant for that color to prevent cross contamination of the colors of glitter. Unless you are going for a multi-colored effect. I did not use any coloring at all the glitter colors the gel. I added puffy stickers to the top of the containers. If using stickers to pretty the fairy dust glitter gel containers up I suggest using flat stickers. The Fairy Dust Glitter Gel is so easy to make and the girls really loved rubbing it all over their arms and shoulders as they flew around the party with their fairy wings and wands. The party was a hit. My granddaughter loved it and so did the rest of the kids. If you are not planning a fairy party this is a perfect summer project for the kids. They can help you make it and then they too can glow and glitter like the little fairies at our party. Your little fairy is going to need a crown.

To make the Craft Stick Fairy: Watch the video tutorial for step by step: Start off by cutting out a long rectangular piece of tissue paper. You can fold it inwards and secure using glue to get an even hem. Now, crimp and wrap around the craft stick. Using a rubber band or a matching loom band, secure it around the waist of the fairy. Adjust it up or down along the craft stick. Using a pink marker, we drew the hair and the shoes. You could match the shoes and hair with the outfit or use a different one altogether. You could also use plastic flowers as hair to make little garden fairies. Or use wool to make the hair. Using a black marker we added an outline and some definition. Finally, Cut out winged shapes from a golden glitter paper and stick to the back of the fairy using glue. We used a glue stick but our wings fell off after some time. Use a stronger glue or a glue gun to secure the wings. To make the crown, cut a golden star sticker and stick the 3 point star as the crown. Make one, make two or make a whole set of rainbow fairies. Create your own fairy story With their magical powers and ability to fly, fairies are the perfect subject for creating stories. Depending on the age of your child, they can either write and illustrate their own fairy book or you can write their story as they dictate it this is a great way to promote literacy skills for pre-school children and get them to add illustrations on each page. Have fun creating and naming your fairies. Make up an original plot. This is a great way to develop imagination and learn new words along the way.
