After winning the division title in both and , the Rangers went just last year. However, there are plenty of reasons for Rangers fans to be optimistic heading into This off-season Texas clearly prioritized improving its starting rotation. After dealing Yu Darvish at the trade deadline, the Rangers were left with much uncertainty behind ace Cole Hamels. Now the Rangers look poised to enter the season with one of the deepest rotations in the American League. Despite entering his age season, Adrian Beltre remains one of the best third basemen in the MLB both at the plate and in the field. The future Hall of Famer will look to anchor a Texas Rangers lineup built to rely on the long ball. The Rangers finished third in home runs among all of Major League Baseball last season and should be near the top of the league once again in Joey Gallo provides versatility in the field and a consistent source of power in the middle of the lineup. Outfielders Nomar Mazara and Shin-Soo Choo will look to improve upon their excellent campaigns, while Elvis Andrus and Rougned Odor will control the middle of the infield for Texas. Odor has plenty of pop, but needs to become a more consistent hitter at the plate. Manager Jeff Banister, who was the American League Manager of the Year, has one of the most powerful lineups at his disposal for the season. Most Texas Rangers luxury suites accommodate groups of 18 - Luxury boxes for the Rangers are located from baseline to baseline with two levels of suites. Whether you are looking to entertain clients, employees or friends and family, a Texas Rangers luxury suite is great for any setting. The Rangers will look to repeat as division champions and make a deep playoff run in As usual, the Rangers offensive lineup is loaded with firepower despite the retirement of Prince Fielder. Rangers fans are salivating over the offensive potential of Roughned Odor. In his second full season with the Rangers, Odor hit 33 home runs. Ordor is a free-swinging who does not generate many walks, but the power is there. Odor, along with shortstop Elvis Andrus, provide good offensive upside as middle infielders. Napoli is a winner wherever he plays. In , Napoli hit over 40 home runs; his signing was critical to replace some of the power lost with Prince Fielder. The Rangers have plenty of talent in their starting rotation to make another deep playoff run. Cole Hamels and Yu Darvish are workhorses. If healthy, each can be counted on for over innings pitched. Matt Bush and Sam Dyson will be counted on as late-inning lockdown relievers. After winning the American League West in , the Rangers are gearing up to repeat as division champions in As far as the lineup is concerned, the Rangers will have a lot of power in the middle of the order. Fielder was named the American League Comeback Player of the Year after hitting 23 home runs and batting over. Elvis Andrus, better known for his defense, is also a great base stealer. Rougned Odor finished the season very strong, hitting 15 of his 16 home runs in the final four months of the season. After a good showing in his rookie season, Delino DeShields will be the everyday centerfielder for the Rangers. Manager Jeff Banister is just hoping for a healthy season from his current squad. Banister was named Manager of the Year last season in his first year with the Rangers. Hamels will be the ace of the staff while Yu Darvish recovers from Tommy John surgery. Hamels got off to a rocky start with the Rangers but they went on to win his final 10 starts. Darvish will return to the rotation this summer and assuming he comes back as an elite pitcher, that will give the Rangers one of the best two starters in baseball. Martin Perez and Derek Holland will both start the year healthy. Both Perez and Holland missed months at a time last season. Shawn Tolleson saved 35 games in and will once again be the closer for the Rangers. This comes after averaging 91 wins and two World Series appearances in five straight seasons. With healthy returns from each of them, the Rangers will be vastly improved. Although the Rangers will have to improve without their best starting pitcher Yu Darvish. Darvish will miss the season. Adrian Beltre will look to continue his Hall of Fame case both on the offensive and defensive side of the game. Elvis Andrus shines at shortstop and is a menace on the base paths. The team could turn to some of their promising prospects in like power-hitter Joey Gallo, pitcher Alex Gonzales and catcher Jorge Alfaro. As a result, the team could not compete with other big-city teams for good players. In an effort to fund the project through public money instead of private financing, the Rangers threatened to leave Arlington. The deal called for the city to raise the sales tax by half a cent to go toward construction. Both houses of the Texas Legislature unanimously approved the public purpose of the ballpark, and Texas Governor Ann Richards signed it all into law. Using authority granted to it by the city, the ASFDA seized several tracts of land around the stadium site using eminent domain for parking and future development. The first official game was on April 11 against the Milwaukee Brewers. The largest crowd to watch a Rangers baseball game was on October 30, , when 52, fans watched Game 3 of the World Series against the San Francisco Giants. Voting for the new ballpark began on November 8 the same day as the presidential election for residents in the city limits of Arlington. Space between the new stadium and Globe Life park will be an entertainment complex called Texas Live! Arena, a multi-level venue providing restaurants, a performance stage for concerts, and an outdoor beer garden ; Arlington Backyard, the third venue to anchor the entertainment district calls for a large, covered venue that could host concerts, charitable functions, and community events. Potential uses include repurposing the concourse for condos and retail, as well as turning the current field into an amphitheatre. Unless the Rangers make the playoffs, home plate will be removed from this park to Globe Life Field in September , and as late as October. The stadium was designed by David M. Schwarz Architectural Services of Washington, D. A roofed home run porch in right field is reminiscent of Tiger Stadium , while the white steel frieze that surrounds the upper deck was copied from the pre Yankee Stadium. The out-of-town scoreboard removed in and replaced with a state-of-the-art videoboard was built into the left-field wallâ€™a nod to Fenway Park. The numerous nooks and crannies in the outfield fence are a reminder of Ebbets Field. However, it has a few distinct features of its own. Several traditional Texas-style stone carvings are visible throughout it. A four-story office building in center field encloses it, with a white steel multilevel facade similar to the facade on the roof. As the stadium was built on one of the former Arlington Stadium parking lots, the irregular dimensions of the outfield were planned independently, rather than being forced by neighboring structures. The home plate, foul poles replaced prior to the season , and bleachers were originally at Arlington Stadium. Bas-relief friezes depict significant scenes from the history of both Texas and baseball. The calculus of seating arrangements represented a new economic model for the sport: The stadium has three basic seating tiers: Two levels of luxury suites occupy spaces behind sliding glass doors above and below the club tier. In some cases, the view is cut off by an overhang or underhang, and others are directly in front of the foul or support poles. Also, the design of the upper deck leaves it one of the highest in baseball. The view from the grandstand reserved sections in left is particularly obstructed. Prior to the season, the visitor bullpen was reconfigured to be parallel to the field after the previous visitor bullpen configuration had an excessive amount of heat during hot weather games. To allow construction, a few rows of bleacher sections were removed. It was originally designed as a picnic area for fans but the Rangers have never initiated this policy. It was named after former Arlington mayor Richard Greene in November For a couple of years in the s, the Rangers had the "T" from the Texas Rangers logo mowed into the grass, but this is no longer done. In , the Rangers started a tradition where they had four girls run around on it with giant Texas state flags when the Rangers scored, similar to what many football teams do when their teams score.
