The government responded by tightening security, allegedly ordering attacks on suspected PWG members by state police and the "Green Tigers". Police forces continued to have virtual impunity for the killing of PWG rebels during police encounters. The Maoist Communist Center rebels intensified their armed campaign against Indian security forces following the killing of their leader by police in December. An estimated people were killed in fighting between the PWG and government forces throughout the year. According to government reports, people have died during the conflict that year. An October assassination attempt on Chief Minister N. According to independent media reports, as many as people were killed in the conflict this year, half of these Maoist rebels. Attacks on police and TDP party officials, believed to be carried out by the PWG, accounted for most major incidents and deaths. A three-month cease-fire, announced in late June, led to failed negotiations between the government and the PWG. A few days into the cease-fire, an attack attributed to the PWG placed the cease-fire in jeopardy. More than people were killed in sporadic, low-intensity fighting, a reduction from previous years. Most victims were members of the police forces or the Telugu Desam Party a regional political party. Rebels continued to employ a wide range of low-intensity guerrilla tactics against government institutions, officials, security forces and paramilitary groups. For the first time in recent years, Maoist rebels launched two large scale attacks against urban government targets. More than people were reported killed this year in violent clashes. Over one-third of those killed were civilians. Civilians were also affected in landmine attacks affecting railway cars and truck convoys. Clashes between state police and rebels also resulted in deaths of members of both parties, and civilians that were caught in the firing. Fighting differs from state to state, depending on security and police force responses. In the state of Andhra Pradesh, security forces have been somewhat successful in maintaining control and combating Maoist rebels. The other state that is most affected, Chhattisgarh, has seen an increase in violence between Maoist rebels and villagers who are supported by the government. In , to people were estimated killed, fewer than half Naxalites, and approximately one-third civilians. The majority of hostilities took place in Chhattisgarh, which turned especially deadly when over Naxalites attacked a Chhattisgarh police station, seizing arms and killing dozens. Civilians were forced to choose between joining the Maoist insurgency or supporting the Salwa Judum and face coercion from both sides. According to news reports, this conflict resulted in deaths during ; of these were civilians, security personnel and militants. Of the 16 states touched by this conflict, Chhattisgarh and Jharkhand were the most affected. One positive note for Chhattisgarh was that fatalities, although still high, were significantly down from Similarly, Andhra Pradesh, the state with the most Maoist activity a few years ago, has improved security with a corresponding drop in fatality rates. Unfortunately, as conditions have improved in Chhattisgarh and Andhra Pradesh, the Maoist forces seem to have shifted their operations to the state of Orissa where conditions have worsened. This included civilians, security force personnel and insurgents. He added that "Dealing with left-wing extremism requires a nuanced strategy â€" a holistic approach. It cannot be treated simply as a law and order problem. Of those killed, approximately were civilians, were government troops including police and 27 were Naxalites. According to South Asia Terrorism Portal and government sources, over 1, deaths occurred in the conflict this year. This includes security forces, Naxalites, and more than civilian. Fifty others were wounded in the series of attacks on security convoys in Dantewada district in the central Indian state of Chhattisgarh. Following the attack, the forces retaliated and in the action they lost five security personnel, including three BSF jawans. The 4 policemen were later released without conditions after Naxal leaders listened to the appeals of family members. The freed policemen also promised the Naxals to never take up arms against the insurgency again. The attack happened when the Congress party chief of the state, Nandkumar Patel, was returning from a party function. Some states experiencing this sharp reduction in Naxalite hostilities, such as Madhya Pradesh, attribute their success to their use of IAP funds for rural development.
