Pengachoosa by Caroline Rush UK, In the "Mr Pengachoosa" storybooks, a pet hamster quietly tells his human owner great tales of his extraordinary grandfather, Mr Pengachoosa. It is somewhat unclear if the second two are two books, or different versions of one. Haffertee Hamster is a soft toy sewn in the image of a previous much loved pet to bring comfort after its death. He belongs to the little girl Diamond Yo, along with other soft toys such as Howl Owl and the chimeric Rabbearmonklio. The Haffertee books are gentle chapter books in which each chapter is a short story combining into an overall whole, a format well suited to bedtime story reading. The Diamond family are actively Christian, which is reflected in the stories as Haffertee asks important questions about life being newly-made and takes part in the everyday life of the family as they worship and pass through various religious festivals. One unusual feature of the Haffertee books is that all the soft toys can talk directly to humans of every age, and so sometimes Haffertee converses directly with Ma Diamond one-to-one, for example. It is completely irrelevant to the stories that Haffertee is a hamster rather than a differently shaped toy. The book is tied together with a song about Jesus at Easter which the family sing together, a new verse is introduced in each chapter and the song is printed in full in the back of the book. My Little Animal Friends at Night-Time This book contains three illustrated stories, on the subject of hamsters, racoons and owls - all creatures which prefer to come out at night. Hu", which may be a mistake. The Pongwiffy Series by Kate Umansky Pongwiffy the smelly witch stars in a popular series of books with her bad-tempered hamster familiar Hugo the Bloomsbury series has its own website at www.pongwiffy.com. The Pongwiffy books are: There is also a story called Pongwiffy and the Important Announcement, published combined with Grubtown Tales: This is now a scarce hamster book. Katie Morag is an ongoing character who stars in a series of books about her island life. The current titles are: Geronimo the class hamster stars in the minor storyline of the second story, which involves him being sucked up in a vacuum cleaner unharmed by this and meeting a pet hamster named Betty. The third story is set shortly afterwards and based around the class putting on a hamster-themed assembly at school this story features fewer actual hamsters. Published by Puffin books and illustrated by Steve May. There is a Jeremy Strong website called Krazy Klub for fans of his work.

January 28, in Hanover, New Hampshire is an economist and author. He was a Peace Corps Volunteer in Ecuador from 1967 and this experience launched him in the world of economics and writing. His book, The Secret History of the American Empire, provides more evidence of the negative impact of global corporations on the economies and ecologies of poor countries, as well as offering suggestions for making corporations behave more like good citizens. Perkins also wrote an introduction to the book A Game as Old as Empire: When the economic hit men fail in this scenario, the next step is what we call the jackals. It would have been very embarrassing. The power of these drugs, sex, power, and money, was extremely strong for me. I really believe we can do that. Of course, we never heard about that in our country. Those companies would then go in and build an electrical system or ports or highways, and these would basically serve just a few of the very wealthiest families in those countries. I was very much a part of that. They found out all my weaknesses and immediately seduced me. They used the strongest drugs in our culture, sex, power and money, to win me over. He spent the 1980s working for the Boston strategic-consulting firm Chas. Perkins was trained early in his career by a beautiful, older woman who was armed with the psychological profile gathered about him by the NSA after many days of pre-employment screening, as one of many "economic hit men" advancing the cause of corporate hegemony. As a former chief economist at Chas. After several years struggling with his conscience over the role he was playing in crippling foreign economies, he quit his consulting job. In the 1990s Perkins founded and directed a successful independent energy company. He then sold the energy company in the late 1990s. Since then he has been heavily involved with non-profit organizations in Ecuador and around the world. He continues this work today, in addition to his writing. One of his organizations, Dream Change, is dedicated to shifting consciousness and promoting sustainable lifestyles for the individual and global community. Perkins and his role as an economic hitman is the main theme in part II of the movie Addendum, released in October. Articles in the New York Times and Boston Magazine, as well as a press release issued by the United States Department of State, have referred to a lack of documentary or testimonial evidence to corroborate the claim that the NSA was involved in his hiring to Chas T. In addition, the author of the State Department release claims that the NSA "is a cryptological codemaking and codebreaking organization, not an economic organization" and that its missions do not involve "anything remotely resembling placing economists at private companies in order to increase the debt of foreign countries."
